

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

FINAL

INQUIRY RESUMED IN SPENDING IN MISSOURI SENATE
CAMPAIGN IN '52Federal Grand Jury
age of Statements of Contributions and Spending.

A federal grand jury investigation was resumed here today into campaign expenditures and contributions made in behalf of United States Senator Stuart Symington (Dem.) and former United States Senator James P. Kem (Rep.) in the 1952 primary and general election campaigns.

A package containing photostatic copies of financial reports made by both Symington and Kem after the 1952 election was received by the grand jurors from Felton Johnston, secretary of the Senate. The correspondence also included other matters relating to the campaign.

Symington defeated Kem in the 1952 election after winning from former State Attorney General J. E. Taylor in the Democratic primary. Kem defeated two political unknowns in the Republican primary.

Justice Department Complaint. Statements of contributions in the senatorial campaigns were made available to the grand jury, the Post-Dispatch was told, after the Justice Department complained it had been unsuccessful in efforts to obtain similar campaign statements filed by candidates for United States Representative in 1952.

The failure to obtain the documents was reported by the Post-Dispatch last week.

The current investigation was ordered last month by Judge Moore, but inquiries into expenditures in the Symington-Taylor primary campaign were made in 1952 by both a federal grand jury and the United States Senate Elections Committee.

The separate inquiries followed charges made by lieutenants of the two candidates that the other side had violated election laws. Both inquiries ended without any definite conclusions.

Intolerable, Judge Says. In ordering the inquiry resumed, Judge Moore said excessive and illegal use of money in elections has become "intolerable."

He directed the grand jurors to "find out what has been done by industrialists, munitions makers, labor unions and lobbyists in Washington in an attempt to influence elections in our state."

The grand jurors first asked the Justice Department to obtain the campaign records for them. When the department was slow in complying with the request the foreman wrote directly to the Senate and House last Wednesday.

The Post-Dispatch was told Judge Moore endorsed the request.

The grand jury also had sought to obtain contributions and expenditures in behalf of specific candidates for the House from the Eastern District of Missouri.

Judge Moore declined to comment on the jury's efforts to obtain the records.

The grand jury also was expected to hear witnesses in its investigation into possible anti-trust violations by waste rag dealers.

AIR JOYRIDER
GROUNDS PLANES
AT 2 U.S. BASES

WIESBADEN, Germany, June 26 (AP)—Military planes on the United States air base at Frankfurt and Wiesbaden were grounded for an hour yesterday while a 25-year-old airman took an aerial joyride.

The Air Force said Airman First Class Thomas H. Smith, a flight engineer from Sitka, Alaska, took the controls of a twin-engine C-47 and made off without clearance.

Officials said all military and commercial aircraft in the area were immediately notified and Wiesbaden and Rhine-Main bases grounded all their planes.

Capt. Jack A. Griffith of Marysville, Ohio, an instructor pilot, made radio contact with Smith and persuaded him to return to Wiesbaden.

Air Force officials said Griffith expertly guided the runaway back to his home base "where Smith made an acceptable landing without damage to the aircraft."

Smith was taken to a hospital for observation.

RADIO TELESCOPE GETS 2 TYPES OF VENUS SIGNALS

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 26 (AP)—An Ohio State University radio astronomer has received two distinctly different signals from the planet Venus in the last five months using a radio telescope.

Dr. John D. Kraus believes the first sound—a crackling noise—may have come from a Venusian thunderstorm.

But the second sound—a long sustained buzz "like the dash of the Morse code dot and dash"—is more of a mystery.

Dr. Kraus declined to speculate as to the origin of the signal. He adds, however, that "whatever phenomenon is responsible must be of a rather complex type."

Not much is known about Venus, even though it is called the Earth's twin and is nearer to us than any other planet. It is constantly covered with clouds which block the vision of even the most powerful optical telescopes.

Fares Hiked, Buses Stoned. LIMA, June 26 (AP)—Demonstrating Peruvians stoned street cars and buses last night as a protest against an increase in fares in the near-by port city of Callao, two buses were burned by a mob. Police fired rifles in the air to break up the rioting.

Man Who Hated Withholding Tax Refused to Cash His Pay Checks

BOSTON, June 26 (AP)—William F. Bowes, retired state engineer, left state auditors with an acute accounting headache when he died last September in his early 70s, it became apparent yesterday.

Bowes had refused to accept paychecks from which withholding taxes had been deducted. He circumvented the tax laws to a degree by taking

HIS WIFE SHOT TO DEATH BY POLICE

Officers Say Retired
City Watchman Rushed Them With Knife, Hammer.

John Meyer, a retired city watchman, was shot and killed today by police after he had been beaten and slashed his wife to death at their home, 332 East Carrie avenue.

Sgt. George Kern and Probationary Patrolman Vincent Schauwacker, Ruskin Avenue District, reported they fired at close range when Meyer rushed at them with a knife and a hammer after shouting he would kill them. Police were told that Meyer, 71 years old, had been treated for hardening of the arteries and had appeared mentally disturbed.

Sgt. Kern and Schauwacker, who went to the house in response to a telephone call, were met outside by Mrs. Olive Julemberg and Mrs. Edward Buxbaum, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Meyer.

Heard Mother Scream. Mrs. Buxbaum, of 336 East Carrie avenue, told the officers she had heard her mother screaming, "Oh Jack, don't do that." Mrs. Julemberg, of 342 East Carrie, had called police.

The policemen entered the rear of the Meyer home. Mrs. Meyer, 70 years old, was on the kitchen floor. Her husband, described as a tall, powerfully built man, knelt over her, slashing his wife's throat with a pocket knife and battering her head with a hammer. He also struck himself repeatedly blows on the head with the hammer, the officers reported.

On observing the policemen, Meyer shouted, "Get out, or I'll kill you," the officers said. He then got to his feet and advanced toward the officers.

"I drew my revolver and warned him not to rush us, or we would be forced to shoot," Kern told a reporter. "He stopped and retreated a few steps, then came on again with a rush. He had the hammer raised, and slashed at me with the knife."

Each Fire One Shot. Each officer fired one shot, the bullets striking Meyer in the head and in the chest. He collapsed on the kitchen floor. Mr. and Mrs. Meyer were pronounced dead at Homer G. Phillips Hospital.

Blood stains in the house indicated that Meyer had pursued his wife, Lottie, through several rooms before striking her down. Mrs. Buxbaum told police she had discussed her father's condition with her mother last night. She quoted her mother as saying she was not afraid, "because he has gotten rid of his guns."

Meyer, formerly a carpenter, had been a watchman at the Water Division's Chain-of-Rocks plant. He owned several revolvers, but had disposed of the weapons.

The daughters said their father had refused to see his physician recently and had become suspicious and ill-tempered. An inquest will be conducted in the deaths.

Lucius House, who has been arrested twice for driving his automobile after the Department of Revenue suspended his license for failure to post bond to cover costs of an accident, was fined $50 and sentenced to 30 days in the Workhouse by Provisional Judge William C. Lochmoecker of the court of criminal correction.

House, a Negro living in the 2600 block of Howard street, was fined $50 and sentenced to 60 days in the Workhouse last May 16 for operating his automobile without a driver's license or auto license, but was paroled from the jail term.

Judge Lochmoecker revoked the parole and ordered House, a livestock handler, to serve a total of 90 days.

Harvey L. Clark, Negro, a chauffeur living in the 4500 block of St. Louis avenue, was fined $50 by Judge Lochmoecker for failure to post bonds to cover automobile accidents in which he was involved last Jan. 12 and March 14.

POLICE ACCUSER IS CHARGED WITH TRYING TO BRIBE

Kirkwood Business Man
Alleging Brutality
Named in Warrant
After Meeting in Lawyer's Office.

Warrants charging Kenneth W. Connor, Kirkwood business man, with attempting to bribe two state's witnesses so that they would not testify in a case growing out of a police brutality investigation were issued today by Magistrate Leslie T. Lewis at Clayton.

The warrants were issued on an information filed by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Donald Lasater after Connor was arrested earlier today. The warrants charge that Connor attempted to bribe witnesses Myrl Taylor and Donald Marquitz to absent themselves and avoid a subpoena, and to withhold evidence in an assault case against J. Warren Bradshaw, former Kirkwood policeman.

Bradshaw is under indictment by a St. Louis county grand jury for the alleged beating of Taylor and Marquitz at the Kirkwood police station where the two men were being held for investigation.

Connor Accused Police. Bradshaw had told authorities that Connor, who last April brought charges of brutality against Kirkwood police, had approached him about the beating case.

Connor was taken into custody following a meeting yesterday at a Clayton attorney's office at which he was reported to have offered to pay $100 a trip out of town "to finance a trip out of town" for the witnesses against Bradshaw in return for "information about the Kirkwood police department."

The conversation was overheard by two assistant prosecuting attorneys in an adjoining room.

Although the state statute under which Connor is charged describes the offense of attempted bribery as a misdemeanor, it fixes the punishment upon conviction at a fine of $100 or up to two years imprisonment in the state penitentiary.

After issuance of the warrants, Connor was booked and released on bonds of $1000 on each charge. A hearing was set for next Tuesday before Magistrate Lewis.

Neighbor Listens In. Bradshaw, who lives in Des Peres, told the prosecuting attorney that about a month ago Connor asked to see him "about the police department."

A meeting was arranged at Bradshaw's home, with a neighbor listening through an air duct in the basement.

Connor, it was reported, offered to keep the two witnesses from testifying about the alleged beating, if Bradshaw would reveal all he knew about Kirkwood police matters.

Bradshaw said he made an appointment with Connor, who was an unsuccessful candidate for city councilman this spring. Connor was especially interested in obtaining information about Kirkwood Police Chief Kenneth Peek. Bradshaw said, Bradshaw reported to Peek, and was planned to make a false record of a "man slugging" case against Peek available to Bradshaw.

Connor heard of the plan, and accused Bradshaw of "double-crossing me," Bradshaw reported. However, two weeks ago Connor is reported to have called Bradshaw again, and the meeting in the office of Charles M. Shaw, a lawyer, was set up for yesterday.

RESPONSIBILITY

A campaign to prosecute motorists for evading the state drivers' financial responsibility law was announced today by Associate Prosecuting Attorney Jasper Vetter after one man was sentenced to jail and another fined in cases involving the law.

Lucius House, who has been arrested twice for driving his automobile after the Department of Revenue suspended his license for failure to post bond to cover costs of an accident, was fined $50 and sentenced to 30 days in the Workhouse by Provisional Judge William C. CONGRESS OK'S
BUILDING BILL

President Expected to Sign Promptly—Will Be Financed by Tax
Hike on Gas, Tires, Trucks.

WASHINGTON, June 26 (UP)—Congress approved and sent to the White House today a compromise 33-billion-dollar highway construction bill.

The measure contains authority to sign the bill promptly. The House approved the bill first by voice vote without a "nay" being heard. The Senate vote was 89 to 1. Senator Russell B. Long (Dem.), Louisiana, cast the only opposing vote.

The measure contains authority to start work on a 41,000-mile interstate superhighway network and provides for tax increases on gasoline, tires and trucks to help pay for it. The House and Senate passed differing versions of the highway legislation earlier. The revised bill is one which compromises their differences.

Of the $32,900,000,000 total authorization in the bill, $27,500,000,000 would be spent for an interstate network of roads to link most state capitals by 1969. The federal government would pay 90 per cent of the costs of $24,800,000,000.

Taxes on gasoline would be raised one cent a gallon. Tires would be taxed an extra three cents a pound and an extra 2 per cent would be added to the taxes on the price of trucks, buses and trailers. The taxes would take effect next Sunday.

The average motorist—one who drives 10,000 miles a year—would be taxed an extra 10 cents under the bill. But it was estimated that he would save one penny a mile for every mile he travels on the new superhighways.

The bill also carries authority to build $5,100,000,000 worth of primary and secondary roads over the next three years. The cost of these roads would be split evenly by the federal and state governments.

The House and the Senate had disagreed over the method of distributing the money for the interstate system among the states.

Their conferees reached a compromise whereby for the first three years the regular formula of regular federal aid to roads—based on population, area and rural road mileage—would be followed.

For the remaining 10 years of the program the states would get what they need to complete their sections of the interstate system.

Representative George H. Fallon (Dem.), Maryland, author of the measure, described it this way: "Through the provisions of this bill, the American people will ride safely upon many thousands of miles of broad, straight, trouble-free roads, four to eight lanes wide, criss-crossing America from coast to coast and border to border."

Completion of the system will mean six-lane roads leading in and out of every city with 100,000 population or more, and by-passes around 50 of the nation's largest cities. Some large cities will have inner-loop expressways to speed local traffic.

U.S. PAIR MAKES FIRST PRIVATE AIR
TRIP TO MOSCOW

MOSCOW, June 26 (UP)—An American business man and his wife arrived today on the first private plane, pleasure flight from Berlin to Moscow since World War II.

William P. Lear, inventor and manufacturer of automatic pilots for aircraft, landed in his twin-engine Cessna 310 at Vnukovo airport after an 8½-hour flight from Berlin.

Lear, who makes his home at Pacific Palisades, Calif., and has an office in Geneva, started from Tempelhof Air Field in the western sector of Berlin. He stopped briefly at Schoenefeld airport in East Berlin to pick up a Soviet navigator.

"I just asked for permission and I got it, Lear said before taking off.

Lear was the first private pilot to fly into Berlin from the West since the war, he got his visa at East Berlin's Soviet Embassy in a record 20 days, and he was the first American private pilot to land at the Soviet airfield in Berlin.

Lear and his wife started for Moscow last Friday but brake failure forced postponement until today.

SOME HAWAIIANS GRUMBLE, MISS HAWAII CAN'T HULA

HONOLULU, June 26 (UP)—A Texas-born California girl has been chosen as Hawaii's representative to the Miss America contest. Some Hawaiians grumbled over the selection of Jeri Wright, saying she can't even hula.

Miss Wright, 20 years old, was chosen Miss Hawaii at the 49th State Fair on Saturday night. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Wright of Los Angeles. She attends the University of Hawaii.

Jeri is the first Caucasian ever chosen to be Miss Hawaii.

Senate Committee Won't Permit Competition With Army—Nike System Gets Green Light.

WASHINGTON, June 26 (UP)

—The Senate Armed Services Committee today blocked Air Force attempts to compete with the Army in setting up an anti-aircraft guided missile system.

The committee rejected an Air Force request for $16,250,000 to set up four bases in the country for its anti-aircraft missile Talos. At the same time, the committee gave the Army a go-ahead to expand its Nike anti-aircraft missile system.

Talos and Nike have become focal points in a controversy over the respective roles of the Army and the Air Force in the defense of the United States. The Army has accused the Air Force of invading its anti-aircraft role by moving to set up Talos installations.

The committee criticized the "overlapping roles and missions" of the Army and Air Force in anti-aircraft and continuing defense. It called on the Defense Department "to quickly and positively clarify the specific responsibility of each service."

The committee said that "unless concise responsibilities are assigned, duplication of weapon systems costing in the anti-aircraft dollar range might result, and that such duplication would obviously be too costly as well as inexcusable from a military standpoint."

The committee said no Talos installation should be authorized until the "relative merits" of the Talos and Nike systems have been "positively tested" and the "roles and missions clarified."

The committee suggested that "an impartial board" test and evaluate the two systems. The committee stepped into the Nike-Talos controversy in approving a $2,100,000 military construction bill. This authorizes expansion or construction of some 2800 military bases throughout the world. The program includes facilities for speed development of ballistic missiles and an atomic-powered airplane.

BRIDGES' EFFORT
IS DEFEATED BY 47 TO 42 VOTE

Action Paves Way for Likely Acceptance of Amended Democratic
Plan to Add Nearly a Billion.

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—The Senate defeated today a Republican effort to hold a boost in the Air Force funds to $500,000,000 above President Eisenhower's budget.

This cleared the way for prospective later approval of the addition of nearly a billion dollars to requests by the White House and Defense Department for air power funds. The bigger sum has been pushed chiefly by Democrats.

Senator Styles Bridges (Rep.), sought to limit the boost to $500,000,000. His move lost 47-42.

The Democrats had pending an amendment to the defense appropriations bill for an increase of $912,625,000 over presidential request for the Air Force.

They had cut back their proposal by $200,000,000 because these funds were in another bill.

Senator Dennis Chavez (Dem.), New Mexico, floor manager for the 35-billion-dollar defense bill made the move.

Construction Excluded. He and other Democrats had included $200,000,000 for construction of air bases and other facilities in their proposed increase of $1,112,625,000 over the President's budget and of $1,300,000,000 over the funds voted by the House.

But the Senate Armed Services Committee approved today an authorization bill for these construction projects so Chavez knocked the $200,000,000 out of the proposed amendment to the defense bill.

At a Senate hearing, meanwhile, Secretary of the Air Force Quarles said this nation's fleet of more than 1000 medium jet B-47 bombers "constitutes the most powerful striking force on earth."

And three years from now in 1959, Quarles said, this fleet "with tanker support will remain the largest force of intercontinental bombers in the active inventory of any country."

Quarles stoutly defended the Air Force budget of the Eisenhower Administration in an unusual public appearance before a Senate subcommittee a few hours before the Senate was expected to reach showdown votes on this heated political issue.

Quarles appeared before a Special Committee on Defense subcommittee that has been investigating relative United States-Soviet air power.

In a prepared statement, Quarles conceded that he had asked for more than 19 billion dollars for the fiscal year starting in 1957. He had been reduced $2,800,000,000 by Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson and President Eisenhower.

But Quarles insisted that the actual reduction, after transfer and other bookkeeping operations, amounted to only $286,000,000. This, he said, "is less than 2 per cent of the original request."

"Moderately Inferior." Quarles said the existing medium jet B-47 bomber "provides a practical performance characteristics over the target which are only moderately inferior to those of the Bear or Bison type bombers." The Bear and Bison are United States code names

TWING VISITS SOVIET AIRCRAFT DESIGN ACADEMY; PRESS IS BARRED

General Assesses Quality Is Good but Won't Generalize on Relative Strength of U.S., Red Forces.

By HENRY SHAPIRO

MOSCOW, June 26 (UP)—United States Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Nathan Twining today saw Russian scientists test jet engines and teach the students who will design new warplanes. He called it the "best day I've had so far" on his tour of Soviet air installations.

Twining and aviation experts from 28 other countries visited the Zhukovsky Air Engineering Academy and saw jet engines, both in their final state and in cutaway sections. They also saw detailed work being done in engine fatigue tests and on aerodynamics problems. It appeared to newsmen that the visiting airmen were receiving considerable information about Russia's air strength both in their inspection tours and in informal conversations with Soviet air officials.

The visitors were told that all students at the academy are military officers. Among other things, the academy gives a five-year course in aeronautical engineering.

Twining said afterward that this was "the best day I've had so far" on the tour which began last Saturday.

Twining said the academy, with 2000 students, is a well-balanced institution giving both theoretical and practical training.

The foreign airmen saw work being done on meteorological problems and on the firing system of bombers, which Twining described as "very good."

Engines, Weapons Good. He said the Soviets displayed good fire control equipment, weapons and engines.

"It's a fine institution," the United States Air Chief said.

"The Russians don't go overboard on either theory or practice but balance both. We Americans achieve the same thing by other means."

Among other things, the visitors saw cutaway parts of MIG-19 jets and IL-28 bombers. They also saw three supersonic wind tunnels and three low-speed wind tunnels, Twining said.

Newsmen were not permitted to enter the academy with the visitors on the ground that it was a "strictly military show."

The academy was named after the late Prof. Nikolai Zhukovsky who is listed in the Soviet encyclopedia as the "founder of modern hydro and aerodynamics."

Visit to Soccer Match. The school is located within the Moscow city limits. After lunch with faculty members, Twining and his group returned to the plush Sovetskaya hotel.

The American delegation, including six Air Force generals, will remain in Russia until Sunday when it leaves for the United States Air Force base in Wiesbaden, Germany.

Twining and his aides will co-ordinate their observations there for the Pentagon and for President Eisenhower. He indicated the President would pass on some of his findings to the American public.

The Russians have managed to unveil a new plane or planes on each day of Twining's visit. Sunday they displayed seven new jets. Yesterday they showed Twining three new planes including a supersonic ground attack jet bomber.

The jet bomber was displayed at Kubinka fighter base, 50 miles from Moscow, one of the ring of fighter bases protecting the Soviet capital.

Observers said today the inspection of Kubinka was "the closest view anyone of the West so far has had of the Soviet Union's air power."

Describes Light Bomber. Twining, after looking at the Soviet bomber which the Russians say flies faster than sound said it was a twin-engine, light attack bomber. He thought it probably was a bit smaller than Britain's B-57 Canberra jet bomber, but British visitors said it looked a little larger than the Canberra.

The foreign military men were told the new bomber had never been shown before. It was not in the annual Soviet air show Sunday for which Twining came to Russia.

The United States Air Force does not yet have such a supersonic bomber. The speed of sound varies from 760 miles an hour at sea level to about 663 miles an hour at altitudes above 35,000 feet.

The visiting officers toured the Kubinka air base in jeeps, making only one stop while viewing more than 100 planes.

The stop came when Twining was invited by Air Marshal Pavel Zhigarev, Soviet air force chief, and Marshal Sergei Rudenko, Soviet air force chief of staff, to make a close inspection of the new TU-104 jet transport. The United States officer was the only member of the party invited to enter the plane. He said the transport appeared to have the general design and wings of a Badger jet bomber, but still was a new plane.

The TU-104 was the plane which caused a furore when it visited Britain just prior to the visit there of Premier Bulganin and Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev.

Wear 'Street Clothes' — 'Going to Wash Face and See Queen,' Mis-sourian Says.

LONDON, June 26 (INS) — Harry S. Truman and his wife drove to Buckingham palace today for lunch with Queen Elizabeth and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh.

It is customary for luncheon visitors at the palace to wear morning dress, but the Trumans were specially instructed to wear "street clothes."

The former President and Mrs. Truman did some impromptu sightseeing in the morning, visiting St. Paul's Cathedral and Westminster Abbey.

Questioned what he would do next Truman grinned and said, "I'm going back to the hotel, wash my face, and go see the queen."

By the Associated Press. On his tour of the cathedrals Truman visited the tombs of the Duke of Wellington, Lord Nelson, Charles Dickens, Prime Minister Gladstone and others. Observing their epitaphs the former President remarked that he wanted a short one.

"Yes, sir," he said to reporters, "I want them to put on mine 'He done his damndest.'"

At the historic abbey Truman stared down at the cold, stone floor and commented:

"Frankly, I'd rather be under the ground than under a stone floor like this. It would be a lot easier to get out when the great horn blows."

Truman stood silently for several minutes before a tablet in St. Paul's erected to an American airman, William Meade Lindsay Fiske III. A guide explained that Fiske, serving with the Royal Air Force, was the first United States officer to lose his life in Britain in World War II. He was killed Aug. 6, 1940.

Truman started his day with an early walk along the River Thames during which not a Londoner recognized him. "It's inevitable," he laughed. "They're just forgetting me, I suppose."

After a time he began stopping people and talking to them—"not very profound" conversation about the weather and the river mostly, he said.

lack plane which both the British and Americans described as "looking like a Christmas tree." They meant that it had so much "hung on it" in the form of bomb and torpedo racks and other equipment. This plane's single engine drove two counter-rotating propellers. Its function, as described by Soviet officers, was "to attack targets on and under the sea."

HELL'S CANYON DAM APPROVED BY HOUSE GROUP

Interior Committee Vote Is 15 to 13 — Bill Awaits Clearance by Rules Unit.

By RICHARD DUDMAN

A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 26—The controversial Hell's Canyon bill was approved today by the House Interior Committee, where Republicans had blocked action last week by staging a walkout.

The vote was 15 to 13. Representative J. Edgar Chenoweth (Rep.), Colorado, voted with 14 Democrats to report the bill out. Representative George A. Shuford (Dem.), North Carolina, voted with 12 Republicans to oppose it.

The measure for a high federal dam on the Snake river goes to the House Rules Committee, which must approve it before it can go to the House floor for debate. It already has been cleared for debate in the Senate.

Approval by the Rules Committee was predicted by Representative Edith Green (Dem.), Oregon, a leader in the fight for the huge public power, irrigation and flood-control project.

Chairman Howard K. Smith (Dem.), Virginia, of the Rules Committee acknowledged that the committee probably would approve the bill, even though he personally is against it.

He said he was against "this crooked little deal" in which some Republicans have agreed to support Hell's Canyon if the Democrats will vote for the Frying Pan-Arkansas project in Colorado.

"If the Democrats and Republicans agree to scratch each other's backs, there's nothing I can do about it," Smith told the Post-Dispatch.

Chenoweth has acknowledged that he changed sides on the Hell's Canyon issue in exchange for Democratic assurance of help in getting the Frying Pan-Arkansas bill out of the Rules Committee.

Four of the five Republicans who had walked out last week and prevented a quorum were present today and voted against the bill. They were A. L. Miller of Nebraska, James B. Utt of California, William A. Dawson of Utah and Jack Westland of Washington. The fifth, Craig Hosmer of California, voted no by proxy.

SUPREME COURT PLAYED BY THREE BITTER SENATORS

Mundt, McCarthy, Eastland Charge Tribunal Makes 'Pro-Communist' Decisions.

By EDWARD F. WOODS

A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 26—The United States Supreme Court came under bitter attack today by three Senators who accused the majority of the high tribunal of handing down one "pro-Communist" decision after another.

Participating were Senators Karl E. Mundt of South Dakota and Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin, Republicans, and James O. Eastland of Mississippi, a Democrat.

Eastland and McCarthy were the most bitter in their denunciation, agreeing with each other that there was no way of explaining some of the court's recent decisions except that the justices were incompetent or that there were Communist influences working within the court.

The setting for the attack was a hearing conducted by Eastland before the Senate Internal Security subcommittee, of which the Mississippian is chairman, on three bills intended to upset a 6-to-3 ruling by the court on June 11 that the right of the Government to fire employees summarily as security risks applied only to persons holding so-called "sensitive" positions.

The bills, written by Mundt, McCarthy and Eastland, would extend the summary suspension procedure to all Government employees, whether they held sensitive or non-sensitive positions.

"Usurpation of Power." The three Senators agreed wholeheartedly with the thesis propounded by Eastland that the Supreme Court majority "went far beyond its constitutional powers in concealing its own version of the intention of Congress" in its June 11 decision and that action by Congress was necessary to "counteract partially this high-handed usurpation of power and negation of the legislative wishes of Congress."

As the Senators warmed up to their subject, however, they became increasingly vehement about the court, and Eastland and McCarthy paid particular attention to Chief Justice Earl Warren, an appointee of President Eisenhower.

McCarthy has been bitterly critical of Warren since he wrote the court opinion that the Federal Power Commission

U.N. Council Rejects Soviet Plea To Put Off Algeria Discussion

Action in Security Body Follows French Efforts to Bar Consideration of Conflict.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., June 26 (AP)—The United Nations Security Council today rejected a surprise Soviet proposal that it postpone indefinitely any discussion of the 19-month-old Algerian conflict.

The vote came after France called for an immediate decision to bar all consideration of the Algerian problem in the 11-nation council. Informed quarters said France had enough support, including the United States and Britain, to keep the issue off the Council's agenda.

Only Russia voted in favor of an indefinite postponement. The United States, Britain, France, Belgium, Australia, Cuba and Peru voted against it. Iran, Yugoslavia and Nationalist China abstained.

The council meeting was called at the request of 13 Asian and Arab countries. They declared that the French-Algerian fighting was becoming worse and that urgent action was necessary.

In opposing putting the question on the agenda, French Delegate Herve Alphand asserted that "the French consider Algerian affairs lie wholly within the domestic competence of France."

Soviet Delegate Arkady A. Sobolev opened the session with should regulate the price of natural gas at the well-head, an affront to some of McCarthy's oil friends in Texas and elsewhere.

Eastland has been trying to ride Warren out of town on a rail since he delivered the opinion outlawing racial segregation in public schools.

Security Decisions. Mundt has been denouncing the court because of several decisions in which it took the position that the Government was overstepping constitutional limits in the enforcement of its security program.

McCarthy, appearing as a witness, said that the court "has sunk to a new low, especially since Warren took over."

"It has handed down one pro-Communist decision after another," Eastland commented. "You're so right," McCarthy said.

"What explanation is there for these decisions except that some Communist influence is working within the court?" Eastland asked.

"The explanation is either incompetence or the influence you mention," McCarthy replied.

As the exchange between McCarthy and Eastland continued, the Senators found themselves in agreement that Warren was a hero of the Communists for, as they put it, taking the posi-

FLANDERS URGES BONN OPEN UNITY TALKS WITH REDS

Wants Adenauer to Ask Russia to Release East Zone in Trade for Neutral Germany.

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—Senator Flanders (Rep.) of Vermont proposed today that West Germany open direct negotiations with Moscow for German reunification.

He conceded in a speech prepared for the Senate that this was a "drastic" suggestion at direct variance with Eisenhower Administration policy.

Flanders proposed that Chancellor Adenauer of West Germany be encouraged to ask Russia to release puppet East Germany in exchange "for a united Germany which agrees to be unarmed and neutral, but is otherwise free."

Flanders said it "may seem strange" to advocate such a course close on the heels of Adenauer's Washington visit in which German rearmament and reunification were reaffirmed as prime goals of the two countries. Adenauer also pledged anew that he would not discuss reunification with Moscow unless the United States, Britain and France also took part in the talks.

Flanders declared rearmament and reunion are "practically incompatible." Also, he said, German rearmament "does not fit into the aspirations of the German people" and "it does arouse the fears of our allies."

"Why did we ever believe that the Soviet government could be persuaded to release East Germany to a rearmored Western Germany?" Flanders asked. "Russia fears a rearmored enemy, and nothing we can say or do will remove that fear so long as we are pressing rearmament."

Flanders said that as early as September 1954 he suggested "the usefulness of an unarmed, neutral, reunited Germany." But when he broached the idea to the State Department, he said, "I found our rearmament policy so firmly entrenched that it could not be reconsidered."

Flanders proposed that the Soviets "withdraw completely from East Germany as we withdraw from the West," and he added: "The terms of union must be left to the freely elected representatives of East and West Germany."

TUCKER URGES ALDERMEN TO EXTEND SESSION TO PASS 6 BILLS

Measure for Downtown Parking Garages Included—Time Too Short Before Friday Deadline.

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker urged the Board of Aldermen today to consider extending its session beyond Friday in order to take final action on six pending bills, including measures needed for establishment of two municipal parking garages in the downtown area.

In a letter to Donald Gunn, president of the board, the Mayor pointed out that the aldermen could not take action on some of the pending bills by Friday, the date set for summer recess, because the measures could not have the required three readings this week.

Termining the proposed ordinance "urgent," Mayor Tucker said the board should "seriously consider remaining in session so that these measures may be given the necessary readings and so that the aldermen may be given additional time to study the important issues involved."

Uncertain of Support.

Gunn said the Mayor requested that the session be extended would have to be given consideration, but added that he did not know whether he was in favor of it.

One of the municipal parking garage bills would provide for condemnation of land in the block bounded by Chestnut, Pine and Sixth streets and Broadway. A five-story garage with a capacity of 823 automobiles is proposed for the site at a cost of about $2,700,000.

The other bill would authorize condemnation of most of the land in the block bounded by Delmar boulevard, Lucas avenue, and Eighth and Ninth streets. A garage is proposed for the area which would accommodate 642 cars at an approximate cost of $1,800,000.

A public hearing on the bills was held last Friday by the aldermanic zoning committee. The measures were strongly supported by the Mayor and a delegation of business men and merchants, and were opposed by operators of private parking lots and another merchants' group.

Rat Control Bill.

Other bills on which Mayor Tucker said he hoped the aldermen would take final action included a measure to give the City Health Commissioner discretionary powers in enforcing the rat-control program.

Three other bills mentioned by the Mayor would appropriate $70,000 to relocate some sewers in the southwestern part of Forest Park; appropriate $48,690 to relocate and build utility poles and cables in the Plaza area, and give the city power to license operators of private parking lots and garages.

SKATING RINK CONTRACTS FOR $802,502 AWARDED

Contracts totaling $802,502 for construction of the Steinberg Memorial skating rink in Forest Park were awarded today by the Board of Public Service. The city's estimated cost of the project was $900,000.

Low bidders who received the contracts are Paulus Construction Co., general construction, $443,819; Shure-Richardson Co., refrigeration, heating and ventilating, $249,593; Hampton Electric Co., electrical installations, $60,740; and E. J. Fischer Plumbing Co., plumbing and drainage work, $46,350.

The year-round rink will provide outdoor ice skating in the winter and roller skating in the warmer months. Two-thirds of the costs will be paid by the estate of the late Mark C. Steinberg, and the rest from municipal bond and revenue funds.

Navy Corpsman Halts Bleeding Of Youth Hurt in Fall in Park

JERRY AKINS with his mother, MRS. MABEL BERTELS.

Makes Use of Training, Fashioning Tourniquet—Victim's Condition Serious.

Donald Catanzaro, a Navy hospital corpsman home on furlough, put his service training to good use, making a tourniquet that stopped the bleeding from an artery severed by an accident to 14-year-old Jerry Akins yesterday in Forest Park.

Akins suffered a 14-inch gash in his right leg when he fell into a canal he was walking beside with friends. A piece of broken glass apparently inflicted the wound, in his right thigh.

Catanzaro, of 4102A McRee avenue, playing golf nearby, heard the boy and his companions cry for help. At first he thought they were only playing, but decided to investigate the calls when they were repeated. He fashioned a tourniquet from a handkerchief to stop the se-

The boy, son of Mrs. Mabel Bertels, 1253A Delaware avenue, Wellston, was taken to City Hospital for treatment and later transferred to Park Lane Hospital. His condition was described as serious.

PICKET LINE HALTS BUSCH BOTTLERS

Cabinet Workers Involved in Pay Dispute—Other Crafts at Work.

Union beer bottlers employed by Anheuser-Busch, Inc., today refused to cross picket lines established by 260 cabinet workers, members of the same international AFL-CIO union, who walked out last night in a contract dispute with the brewery.

A company spokesman said members of other crafts, including brewers, building trades and truck drivers, were working and regular deliveries of beer were being made.

Charles Roddy, president of Local 193, Brewery Refrigerator Cabinet Workers, said the walk-out was in support of wage demands, which have not been achieved through negotiations. The company recently signed a new wage contract with production workers, granting increases of 12 cents an hour the first year and a similar increase the second year of a two-year agreement, it was reported.

Not included in the settlement were laboratory technicians and the cabinet shop employees, who were still negotiating.

Twenty pickets were posted at the plant, and Roddy said it was his plan to confine picketing to the cabinet shop. However, the bottlers refused to cross the lines on the night shift and again at 7 a.m. today.

Roddy declined to discuss details of the wage dispute. Local 193 and Bottlers Local 187 are affiliated with the International Union of United Brewery, Flour & Distillery Workers. Members of Brewers Local 6 are affiliated with the Teamsters organization.

SEWER DISTRICT ADOPTS BUDGET OF $2,549,054

Largest Item Allotted Is $1,617,604 for Maintenance—$158,000 Balance Expected

A budget of $2,549,054 for the fiscal year 1956-57 was adopted yesterday by the Metropolitan Sewer District board of trustees.

Largest single item in the budget was $1,617,604 for the maintenance department, which has been a major activity since the district took over full operation of area sewers Jan. 1.

The budget was adopted without discussion yesterday, but members of the board spent four hours in executive session a week ago going over every item "with a fine-tooth comb," William Q. Kehr, executive director of the district, said.

Other major items in the budget included: $240,987 for the construction department; $206,408 for the finance department; $196,515 for the department of the executive director, and $157,730 for the design department.

Anticipated revenue for the fiscal year is $2,552,558, with $2,061,000 of that amount expected to come from sewer service charges. The board expects to have a balance of $158,000 at the completion of the fiscal year at the end of next June.

"About $320,000 of the budget consists of items which are reimbursable because they are paid out in advance by the district for engineering work, legal expenses and for holding elections," Kehr said. He cited as an example an engineering firm which makes surveys for the district will later be reimbursed from bond issues.

The board also approved yesterday an ordinance calling for a $240,000 bond issue election in the North Affton subdivision. If approved, the funds would be used for construction of trunk sewers.

About 50 craft workers of the district were voted pay increases. Bricklayers received an increase from $3.45 an hour to $3.75; carpenters, $3.15 to $3.25; and equipment operators No. 4 from $3.22 to $3.32.

The board voted to retain the accounting firm of Ernst and Ernst to audit the district's books for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1956.

MAPLEWOOD REFUSES DANCE PERMIT AGAIN

The Maplewood City Council last night refused again a request to permit dancing in an ice cream parlor at 2910 Sutton boulevard.

Mrs. Charles A. Iggen, operator of the shop, made the request.

She said she wanted the permit for the teen-agers who frequent her establishment, believing it would help keep them off the streets. Mayor Sterling P. Davidson Jr. pointed out that the city currently sponsors a "Teen Town."

OFFICER DETAINS DEFIANT YOUTHS WITH SHOTGUN

Eight Boys Held Until Patrol Wagon Arrives After Refusal to Heed Police Order.

A policeman detained eight youths with a shotgun last night until a patrol wagon arrived to take them to Ruskin Avenue station to be booked suspected of creating a disturbance at a drive-in restaurant.

Patrolman John Rakonick took the shotgun from a police car after the youths defied his order to "move on," he said.

Police were called when four automobiles occupied by noisy, young men pulled up to the Steak 'n Shake restaurant at 9009 Riverview drive. The manager, noting they were the same group that had caused disturbances previously, ordered his carhops not to serve them.

When Rakonick and two other policemen ordered the youths to get into their automobiles and depart, they drove to a point about 300 feet from the restaurant and again aligned.

Police told them to "move on," but Rakonick reported that Robert A. Murray, 19 years old, described as leader of the group, said: "Do you think you can make me?"

"I'm going to have to," the policeman replied, getting out of the scout car with the shotgun.

When the defiant youths held their ground, Rakonick lined them up and detained them for several minutes until the patrol wagon arrived.

Those arrested besides Murray, a body finisher living in the 1900 block of Switzer avenue, Jennings, gave their names as:

Kenneth L. Gervais, 20, a cleaner, 3900 block of North Twenty-fifth street; Frank and Thomas Arcobaso, brothers, 4600 block of Cottage avenue; Francis A. Doran, student, 700 block of Belt avenue; Robert N. Doran, 18, laborer, 2600 block of North Spring avenue; Joseph J. Gripe, 20, of the 5600 block of Nottingham avenue; and Frederick M. Dolde Jr., 18, laborer, 5000 block of Arlington avenue.

William J. Kilcullen, a foreman in the city's traffic division, was beaten and robbed by four teen-agers at 3 a.m. today as he was waiting for a Public Service Co. bus at Park and Ohio avenues.

He said four boys about 15 to 16 years old pulled up in an automobile and asked him for "a light." When he said he had no matches, they jumped out, struck him with their fists and knocked him down. His wallet containing $6 and a wristwatch valued at $75 were taken. Kilcullen, who lives at 3116A North Sarah street, declined medical attention.

OVERLAND INDORSES F.C.C. MOVES TO END WATER FLUORIDATION TV CHANNEL MIXTURE

Municipality is 28th to Back Measure—Others Expected to Act.

A resolution approving fluoridation of the St. Louis county water supply was passed last night by the Overland Board of Aldermen. This brings to 28 the number of county municipalities which have endorsed fluoridation, Ray McCarthy, chairman of the St. Louis County League for Fluoridation, said.

The Overland recommendation was sent to the County Council for its consideration. Since the water company serves nearly all 96 municipalities in the county, more endorsements were believed to be necessary.

The fluoridation group hopes to obtain a directive from the Missouri Public Service Commission authorizing fluoridation as a dental health measure. Kirkwood and Valley Park, however, have their own water supplies and can act at their own discretion.

Also at yesterday's meeting a resolution was adopted for the appointment of a 24-man commission to investigate the city's government and to plan for future progress.

The group would determine whether home rule would be the best possible solution and, if so, would recommend a board of freeholders to draft a city charter.

Proposed by Alderman Bob Parkin from the Fourth Ward, the resolution stipulates that aldermen from each of the city's four wards submit the names of three men to compose the commission. These names were to be proposed by July 23 for the approval of Mayor Mort Jacobs.

F.C.C. MOVES TO END TV CHANNEL MIXTURE

Plan Would Affect UHF and VHF Stations in Score of Cities.

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—The Federal Communications Commission today moved to end the mixture of UHF and VHF television channels in a score of cities. It also charted a course toward possible long-term shift of all, or a major portion of, TV to the ultra high frequency (UHF) channels, numbered 14 through 83.

The commission said it made no "final determination on a UHF shift, but invited comment on the possibility—to be submitted by Oct. 1.

The plan would involve a lengthy transition period, possibly over 10 years. During that period FCC suggested very high frequency (VHF) stations now operating on channels numbered 2 through 13 might be required to broadcast on both VHF and UHF channels.

UHF stations have encountered major difficulties in competing with VHF stations.

As a further step toward stimulating UHF operations, the commission today authorized maximum power of 5000 kilowatts for UHF outlets effective Aug. 1. The present maximum is 1000 kilowatts.

The FCC also called for an immediate and broad program of research and development designed to bring UHF telecasting quality up to the VHF standard.

Senate Group Favors Site in Michigan Opposed by Hartley Comfort.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, June 26—The Senate Armed Services Committee voted today to build a jet fighter base at Kalkaska, Mich.—a move that has been strongly opposed by Hartley B. Comfort of St. Louis, who has a summer home there.

Meanwhile, Representative Ruth Thompson (Rep.), Michigan, who previously reported she had been offered a $1000 bribe to help get the jet base built in Cadillac, said last night the offer was made on the floor of the House in 1954.

She told a Kiwanis Club at Cadillac she reported the incident to Representative Joseph W. Martin Jr., then Speaker of the House, but "he told me to forget it—or the less said the better."

Asked whether the bribe offer came from another member of Congress, Miss Thompson said, "I do not wish to commit myself on that point at this time." However, she said the offer was made by someone who had House floor privileges.

The Air Force had selected Kalkaska for the controversial jet air base, but the House on April 11 approved Manistee county, which is in Miss Thompson's congressional district.

If today's committee action is upheld by the Senate, a Senate-House conference will be necessary to settle the two-year-old dispute. Kalkaska is in the district represented by Victor A. Knox, a Republican.

Knox called Comfort an "irresponsible obstructionist" because of his efforts to block building of the jet base at Kalkaska. He said Comfort, "with little regard for our national security, has undertaken methods of deceit and questionable influence in his selfish endeavor to maintain his sumptuous peace and tranquility."

Senator Charles E. Potter (Rep.), Michigan, said at a committee hearing that "I personally respect a man whose home is in Missouri injecting himself in the establishment of an air base in Michigan."

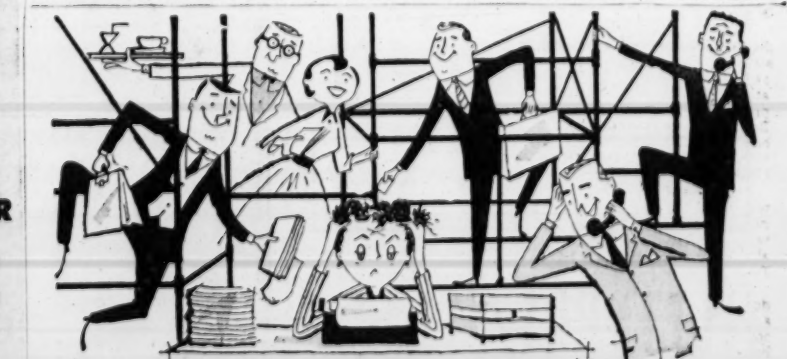

Comfort, president of Comfort Printing and Stationery Co. in St. Louis, was spokesman for a group of Kalkaska residents who want the base in Manistee county.

'No Doubt' Eisenhower Will Run Again, Knowland Says

Senator Also Believes Nixon Will Be on Ticket and That G.O.P. Will Win.

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—Senate Republican Leader Knowland said at the White House today there is "no doubt" that President Eisenhower will be a candidate for re-election.

The California Senator made the statement to reporters after a conference of G.O.P. congressional leaders and White House staff members.

He said, however, the question was not discussed at the conference and no word from the President on the matter had been received.

In response to other questions he said he believed that Vice President Nixon would again be on the ticket and that the ticket will be re-elected.

At Walter Reed Army Hospital, where the President is recovering from his June 8 operation, his physicians said his condition continues to progress satisfactorily and they expect him to start gaining some weight soon.

The President weighed 169 pounds when he entered the hospital, but has weighed 162 for several days.

Mr. Eisenhower is looking forward to discharge from the hospital Friday or Saturday. He plans to go to Gettysburg, Pa., to spend his fortieth wedding anniversary on Sunday with Mrs. Eisenhower at their farm home.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the doctors told him they are "satisfied that he (Mr. Eisenhower) is not losing weight, which could happen on these cases at this time of convalescence."

The physicians said, Hagerty reported, that the President at present is "on a plateau of weight"—a stage at which he is neither losing nor gaining.

"They say," Hagerty added, "that it is just a little matter of time until he starts gaining."

Hagerty said that so far as he knew the White House staff had no Government business to take up with Mr. Eisenhower today.

Retired Editor Dies.

ST. LOUIS INSURANCE MAN FREED IN CONTEMPT CASE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 26—William B. Landwehr of St. Louis, treasurer and principal stockholder in the Mid West Insurance Co. here, was released from Marion county jail yesterday after his attorney promised to have an accurate account of the firm's assets and liabilities filed in superior court by July 16.

Landwehr was jailed last Friday for contempt of court when he failed to file an affidavit showing the company's assets and liabilities as ordered to do by the court. A receivership suit was brought against the company after it allegedly failed to pay claims awarded by the courts.

BRITAIN SLASHES DEFENSE OUTLAY BY $141,000,000

Army Is Cut the Most, Air Force the Least — Civilian Budget Also Trimmed.

LONDON, June 26 (UP)—Britain today announced a $141,000,000 cutback in current defense spending.

The British army suffered the biggest reduction, the Royal Navy the second largest, and the Royal Air Force the least.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Harold Macmillan announced an overall $212,000,000 cut would be made in this year's government spending as part of an anti-inflation economy drive. Two-thirds of the savings will be in defense spending cuts amounting to $141,000,000, Macmillan said.

Defense spending before the announcement today was approximately $4,000,000,000.

Reductions were made in sums budgeted earlier for spending during the current year. Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden had ordered a search for economies and the announcement of spending cutbacks had been expected. Officials have predicted that British spending reductions will amount to one billion dollars or more in the next three to five years.

Interim Figure.

Macmillan called the cuts announced today an "interim" figure, "decisions taken by the Government up to the present date."

As a result of "good husbandry by the (armed) services," Macmillan said, "the Government found it possible to trim $47,000,000 from army spending, $30,800,000 from naval spending and $24,500,000 from Air Force expenditures."

Defense expenditures by civil departments were to be cut back $39,000,000 for the total defense cut.

The civil department cutbacks would mean a partial dismantling of the civil defense system of stockpiling strategic goods for emergency use in event of attack.

Orders Deferred.

The cuts were in line with Britain's previously expressed belief in a changing military situation in which the major deterrent to war would be the hydrogen and atomic bombs and the airpower needed to deliver them.

"In each case," Macmillan told Parliament, "the main savings arise from abandoning or deferring orders which otherwise would have been placed, from increasing use of existing stocks and expediting the disposal of surplus stocks."

"These savings do not reflect any change in the size or shape of our fighting forces."

"Any major decisions in this field would, of course, need to be taken after consultation with our allies."

COURT UPHOLDS DISMISSAL OF TEACHER OVER RED ISSUE

PHILADELPHIA, June 26 (AP)—The Pennsylvania Supreme Court in a 4-to-2 decision yesterday upheld the firing of a Philadelphia school teacher who refused to say whether he ever was a Communist.

Herman A. Beilan, former public school English instructor, was dismissed in January 1954 after he pleaded the Fifth Amendment when subpoenaed by a House subcommittee in November 1953.

Beilan was one of 26 Philadelphia teachers dismissed under similar circumstances.

B-47 CRASHES IN KANSAS, THREE CREWMEN KILLED

SALINA, Kan., June 26 (AP)—A B-47 bomber crashed and burned in a wheat field near Salina early today, killing a three-man crew. The plane, out of Smoky Hill Air Force Base here, was returning from a routine training mission when it apparently exploded, military authorities said. Wreckage was scattered a mile.

None of the victims was from the St. Louis area.

Several acres of wheat stubble were burned in the resulting fire around the site, and nearby telephone lines were reported damaged.

GIRL, 9, GETS HERO FATHER'S MEDAL FROM BRITISH QUEEN

LONDON, June 26 (UP)—Nine-year-old Susan Curtis received the Victoria Cross from Queen Elizabeth II today, on behalf of her father who was killed in Korea.

The ceremony took place in historic Hyde Park where a century ago Queen Victoria presented the first medal "for valor."

Susan's father, Lt. Phillip K. E. Curtis of the "Glorious Gloucesters," charged into a horde of Chinese Communists on a day in April, 1951, hurling grenades until he fell mortally wounded on the banks of the Imjin river.

JUBILEE BUILDINGS TO HAVE RE-USABLE STEEL JOISTS

Some of the longest steel joists made by the standard resistance process are being installed as part of the prefabricated buildings for the Mid-America Jubilee on the riverfront, Jubilee authorities announced today.

Weighing 800 pounds and measuring 56 feet in length, the trusses make possible wide roof spans and cantilever overhangs for the buildings. The Stran-Steel construction will permit the buildings to be dismantled after the Jubilee and stored for re-use later, it was pointed out.

The trusses were specially fabricated by Laclede Steel Co. of St. Louis. They also will be used in separate outdoor display structures on the exposition site. The Jubilee, to be an annual affair, will be held throughout September.

CASTILLO PLACES ARMY IN CONTROL OF GUATEMALA

State of Siege Follows Death of 4 Students Protesting Bar on Civil Liberties.

GUATEMALA CITY, June 26 (AP)—President Carlos Castillo Armas put the army in control of Guatemala today after demonstrations in which four students were killed.

The president declared a state of siege—modified form of martial law. The army, assuming control, asked the co-operation of the people to avoid further clashes.

The deaths came last night during student demonstrations on the capital's main street against a government crackdown on Communist agitation. In addition to the dead there were 17 wounded.

Police fired submachineguns and pistols into the ranks of several hundred students who were marching toward the Government Palace. About half the marchers were girls.

The students were protesting curtailment of civil liberties under a state of alarm imposed by the president on Sunday. The Government charged the students with spreading Communist propaganda.

Under the state of siege all constitutional guarantees were suspended for 30 days and military censorship was imposed. This was more severe than the state of alarm. A curfew was imposed from 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. and military patrols took over police activities.

All radio stations were seized by the Government which broadcast announcements saying its actions were "necessary to maintain order because of Communist agitation."

Censorship Ordered. Soon after last night's shooting, the government ordered censorship of news dispatches sent abroad.

The students marched defiantly from a meeting at the university after a government warning they would be "swept from the streets" if they attempted a demonstration.

A witness said a detachment of about 20 policemen ordered the marchers to halt.

"The police fired into the air," the witness reported. "The students kept coming, singing the national anthem."

"Police then started firing into the marchers, while police reinforcements rushed up."

Students Hide Behind Cars. "As soon as the firing started, the students ran to doorways and behind parked cars."

"Two squads of police walked to a group of students, firing on them from both sides. Some students fell, some held up their hands and were captured. I saw six boys fall."

Police blocked off the whole area. Ambulances sped through the streets for an hour afterward and scattered shots were heard in the midtown area.

There have been repeated disturbances in Guatemala since Castillo Armas overthrew the Communist-supported government of Jacobo Arbenz Guzman in 1954.

The government decreed the state of alarm after a rally Sunday at which leaflets were distributed demanding renunciation of Guatemala's mutual aid pact with the United States and an end to restrictions on Communist activities.

FERGUSON CHIEF TO RETIRE

Ferguson Police Chief Edward R. Schmidt announced today he will retire Saturday after 16 years on the force. He reached the compulsory retirement age of 70 two months ago. Before joining the Ferguson force, he had been a deputy sheriff and deputy constable in St. Louis county.

Schmidt is married, has a son and daughter and lives at 117 Wesley avenue, Ferguson. A successor has not been appointed yet.

FOUNDATION SHARES IN A. P. GREEN WILL

Charitable Trust Is Left 10 Pct. of His Stock in Brick Firm.

Under the will of the late A. P. Green, board chairman of the A. P. Green Fire Brick Co. of Mexico, Mo., 10 per cent of his stock in the company will go to the Allen P. and Josephine B. Green Foundation which he and his wife established in 1941. It was disclosed today.

While the size of the estate has not been made public, it is believed the charitable foundation will receive several thousand shares of the stock which is currently quoted at $22.50 bid and $24.50 asked. With the 81,700 shares it already owns, the new gift will bring its value to more than $2,000,000, it is believed.

After the provision for the foundation, the will, which has been admitted to probate in the Audrain County Probate Court, divided the remainder of the estate approximately one-half to his five children and one-half in trust for his grandchildren.

About $350,000 has been granted thus far by the foundation, with the greater portion—$250,000—going to medical research in Parkinson's disease, cerebral palsy and other disorders of the central nervous system.

Personal charities listed in the will include $1000 each to the School of the Ozarks, the Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Missouri, the American Society for the Blind of the United States and Mexico Recreation Association, The First Presbyterian Church of Mexico will receive $5000.

Mr. Green died of a coronary thrombosis at Missouri Baptist Hospital last June 9. He was 80 years old.

G.O.P. Governors Pledge Full Support to Candidate Eisenhower

20 Sign Petition, 21st Is Backer of President but Had Left Conference Before It Was Circulated.

ATLANTIC CITY, June 26 (AP)—Twenty of the nation's 21 Republican Governors today joined in urging the renomination of President Eisenhower and pledging their full support for his re-election.

Only Gov. George N. Craig of Indiana, who left the conference before the circulation of a petition by Gov. Fred Hall of Kansas, did not sign. Craig is a strong Eisenhower supporter.

At the same time, an Associated Press survey of Democratic opinion represented at the forty-eighth annual Governors' conference indicated that Adlai E. Stevenson is likely to acquire 400 presidential nominating votes among the 27 states with Democratic, chief executives. Thus, Stevenson would have only to break even in the G.O.P.-dominated states to wrap up the nomination on an early ballot at the Democratic convention in Chicago Aug. 13.

Nixon Not Mentioned. Vice President Nixon's name was not mentioned in the Republican petition. Gov. William G. Stratton of Illinois, last to sign the document, said there was no question in his mind that Mr. Eisenhower has endorsed Nixon for renomination and that seemed to settle that question.

Signers of the petition endorsing the Eisenhower Administration included Gov. J. Bracken Lee of Utah, currently resisting the collection of the portion of his federal income tax he says would be used to help finance federal aid.

The strong reservoir of Stevenson support was disclosed despite what appeared to be an upsurge in the strength of Gov. Averell Harriman of New York in the wake of the virtual demise of Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee as a challenging candidate.

Harriman harvested the prospect yesterday of gaining the backing of Kentucky's 30 votes. If Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler can win control of them and make some sort of agreement with the New York Governor, Harriman said today no such agreement had been reached.

In addition, if he got Kentucky, Harriman would have most of New York's 98 votes. Oklahoma's 28 and what Gov. Raymond Gary of Oklahoma predicted would be 85 more from Republican-controlled Western states.

All of this made Harriman a strong contender for a nomination which will go to the first Democrat who accumulates 686½ votes on any ballot at the Chicago convention.

Standings in Poll. The latest Associated Press tabulation of delegate pledges and announced first-ballot preferences gave Stevenson 301½, Kefauver 165 and Harriman 110½.

Gov. John F. Simms of New Mexico, a Stevenson supporter, was one of the first to recognize publicly the Harriman surge. Simms said in an interview that while he is confident Stevenson will win the nomination, "Harriman is gaining in a lot of places."

No Republican suggested that the President might withdraw as a result of his intestinal operation.

G.O.P. Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin of Maryland, who nominated Mr. Eisenhower in 1952, said nobody considers a withdrawal likely. But if the unexpected should happen, McKeldin said he would be ready to propose Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, who succeeded Eisenhower as commander of North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces.

Gen. Gruenther addressed the conference at a dinner meeting last night.

Gov. Phil M. Donnelly of Missouri trumpeted a note of discouragement in the direction of the Harriman camp with word that he believes former President Harry S. Truman will be unable to control the state's delegation to the Democratic national convention.

Pledged to Symington. Missouri's 38 votes are going to the Democratic convention in the pocket of the state's junior Senator, Stuart Symington, a dark horse possibility if the leading contenders fall by the wayside.

Should Missouri efforts to pump up Symington collapse, Harriman strategists hope Truman can swing enough influence to put the delegation behind the New York Governor.

Truman has been making friendly gestures and saying nice things about Harriman of late without actually endorsing him. But Donnelly said that while the Missouri delegation will listen to Truman respectfully, it is his opinion Truman will be unable to control it to the extent the Harriman people would like.

Donnelly said in an interview he hasn't heard much Harriman talk in his state and it would be his guess the delegation would switch chiefly to Stevenson if Symington failed to pull the grade at the convention.

MAN ROBS BANK OF $4308, IS CAUGHT WITHIN MINUTES

CHICAGO, June 26 (AP)—An armed man robbed a Loop bank of $4308 today, but was captured a few minutes later when two policemen chased him into the arms of a Federal narcotics agent.

The captive, who identified himself as John Carter, of Miami, Fla., went to the second floor commerce department at the Amalgamated Trust and Savings Bank and ordered two tellers to hand over all the cash in their cages.

One of the tellers chased him to the crowded street and alerted two policemen who gave chase. Carter virtually ran into the arms of Benjamin Begen-dorf, a narcotics agent, and was captured.

EIGHT CHILDREN IN 5 YEARS

THOMASTON, Ga., June 26 (AP)—A 23-year-old Thomaston woman gave birth to twins Monday—her third multiple birth in five years.

She is Mrs. Christine Hagans, whose quadruplets were born in 1953. She has given birth to eight children in five years—all girls. Five survive—the new twins and three surviving members of the quadruplets. A previous set of twins died in infancy.

eral in charge of the criminal division, that custodians of the records concerning House races may be subject to a three-year prison sentence and fine for destroying them was answered by House Clerk Ralph Roberts, who said he was required to preserve the records for only two years.

Roberts accused the Justice Department of attempting to make political capital out of its demand. He said the records sought involved Democratic candidates and observed that he suspected the Republican-controlled Justice Department was trying to divert attention from big contributions being collected by the Republican party.

House Speaker Sam Rayburn (Dem.), Texas, told reporters at Washington that Roberts appeared to have acted properly in throwing out the old records. A law requiring the House to send outdated records to the National Archives applies only to records of the Congress itself, not to files submitted to it, he said.

Roberts said the files either have been disposed of as scrap paper or have been burned. Copies of the records probably still could be obtained from the Democratic and Republican National Committees, but these were said to lack the legal value of the originals.

One of Olney's letters was sent to Senator John L. McClellan (Dem.) of Arkansas, who has previously accused the Administration of hiding information from Congress.

Another letter went to a House critic of the Administration's policy of withholding billions of the new funds Mr. Eisenhower recommended for buying new aircraft, including the intercontinental B-52 jet bombers that have been the nub of the dispute.

If Congress voted just the six billions of the new funds Mr. Eisenhower recommended for aircraft, Holland said, there would be 18 billions available "or more money than could possibly be spent during the next year."

"We armchair strategists," was not interested in this example of concealment by Congress. The letter to Senator McClellan contained similar sarcastic passages.

Olney said his department was seeking the statement of contributions filed by the Republican national treasurer for 1952 and the Democratic national treasurer for 1949, 1950, 1951 and 1952. These are being sought for investigations by the FBI and Internal Revenue Service, he said.

It was learned that the Democratic documents were being sought in connection with grand jury investigations of tax scandals in the Truman Administration. The Republican statement is needed for a grand jury investigation of lobbying for the natural gas bill, which was vetoed by President Eisenhower after being passed by Congress.

Olney, who insisted that records of campaign contributions should be filed with the National Archives after the two-year period, said he had been unable to obtain definite information about the records from National Archivist Wayne C. Grover. Grover merely questioned whether it was legally necessary to preserve the records, Olney said.

gress previously and of that amount the Air Force had $5,500,000,000.

Holland said nearly three billion dollars of unspent Air Force funds are available for buying new aircraft, including the intercontinental B-52 jet bombers that have been the nub of the dispute.

"We armchair strategists,"

Ellender said, "are telling the Air Force we want them to spend these billions on B-52s whether you need them or not or have the men to man them." Ellender said advocates of more air funds "are taking statements from Moscow that are pure propaganda and accepting them as the real McCoy."

There was no Senate dispute over amounts recommended by the committee for the Army, Navy and the Office of the Secretary of Defense.

These include just under 10 billions for the Navy and Marines, or about $48,000,000 less than the budget request and about half a million more than voted by the House, and about $7,500,000,000 for the Army, some $216,000,000 below the budget but $48,000,000 more than the House.

MAN IS CHARGED WITH TRYING TO BRIBE WITNESSES

the two witnesses in the beating charges against Bradshaw and Melvin Loyd, a former Kirkwood policeman, who brought one of the witnesses to the meeting. Listening in the next room were Assistant Prosecuting Attorneys Lasater and John S. Eskeles.

After Connor is reported to have made his offer to get the witnesses out of town, Bradshaw consented to furnish the information Connor wanted, at a roadside conference last night.

Bradshaw, Connor, Loyd and the two witnesses were seated in Connor's Cadillac in the 500 block of North Ballas road, shortly after midnight when Lt. Pete Vasek of the St. Louis county police department, who had been advised of the meeting, arrived and took the group to Clayton for questioning.

Connor, operator of Casey's Sport Stores in Kirkwood and Clayton, was booked suspected of tampering with a witness, and was held overnight in the county jail. He charged he was the victim of "a put up job," although admitting interest in any information Bradshaw might have about Kirkwood police matters. He denied soliciting the information, however.

Following an investigation of Connor's charges of brutality and of complaints by 15 Kirkwood policemen of dissension in the department, the City Council recently directed Chief Peek to take remedial steps.

Patrolman Edwin Becker, circulator of the petition signed by the other 14 officers, was fired, and three policemen resigned. Bradshaw was suspended and joined the Rock Hill Police Department, from which he now is suspended pending the outcome of the brutality charges.

$177,514 INCOME TAX LIEN FIELD AGAINST D.W. DAWKINS

A federal income tax lien for $177,514 was filed today at the recorder of deeds office in Clayton against D. W. Dawkins president of the Ashley Milk Co., 4424 West Papin street.

The lien stated the amount was for unpaid taxes, penalties and interest for the years 1942 through 1946. Dawson lives at 7705 Country Club court, Clayton.

The Government last year filed suit in United States Tax Court for $311,423 in taxes and penalties against Dawkins and the milk company. The court ruled that a part of the tax deficiencies for the four years "was due to fraud with intent to evade tax." The company manufactures powdered, sweet and condensed milk, ice cream mix and other dairy products.

Foot Police Stymied. ZITACUARO, Mexico, June 26 (UP)—A cargo truck hit and killed five persons at a bus stop here today. It kept right on going out of town without even reducing speed. Police were unable to give chase. They have no car.

U.S. BUILDINGS IN CAPITAL WILL GET NAME PLAQUES
WASHINGTON, June 26 (UP)—The Government is going to the aid of tourists who want to be sure what Government building they are looking at. From now on, the General Services Administration said yesterday it will label all federal buildings in Washington with metal frame plaques.

"Just above eye level." Most Government buildings already are marked, but often the name is up under the eaves—or in some out-of-the-way wall space. The Treasury building, built in 1830, went for 120 years without a name or name plate.

Newly-Graduated Engineers' Salaries Up 7 to 13 Pct. in Year

Some From Here Offered $600 a Month—Demand Twice as Great as Supply.

Young engineers who were graduated from college this June averaged 7 to 13 per cent higher in starting salaries than did 1955 graduates, and some were offered $600 a month, a survey of experience at Washington and St. Louis universities indicated today.

Liberal arts and other graduates without specialized training also fared better than last year by an average of about $25 a month in starting salary, but tended to lag $50 to $100 a month behind engineers.

In the last four years, the demand for services of graduating engineers has reached boom proportions. There are twice as many jobs as there are new graduates, with the result that industrial concerns and other organizations are in frenzied competition, all over the nation, to obtain trained personnel.

made reservations to visit the campus for recruiting purposes. This year the total was 156 concerns.

"All of these boys are level-headed about the interviews," Marino said. "They seek advice of faculty members and business men, look at a good many things, go over the advantages and disadvantages. They think in terms of five or 10 years from now, and will take a lower salary if they think a job will use their education to better advantage."

It was only six or seven years ago, Marino said, that "many engineers were pounding the pavements looking for jobs." He predicted that next year salaries would be even higher, and competition among concerns for engineer help even more sharp.

CLAIM 2 PLANES DOWNED
HONG KONG, June 26 (AP)—The Peiping radio said today the Chinese Reds shot down two Nationalist Chinese planes from Formosa last week.

The broadcast said the Nationalist flew 170 sorties over the Fukien province coast in the week.

RECORD 3-MONTH EXPORTS
WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—The Government reported yesterday that domestic business activity got a big boost the first three months this year from record first quarter exports of goods and services totaling $5,327,000,000.

At the same time, the Commerce Department said, foreign nations were able to improve their dollar and gold assets and trading position because total American payments abroad in the period ran even higher at $5,908,000,000.

POWER TO NAME
CLEARANCE UNIT IS SUPERVISOR'S

County Counselor Rules on Appointments to Proposed Redevelopment Board.

Commissioners of a land clearance for redevelopment authority that may be established by St. Louis county would be appointed by the county supervisor, subject to confirmation by the county council, County Counselor Herbert C. Funke said today.

In answer to questions submitted by the council, Funke's assistant, John J. Molloy, wrote in an opinion, approved by Funke, that the county charter makes it the duty of the supervisor to appoint all members of boards and commissions, except as otherwise provided.

Furthermore, he continued, the state land clearance law does not specifically refer to charter counties, but by naming "mayor" as the responsible appointing power evidently intended to vest this power in the executive branch of the municipal government.

On another question raised by the council as to the extent of the control and supervision it may exercise over finances of the authority, Molloy asked for a more precise statement of the problem.

Questions to Be Passed Upon.
He pointed out the county is required to pass on whether the commission has a workable program and that this includes such things as sound local housing and health codes, a master plan of community development, a basic analysis of neighborhoods and needs, an executive organization to run the program, financial capacity to carry it out and the problem of housing displaced families.

After a plan is approved by the council, it is submitted to the Federal Government for approval. If approved, the Federal Government then advances the preliminary expenses, Mulloy wrote.

When the plan gets under way, funds may be obtained from the Government to carry out the project, and in this instance the county is specifically responsible for the obligations incurred by the authority.

Two Thirds of Loss.
After completion of the project, if a loss is incurred, the Federal Government will sustain two thirds of the loss while the county, through the authority, is responsible for the remainder.

Mulloy pointed out that as a credit against this obligation, any contiguous developments, such as parks, schools and other civic projects, would be considered as the county's contribution.

The authority may be established through either a resolution or an ordinance, he said in answer to another question.

The council, which has pending before it such a resolution, also had sought information on any limitations on its right to impose certain restrictions in implementing the authority. Mulloy asked for more specific questions on this point.

LOCAL BIRD MAKES GOOD, WINS PIGEON
RACE FROM TULSA

A homing pigeon owned by Gene Goldschmidt, 10042 McCarty lane, Riverview Gardens, won a pigeon race from Tulsa, Okla., to St. Louis yesterday, beating eight other birds. The winner covered the 360-mile distance (as the pigeon flies) in about 10 hours.

Three of the other pigeons did not show up and their owners are hoping they will fly in today. A member of the Greater St. Louis Concourse Association, the pigeon-fanciers organization, said pigeons do not fly after dark. The three lagards probably stopped to sleep when the sun went down, he said.

The race was one leg in a transcontinental homing pigeon flight from Los Angeles to New York. Another group of birds, owned by Cincinnati residents, is scheduled to be released here at dawn tomorrow. Goldschmidt's bird carried an invitation to attend a musical production in Los Angeles for Paula Stewart, feminine lead in this week's Municipal Opera production, "The Student Prince."

COUPLE MARRIED 50 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Boston, former St. Louisans, will observe their fiftieth wedding anniversary tomorrow and will celebrate the occasion Saturday with a basket picnic for relatives and friends at Blanche Park, St. Charles.

Boston, 71 years old, was employed at American Manganese Steel division of American Brake Shoe Co. here until five years ago, when he moved to Defiance, Mo. His wife, 67, is the former Leola Stratman. They have a daughter, Mrs. Silvester Worful; an adopted son, Jack Girou, and five grandchildren.

MAN FOUND SHOT TO DEATH

Joseph H. Moore, a punch press operator, was found shot to death yesterday in a garage at 7641 Elton avenue, Affton, a police reported. They said a charge from a shotgun had struck him in his left chest. The shotgun was found near the body. No notes were found.

Moore, 37 years old, recently had been living with his brother, William L. Moore, and his sister-in-law, who discovered the body. They said he had been despondent the past few days.

Textile Machinery Plant Opens.
MEXICO CITY, June 26 (AP)—A $5,600,000 plant to manufacture textile industry machinery has been opened at Irolo.

The government hopes the plant, built with Japanese and Mexican capital, will help to modernize Mexico's textile industry.

TITO TOURS ROMANIAN OIL FIELDS; TALKS END TODAY

BUCHAREST, June 26 (AP)—Yugoslavia's President Josip Tito Broz interrupted his formal talks with Romanian leaders yesterday to tour the Ploesti oil fields.

Tito rode in an open Russian car with Romanian party boss George Gheorghiu-Dej. Everywhere the Yugoslav leader was given flowers. He responded with brief speeches stressing "peace and friendship, co-operation and building socialisms."

Formal talks with the Romanians end today and a communique is expected before Tito takes off by train for an overnight journey to Belgrade.

U.S. MAY HAVE SET OFF H-BOMB, JAPAN REPORTS

Atmospheric Pressure Changes Indicate New Test—AEC Refuses to Comment.

TOKYO, June 26 (AP)—The United States may have set off another hydrogen bomb today at the Bikini testing grounds, Japan's weather bureau reported. The Central Meteorological Observatory said its instruments from Hokkaido in the north to Kyushu in the south picked up marked atmospheric pressure changes similar to those recorded after the May 21 hydrogen bomb test and again on May 28. (In Washington, an Atomic Energy Commission spokesman said there would be no comment. He noted the AEC had declined comment on a similar report May 28 and planned none on future reports of the same type. He said Adm. Lewis Strauss, AEC chairman, had announced previously that "about 10" tests would be carried out in the current series that began May 21.)

The observatory estimated the blast—if it was one—was touched off at 3 a.m. (That was 6 a.m. Bikini time and 1 p.m. St. Louis time Monday.)

First indications were earth tremors recorded on the seismographs at Matsushiro, in Central Honshu, at 3:20 a.m. Just three hours later gauges began to pick up the slower-moving atmospheric pressure waves, and these continued for about 50 minutes, the observatory said.

As they had on May 21 and 28, the waves reportedly came from the direction of the Bikini atoll, about 2200 miles south-east of Tokyo.

The United States on May 21 exploded a hydrogen bomb above the water which had a force estimated at more than 10,000,000 tons of TNT. It sent a fiery cloud 25 miles into the sky.

The United States Government has never confirmed that a test explosion was set off May 28, but it had announced before the testing began that it would continue into June. Newsmen who attended the start of the operations left after the May 21 explosion.

The United Press reported that the arrival of two jet bombers in Honolulu from the Eniwetok-Bikini area soon after the reported explosion touched off speculation that there may have been another air-drop explosion. Similar atom bombers arrived in Hickam immediately after the May 21 air drop.

Earlier today a professor at Niigata University, Dr. Hirohiko Watanabe, reported that radioactive rain along the coast of the northern Japan sea indicated a thermonuclear blast had been set off June 1 or 2 "some place other than in the Pacific area."

Japanese newspapers speculated that the Russians had held an explosion test somewhere in Siberia.

G.O.P. CONGRESS LEADERS SEEK JULY ADJOURNMENT

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—Republican leaders said today they still believe Congress can finish its work for the year by the third week in July.

Senate G.O.P. leader Knowland of California and his House counterpart, Representative Martin of Massachusetts, told reporters they would like to see Congress meet a general target date of July 14-21. That would allow from three to four weeks between adjournment and the start of the national party conventions.

DRIVER IN FATAL COLLISION
ACCUSED OF MANSLAUGHTER

Melvin Huff, a pipefitter of Glencoe, was charged with manslaughter in a warrant issued by Magistrate Leslie T. Lewis in Clayton, A coroner's jury earlier today had returned a verdict of homicide in the death of Mrs. Louis F. Lanwermyer, 1911 Longfellow boulevard, who was killed Sunday night in an automobile collision involving Huff's car and a machine in which she was a passenger.

Huff told the jury he was coming from a picnic where he had a few beers when the accident occurred. He said he couldn't say on what side of the road he was driving and claimed rain and an approaching car's lights blinded him.

Edward Lanwermyer, son of the victim and driver of the car, had told highway patrolmen he was driving north on Missouri Highway 109 when Huff, going south, collided with him on Lanwermyer's side of the road. The patrol said Huff rounded a curve at an excessive speed and was straddling the center line of the highway.

STEEL SPOKESMAN
PREDICTS WAGE PACT

Negotiations Resumed in Effort to Avert Strike Saturday Midnight.

NEW YORK, June 26 (UP)—A steel industry spokesman predicted today "there will be no steel strike this year."

However, he said, the negotiations between the United Steelworkers of America and the industry's Big Three probably will go down to last-minute June 30, when the present contract expires.

This spokesman, who declined use of his name, is an executive of one of the 11 companies making up the industry's advisory committee to the management negotiators.

Four-man negotiating teams representing union and management met for an hour today, then adjourned until tomorrow.

United Steelworkers President David J. McDonald called a meeting of the union's 170-man wage policy committee for Friday, presumably to vote on a compromise contract proposal.

Union sources in Pittsburgh reported that prospect of a settlement before the June 30 deadline were "highly optimistic."

"I would take your bet that we will have a settlement possibly by the 28th," a union official said.

And another hint that a compromise may be in the works came from remarks made by a management negotiator yesterday.

John Morse, representing Bethlehem Steel, said the industry was standing pat on its five-year no-strike offer but that nobody should rule out "surprises."

"Anything can happen in negotiations," he said.

One thing appeared certain: The steelworkers are going to get a pay raise and the American consumer is going to foot the bill.

Thomas F. Patton, first vice president of Republic Steel, said yesterday any wage increase will have to be offset by a price increase.

Industry sources predicted that a package increase of 20 cents an hour would have to be offset by a price hike of from $10 to $12 a ton.

CHAMBER TO URGE MISSOURI
SITE FOR U.S. LABORATORY

The United States Department of Agriculture will be urged by the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce to choose a site in Missouri for the $18,000,000 animal disease laboratory planned by the Government.

Aloys P. Kaufmann, president of the chamber, said today.

Hearings on suggested locations for the laboratory will be opened tomorrow at the Statler Hotel by a site committee headed by Don Collins of Kit Carson, Colo. The committee is made up of representatives of the livestock industry, land grant colleges, veterinary medical profession and state departments of agriculture.

Lowell Burns, director of the Chamber's trade development and agriculture department, will present arguments supporting advantages of Missouri over other states as a location for the proposed laboratory.

$13,000 STOLEN FROM CLUB

CINCINNATI, June 26 (AP)—Two armed men herded 25 customers and employees of the Sportsmen's Club into a dining room of the cafe yesterday and stole an estimated $13,000.

Bernard Mueller, the proprietor, said he had the money on hand to cash payroll checks. Witnesses said the holdup men split up, one fleeing on foot and the other driving away in an automobile.

Fear That Trend Toward Atomic Airpower May Result in Atomic War Underlies Pentagon Fight

Army's Supporters in Contest With Air Force Already Question Ground Force's Ability to Fight a Korean Type Conflict With Conventional Weapons.

By JAMES RESTON
The New York Times News Service
(Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, June 26. THE PUBLIC WRANGLE on Capitol Hill over increasing the Air Force budget is merely a reflection of the much more bitter fight behind the scenes in the Pentagon over the defense strategy and missions of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

On one basic point there is general agreement among all the political and military leaders of the Government. This is that the main objective of United States policy is to defend the security of the republic, and to this end, to fulfill the United States commitments to its allies—but to do these things in such a way as to avoid a major nuclear war.

There is another point of general agreement: That one indispensable deterrent to a major atomic war is the maintenance of such air-atomic power as the United States and its bases overseas that no potential aggressor dare risk a war against the United States or any region regarded by Washington as essential to the security of the United States.

Areas of Disagreement. Beyond this, there are fundamental disagreements, both in the Pentagon and in the Congress, on these questions:

1. How much air-atomic power must be maintained to deter the Communists from risking a major atomic war and to win that war if it comes?

2. Must we maintain superiority in the air-atomic field over the Soviet Union, or equality, or is it enough to have the power to strike the Soviet Union a severe atomic blow, even if this latter course means having less air-atomic power than the U.S.S.R.?

These were the questions primarily at issue on Capitol Hill, with the Administration maintaining that present forces, plans and appropriations are enough or almost enough, and some prominent Democrats arguing for a substantial increase all along the line.

Democrats Back Air Force.

The Air Force has been arguing in and out of the Pentagon for more money and more power. Its case has been taken up by the Democrats, partly because some of the Democrats are sincerely convinced that anything less than equality with the U.S.S.R. is dangerous, and partly because some of them see a good election issue in the charge that the Administration is putting economy ahead of security.

Every increase in the Air Force budget, however, tends to decrease the budget and strength of the Army, and this has aggravated the deepest personal, political and philosophical differences within the Pentagon and the whole Government.

This is not only a question of a smaller army, and therefore slower promotions and less attractive careers for army officers—though this is part of it. It comes down to an old and unresolved conflict between the Army and Air Force over what is the best way to deter that atomic war, or win it if it comes.

Russians Gain Despite Smiles, Gen. Gruenther Warns Governors

The New York Times News Service
(Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Co.)

ATLANTIC CITY, June 26. GEN. ALFRED M. GRUENTHER, supreme commander of the North Atlantic Alliance, warned the nation's Governors last night the military strength of the Soviet bloc is increasing despite smiles, cocktail parties, foreign visits to the Soviet Union, and talk of disarmament.

He spoke at the annual dinner of the Governors' conference in an appeal for support of the Administration's foreign aid program. The House cut $1,100,000 from President Eisenhower's budget requests and the issue now is before the Senate.

Gruenther said reaffirmation of our policy of alliances for peaceful ends would be able to make it possible for the Western powers to "more than hold our own in the cold war which is now in progress."

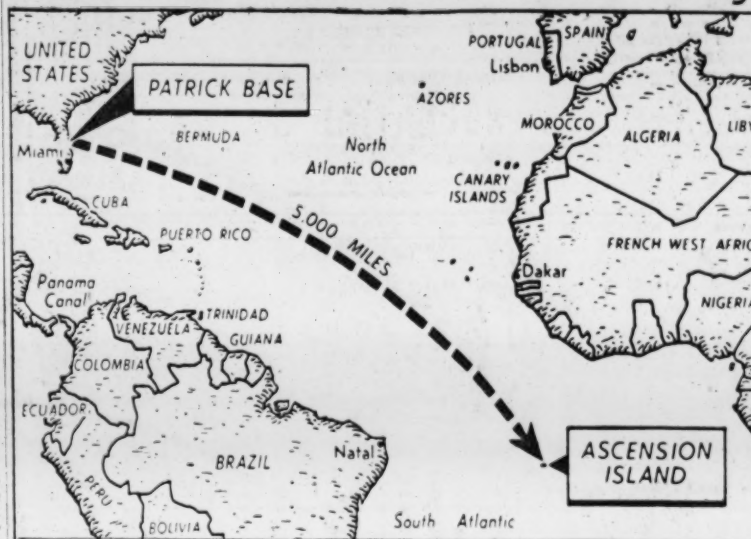

He said the land-air shield available to NATO powers still is inadequate, and that it will take three or four years before we can "give a reasonable guarantee that we shall be able to defend all of the NATO territory against an all-out act of aggression."

Part of the money requested by President Eisenhower will be spent to construct in Europe a radar warning line similar to the one now being built around the rim of the Arctic on the North American continent. He asserted he could "conceive of no more valuable expenditure of American funds" because the radar warning system is essential to defense of the United States itself.

The present Soviet regime, he said, "is infinitely more clever than the regime under Stalin."

His headquarters, he said, reported that the military capabilities of the Soviet bloc "in spite of their smiles" are increasing constantly. He said this was a very significant fact. "Furthermore," he added, "even if the reductions which

PEARSON Gen. Snyder Tried to Censor White House Inhalator Story

Eisenhower's Personal Doctor Quoted as Saying Disclosure of Information Would Aid Democrats.

By DREW PEARSON
(Copyright, 1956.)

WASHINGTON, June 26. ON THURSDAY, June 7, the day before President Eisenhower was taken ill, in brief, Maj. Gen. Howard Snyder, the President's personal doctor, demanded that this column suppress news that the White House had been given an emergency oxygen inhalator to be carried in the President's car or his plane. An emergency inhalator is the equivalent of a portable oxygen tent. This was the emergency treatment given the President when he became ill in Denver.

When I learned that the Emergency Oxygen Inhalator Company had supplied an inhalator to the White House, I asked Jack Anderson, my junior partner, to check the details further. He talked to Donald Demarest, a salesman for the company, and confirmed that the company had given an inhalator to the President on the encouragement of Dr. Paul D. White, the Boston heart specialist.

Wanted No Publicity.

Later Demarest telephoned to say that Snyder wanted Anderson to call him. Anderson promptly called. Snyder said he didn't want any publicity about the emergency oxygen inhalator. "Where did you get this information?" he also asked.

Anderson declined to reveal his source and explained that he could not make the decision as to whether the story would be used. That would be up to me.

"Publicity about this," said Snyder, "would harm our President."

"How would it harm the President?" Anderson asked.

"What would the Democrats say?"

"What would the Democrats say?" said Snyder. "It would to Snyder's wishes and not publish the relatively unimportant fact that the White House had an emergency inhalator. However, in reviewing the conflicting and confusing statements Snyder has made about the President's health, his attempt to suppress this relatively unimportant news item becomes part of the picture.

Oxygen Equipment Always Has Been on Hand, Hagerty Says.

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said today that oxygen equipment always has been in the White House during the Eisenhower Administration and he said he presumed previous administrations have had it too.

This stemmed from a report by Drew Pearson that Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, the President's physician, tried to suppress the fact that a new oxygen inhalator was recently purchased for possible use in treating the President.

Hagerty said Snyder's only point was that he didn't want to give out the name of the manufacturer of the inhalator, in keeping with the White House policy of avoiding the publicizing of trade names.

The only thing new about the inhalator recently purchased, Hagerty said, is that it is more compact and easier to carry than the equipment used before. He said such equipment is on hand in the White House and has been taken regularly on presidential trips ever since Mr. Eisenhower became President.

GALLUP Eisenhower's Political Pulse Is Still Strong

Poll Indicates President Retains 5-3 Edge Over Stevenson.

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N.J., June 26.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S political pulse beat is as strong as ever. In the first survey since his operation on June 9, the Institute finds:

1. Virtually three voters out of every four today think Mr. Eisenhower will run despite his second illness in nine months. Actually, more voters today think he will be a candidate than thought so before his Feb. 29 announcement that he would be available.

2. More voters today say they would like to see Mr. Eisenhower run than was the case at the time of his February announcement. Two out of every three voters told Institute reporters they would like to see the President run again.

3. In a "trial heat" race against Adlai Stevenson, currently the leading Democratic favorite in Institute polls, Mr. Eisenhower runs exactly the same as he did before his operation. The President holds a 5-to-3 edge over Stevenson.

As might be expected, a person's views on the course the President should take depend to a large extent on political party affiliations. An overwhelming proportion of Republicans would like to see the President run again, while Democrats are about evenly divided.

The important political fact is that, seven out of every 10 independents—voters who do not consider themselves as members of either party and who hold the balance of power in all United States elections—say they would like to see Mr. Eisenhower be a candidate.

In today's survey, Institute interviewers asked three questions of voters.

The first question: "Will President Eisenhower be a candidate again this fall, or not?"

Yes, will — 73%
No, will not — 27%
Don't know — 9%

While most G.O.P. voters think Mr. Eisenhower will run, it is interesting to note that almost two out of every three Democrats share this view, as the following vote by party affiliation shows:

Rep. Dem. Ind.
Yes, will — 84% 64% 74%
No, will not — 16% 36% 26%
Don't know — 7% 10% 19%

Construction of U.S. Atomic Reactors Abroad Is Proposed Citizens Panel Chairman Says It Would Convince People That America Is Their Friend.

DENVER, June 26 (AP).

DEVELOPMENT of an international atomic power demonstration program to convince people abroad "that the United States is truly their friend" was urged by Robert McKinney, Santa Fe, N.M., publisher.

McKinney, chairman of a citizens panel that reported to Congress on the impact of the peaceful uses of atomic energy, spoke to a national conference on uranium and the atomic industry sponsored by two private agencies.

The construction by the United States of atomic reactors abroad, McKinney said, can provide what he called a necessary "new element in our foreign policy."

"Atomic power plants built abroad can, for many countries, spell new hope for economic growth," he said. "But we must also remember that construction of atomic power plants abroad can mean much more. It can mean new markets to help bridge the gap which might otherwise exist in the volume of business of reactor designers, fabricators, and contractors, of uranium miners and processors, of fuel element manufacturers."

He added, though, "While the need for the construction of atomic power plants abroad is urgent, I do not believe that we should undertake reactor construction—either at home or abroad—on a crash basis."

McKinney said he did not intend a "give-away" of atomic plants.

"Even if foreign aid funds are used," he said, "I see no reason heart attack, an early October survey found only 29 per cent believing that Mr. Eisenhower would run. From that point on, however, the figure steadily climbed and by the time of his February announcement, 72 per cent of voters thought he would run.

Interviewers next asked: "Would you like to see Mr. Eisenhower run?"

Yes, would — 67%
No, would not — 27%
Don't know — 6%

Analysis of the results by party affiliation reveals that Democrats are about evenly divided on the question:

Rep. Dem. Ind.
Yes, would — 92% 45% 71%
No, would not — 6% 48% 21%
Don't know — 2% 7% 8%

Institute interviewers next asked:

"Suppose the presidential election were being held today. If President Eisenhower decides to run and were the Republican candidate and Adlai Stevenson were the Democratic candidate, which would you like to see win?"

Here is the vote today, compared with that just before Mr. Eisenhower's recent operation and also the vote before and

(After Operation)

Eisenhower — 62%
Stevenson — 35%
Undecided — 3%

LATE MAY, 1956
(Before Operation)

Eisenhower — 62%
Stevenson — 35%
Undecided — 3%

SEPTEMBER, 1955
(Before Heart Attack)

Eisenhower — 59%
Stevenson — 37%
Undecided — 4%

DECEMBER, 1955
(After Heart Attack)

Eisenhower — 58%
Stevenson — 39%
Undecided — 3%

In the latest survey, Mr. Eisenhower polls the vote of almost three out of every 10 Democrats, as the following table shows:

Rep. Dem. Ind.
Eisenhower 97% 28% 73%
Stevenson 2 69 22

The Perils of Procrastination

It is a common trait of human nature to procrastinate—to delay—to put off doing what we think we can safely leave until tomorrow. The perils of procrastination are great. We see their consequences every day: the man who waited to buy more life insurance until after he was uninsured, the house that burned down after the fire insurance on it had lapsed, the automobile brakes that were adjusted after the accident, and last but not least, the will that was never signed.

Perhaps in no human activity is delay more often encountered than in the making of a will. No one expects to die for a long time, hence we think of a will as something that may be put off. The thought of death is unpleasant, hence there is a natural tendency to dismiss that subject from one's mind.

There is everything to be gained from making a will and nothing to be gained from delaying to do so. If you make a will your estate will be disposed of according to your wishes and not according to the provisions of law which may not suit you. If you make a will your estate will be administered by an executor of your own choice. If you do not make a will an administrator must be appointed and the administrator's bond will add unnecessarily to the cost of administering your estate. If you make a will you can take full advantage of the "marital deduction" and may employ other means of reducing the tax burden of transferring your estate to your wife and children. If you make a will you may leave all or a portion of your estate in trust, and thereby provide experienced management to conserve it for the benefit of your family. If you do not make a will, amounts going to minor children will require the appointment of a guardian and this is both cumbersome and unnecessarily expensive.

Your own lawyer should draw your will and advise you on all legal questions pertaining to your estate. Our experienced officers will be glad to confer with you in reference to the investment, financial, business, and other non-legal aspects of estate planning.

The perils of procrastination are great. If you do not have a will or your present will needs revision, do not delay. Make a will now—before you leave on your vacation—and name Missouri's oldest trust company as your executor and trustee.

Consult Your Lawyer

Your own lawyer should advise you on all legal problems pertaining to your estate. He should draw your will and any other legal documents needed to carry out your plans.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Still Voting in Glendale

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Recent political events in Glendale raise an interesting question regarding local government's responsibility to its voters.

On May 22 Glendale voters, after extensive public discussion of the issue, went to the polls in a record turnout and defeated a proposal to acquire and develop a park.

The opposition carried the day primarily on the grounds that the project's cost was exorbitant, particularly in view of the impoverished financial condition of this small tax-ridden municipality.

Scarcely a week had elapsed after this election defeat when a group of die-hards appeared before the Board of Aldermen with a petition in favor of resubmitting to the voters substantially the same proposition, on which they had managed to get merely about the same number of signatures as the number who had voted Yes on the defeated issue. In earnest conclave the Board of Aldermen promptly accepted this petition, publicly announced in effect that they considered it a mandate from the people for a new election.

To say that an essentially new issue is involved for the voters' consideration merely because the original package deal is now to be offered on a split basis—a acquisition of the site, (b) ultimate improvement of the site—is false and misleading.

If the voters had just defeated a proposal for a new highway, could any fair-minded person describe as new and different its resubmission on a split basis—a acquisition of right-of-way, (b) paving same?

A right-of-way without pavement is unimprovable; so is a park site with no improvements.

Putting aside all legalities, has any board of aldermen the moral right to send its citizenry trudging back to the polls for a revote on essentially the same issue, just defeated in an honest election by a record turnout of voters, on no other grounds than a petition signed by approximately the same number as previously voted for the defeated issue?

If local officials need not be responsive to the will of the voters, to whom are they responsible anyway?

CHARLES B. LOCKWOOD, Glendale.

Time Will Tell

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The Cards' loss the other night to the Dodgers makes it obvious St. Louis does not have a pennant winner, and it's a good thing for the game of baseball.

We have the best collection of relics, misfits and sand-lotters ever to be assembled under one uniform. This town can support major league baseball, but how far it can continue with what is now claimed to be a team is questionable.

St. Louis, the Gateway to the West and Doormat to the National League. J.F.S.

Questions for Laclede

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

How long is the Public Service Commission in Jefferson City going to allow Laclede Gas Co. to discriminate against customers of long standing in favor of a privileged group of bullies?

By Laclede's own advertisement it claims 35,000 applications on file (some people filed as early as 1940). And Laclede plans to issue permits for gas for home heating on the ratio of not more than one new home for each old one.

Although gas for home heating was closed to old homes in 1952, until late in 1953 the building of new homes was never denied a permit for gas heat.

If this is not discrimination by a so-called public utility, I would like to know what.

I think it is time for the Laclede Gas Co. to require the builder to file his application, and get in line with the rest of the public. B.B.S.

Manager for Clayton

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

At present, freeholders are meeting to write a charter and select a form of government for Clayton. I hope the freeholders will decide upon the city manager administration. The City of Clayton needs the modern, efficient government that the council-manager plan offers.

Clayton residents will do well to let their freeholders know they favor this modern, democratic form of government.

Clayton. A. LAVAT.

Encouraging Greed

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Thank you for John Crosby. He plows his field well, has the courage to tell what he finds, and has an effective way of telling it.

In his column entitled "Big Give-away Shows Encourage Greed," he goes below the camouflage surface to say: "It's hard enough to stifle the greed that rises up in the normal course of human affairs without having it artificially stimulated once a week by small girls spelling 'anti-establishmentarianism'."

Crosby has plowed deep enough to bring up the truth that minds grow by what they feed on, and that a diet of "give-aways" will bring us to the point of "national madness," a condition which England had in the latter part of the eighteenth century. England is now well on its way to another "national madness."

F. E. WILLIAMS, Circuit Judge (Retired).

Gen. Twining in Moscow

Nikita S. Khrushchev has a facility for converting practically anything into grist for his propaganda mill. So the ebullient first secretary of the Communist party is running true to form in seeking to capitalize on the visit of United States Air Force officers to Soviet Russia.

Khrushchev is utilizing the 7-day visit of Gen. Nathan F. Twining, the Air Force chief of staff, and his accompanying officers to promote the idea that Soviet Russia is far more peace-minded than is the United States. The Soviet leader said that competition between the United States and Russia should be peaceful instead of military. That is correct, and the United States has advanced plans to that effect only to have Russia find them unsatisfactory.

Gen. Twining, who has long had a reputation at home of being a good diplomat as well as a good airman, maintained that reputation in Moscow. He said, in brief, that the United States well knew what war was, that the nation had demobilized drastically after World War II only to run into the Korean war and was not going to "disarm again until we are certain of worldwide armaments control."

That seems a straightforward reply and one that should be an effective counter to Moscow's hopes of dismantling American military alliances that were built up to guard against the threat of Soviet aggression. Firmness also was exhibited in the American delegation's refusal to drink a toast to Red China. Any possible sting should have been removed by Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen's explanation to Marshal Zhukov that it was impossible for the Americans to participate in such a toast.

It is to be hoped this visit to Moscow will prove the commencement of a series of visits between other officers and officials of both nations. If a series of military and technical mission exchanges should prove to be the first step in a pilot disarmament inspection plan, that would be a great achievement.

Yet for all this to materialize, the Soviets must show the Americans at least enough to justify their present visit. Thus far the Russians have shown some new warplanes but British officers call the showing "a child's guide to the Soviet Air Force." But Mr. Khrushchev did add that he would "show our bombers and our missiles if you will show us yours." The latest dispatches from Moscow indicate that there is reason to believe that the curtain may be lifted here and there.

It may even be that Gen. Twining will learn such things as why the Russian equivalent of the American B-52 intercontinental bomber is able to fly on only four jet engines while the B-52 requires eight jets. Certainly the report that Gen. Twining will submit to President Eisenhower and the National Security Council will be awaited with deep interest. In addition to its primary military value, it will have importance as a possible means of promoting better understanding between two powerful nations.

Present and Accounted For

Gov. Goodwin J. Knight tells a revealing story of how three men directed the choice of California's delegates to the Republican National Convention. Gov. Knight told reporters at the Governor's conference in Atlantic City that he, Senator Knowland and Vice President Nixon each picked 22 delegates. And one of Mr. Nixon's assistants in picking the delegates was Murray Chotiner.

This example of Murray Chotiner's political influence occurred in late February or early March, a month before Mr. Nixon's former campaign manager broke into the news because of private "influence" cases. A Senate subcommittee found that Mr. Chotiner had approached federal officials, including White House aides, in behalf of private clients. Mr. Nixon had no comment, but with some embarrassment the G.O.P. National Committee quietly dismissed Mr. Chotiner as a political advisor. Yet Gov. Knight says he "is still active politically."

All Republican California is divided into three parts, and Murray Chotiner remains a power in that part which belongs to Vice President Nixon.

Toll Road Disappointment

The Ohio Turnpike has cut its truck rates by 25 to 30 per cent. The hope is to attract more trucks. Trucks are a main source of revenue needed to pay off private turnpike bonds, but truckers have been staying away from the Ohio Turnpike in droves and using free roads instead. This experience, plus the imminent passage of a huge federal highway building program, suggests that other states ought to reconsider toll road programs. Illinois already has floated bonds for turnpikes in the Chicago area so it may be too late to turn back from the costly project. But Missouri, having refused to rush into toll road planning, can afford a long objective look at the turnpike bubble.

An 'Inside' Furore

Senator McClellan is barking up the wrong tree. The chairman of the Senate investigations subcommittee apparently hopes to make an issue out of a forthcoming book purporting to tell "The Inside Story" of the Eisenhower Administration.

The author, Reporter Robert J. Donovan of the New York Herald Tribune, is believed to have had access to confidential records of Cabinet meetings and White House staff conferences. Senator McClellan calls this material "similar" to that which the Administration has refused to make available to his subcommittee.

The Arkansas Senator invited a White House aide, Maxwell Rabb, secretary to the Cabinet, to explain why information voluntarily given to a reporter should not be given on demand to Congress.

Mr. Rabb has just declined to appear before the committee. But the Administrator has a perfectly good answer if it wishes to speak. It could say that it makes all the difference whether Executive papers and documents are published willingly, or by congressional fiat. A long line of Presidents has successfully resisted efforts to establish congressional dominance over the Executive branch in this field. The precedents are abundant and the authorities clear. Under our constitutional separation of powers the President is not accountable to Congress in this way.

Whether an Administration chooses to publish what Congress cannot compel it to publish is a matter of discretion. In this case it seems clear that somebody in the White House thought some fine campaign propaganda could be made by giving a competent newsman access to certain papers. Perhaps it will not turn out that way. Perhaps Mr. Donovan's account, if truly objective and impartial, may give material to the critics as well as the enthusiasts of the Eisenhower Administration.

That is for readers of the book to judge. Meanwhile this Administration can be expected to do what every predecessor has done—try to make the best possible case for itself before the voters. While some of Mr. Donovan's professional competitors may grumble at the privilege accorded him, they will have to admit that this is not exactly new. Does no one remember William Hillman, whose "Mr. President" was based on confidential Truman material which nobody else saw?

Mr. Hillman and his publisher unquestionably would have been happy to get as much advance publicity as Mr. Donovan and his publisher are getting.

Is the Panama Trip Necessary?

Prime Minister Nehru's consideration for the health of President Eisenhower will be much appreciated. The Indian leader himself suggested that his White House talks, scheduled to start July 7, be postponed so as not to jeopardize the President's complete recovery. This has now been done and no subsequent time has been set since the scheduling of talks running five to six hours on major Asian problems must await a revival in Mr. Eisenhower's strength.

As for the trip to Panama City, July 21-22, announced at the same time the Nehru talks were postponed, that has every appearance of being an unnecessary waste of President Eisenhower's time and energy.

Were the President well and strong it would be fine for him to go almost to the equator to visit with the chiefs of other American republics. The idea of such a meeting is splendid.

But whether the President went by sea or air, the trip would employ some strength that he needs to devote to the serious business of catching up on the accumulation of White House work. Moreover it would seem that he could find a more suitable place to visit in midsummer than the heat of the tropics.

A much sounder plan would be for the President to go to his favored retreat, Camp David, in the Maryland mountains, where he could rest and also receive Government officials and dig into the tasks ahead of him. As for the Panama meeting, let him send Vice President Nixon or Secretary of State Dulles or his brother, Milton Eisenhower, who made a tour of South America early in the Administration.

The Panama trip announcement has every appearance of being intended to blanket the postponement of the talks with Prime Minister Nehru. But whatever its purpose it ought to be reconsidered. It sounds most ill-advised.

Enough Talk on Parking

Alderman James W. Noonan and members of his zoning committee ought to act quickly and favorably on Mayor Tucker's downtown parking bills. The evidence on the measures is in. It is now time for action.

The commercial operators flourished the same old tired arguments at the aldermanic hearing. They contend that there are enough parking spaces downtown and that they have plans for increases in capacity when demand justifies it.

The first part of that argument raises a question of fact that can be rather easily determined. The city is under no obligation to take the word of those with a vested interest in "proving" that parking needs are being met. It can see for itself, and that is exactly what it has done.

Using public funds appropriated by the Aldermen, the Municipal Off-Street Parking Commission hired a New York consulting firm to survey downtown parking needs. Contrary to the self-serving "facts" of the commercial parking operators, the consultants found a substantial shortage of downtown parking space. The bills are the city's reaction to that shortage.

Corroborative evidence of the correctness of the city's need for additional parking facilities is the attitude of downtown business men. Not only do they assert the need; they have agreed to take a $1,000,000 second mortgage on the proposed garage facilities. They have put their money on the line.

The downtown parking situation is clear and simple. The commercial operators are unwilling to meet the need. The city has no choice but to fill the void.

The sooner Alderman Noonan and his colleagues report out the parking bills the sooner the city can begin meeting that responsibility.

Throw a Tear at Ticker-Tape

Ticker tape, which greeted Lorne Eagle Charles A. Lindbergh and Channeil Swimmer Gertrude Ederle and Queen Marie of Romania on their triumphant rides up Broadway, is running out, a victim of technological unemployment, just when it had become an indispensable part of the American scene. With the advances that have come about in electronics the New York Stock Exchange now flashes stock prices on a board instead of tucking them off on tape. Only a thin trickle of tape, relatively speaking, still comes from tickers used as reserves.

How, then, are there to be showers of ticker-tape, the expected salute to distinguished visitors from abroad? The State Department worried about this, and its worries came to a boil when Prime Minister John A. Costello of Ireland received what was generally regarded as a reception deficient in warmth. Very little ticker tape. So the State Department got in touch with the New York City Department of Commerce and Public Events, which in turn got in touch with the Stock Exchange, which by saving up supplied ticker tape for the visit of President Sukarno of Indonesia. It had to be delivered to the office buildings along the parade route by the very Department of Sanitation which would later clean it up, after, of course, it had been thrown at President Sukarno.

It seems, at best, a premeditated and cold-blooded substitute. Ticker tape growing naturally, so to speak, along the canyons of Lower Broadway, like edelweiss, gathered impetuously from baskets and flung with impromptu abandon—that is one thing. Ticker tape delivered and flung with planned enthusiasm is another.

As ticker tape goes the way of the great auk down the dim and dusty road to obsolescence, some new way of hailing the conquering hero or heroine is simply going to have to be thought up. Between them, the State Department and the City Department of Commerce and Public Events surely ought to be able to manage it.

Send Them the Bill

A new ordinance enabling the city to collect for cutting weeds on dilatory owners' properties has filled a long-felt need of hay-fever and allergy victims in general. Hitherto municipal drives on weeds have been handicapped by lack of a means for enforcing collection. Now the bill for the cost of cutting can be made a lien against the property.

We hope the city authorities will use their new power with vigor and determination. Weeds can be a public nuisance, and a menace to public health. They are bad neighbors, and so are property-owners who permit them to grow uncontrolled.

Innumerable sufferers from respiratory troubles affected by pollen will thank the city for enforcement of the new lien ordinance.

WONDERING WHETHER IT'S REAL OR "PHONY"

Sniping at the Supreme Court

Between Book Ends

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Intemperate criticism from segregationists and superpatriots who disagree with it ignores fact that strong court is basic to federal system; it requires both respect and flexibility to correct past mistakes and match law with changing conditions.

From The Washington Post

The intemperate criticism of the Supreme Court that is heard so frequently these days is a reflection of the emotionalism that has grown up around many public issues.

Some men in public life are not willing to discuss court decisions on their legal merits. Rather, they fly to the ridiculous conclusion that members of the high tribunal have been brainwashed or influenced by subversive propaganda.

Such far-fetched charges can ordinarily be dismissed as the product of anger or imaginations running riot. But the prevalence of such charges in recent weeks from the Jefferson Administration to thoughtful citizens who place a high value on the judicial process.

Undoubtedly much of this criticism stems from the Supreme Court's decision in the segregation cases. Some men who do not like those decisions have deliberately set out to discredit the court which handed them down.

In other instances, however, the attacks upon the Court are much broader than the segregation issue. The country's noisiest superpatriots are firing recklessly at the Court because many of its decisions are out of tune with their schemes and objectives.

Criticism of the Court is not, of course, anything new in American history. The Court over which Chief Justice Marshall presided came in for just as much criticism in a spirit of respect for the country and its successors. The Taney Court was much abused, and Lincoln became the chief critic of the Dred Scott decision in the pre-Civil War period. During the '30s the Court came under severe attack for its so-called anti-New Deal decisions.

Fortunately, the Court survived all these and other assaults because of its high standing with the rank and file of the people. No doubt it will continue to do so if the people are kept aware of what it has done and why.

Most of the present criticism seems to be based on the mistaken notion that the Court is a kind of judicial slot machine which, when a case is presented to it, merely grinds out the appropriate precedent by which it should be decided. To be sure, the Court does give weight to precedent. But it is also constantly engaged in a re-examination of principles and legal relationships to keep its interpretation of the law in tune with present realities.

Our constitutional system could scarcely be expected to outlast a generation if our judicial system did not have within it sufficient flexibility to correct its own past mistakes and to look at the law as an instrument serving a dynamic society.

It would be foolish to pretend that the Court is infallible. This newspaper often criticizes decisions of the Court and will continue to do so. But we respect the integrity of the Justices. We believe they voice their honest views of what the Constitution and the laws require, and that is the acid test of an independent court.

No court will ever fully satisfy a country as large and varied as ours. But critics ought to voice their complaints in a spirit of respect for the institution itself; for the preservation of a strong and independent Supreme Court is one of the basic requirements of our federal system.

Little Cars and Big Bullies

Philip Harsham in The Louisville Courier-Journal

There's something about the saucy roar of a bull-chested sports car that brings out the bully in people. I can't imagine why. But then, I drive a sports car. One with a saucy roar. A downright impertinent roar, actually.

I'd had it exactly eight minutes when a traffic policeman stopped me. He said I'd run a stop sign. I hadn't. And he knew it. But it gave him a wonderful chance to deliver a well-prepared sermon. He didn't like sports cars. Or the guys who drive them.

Then I drove onto a busy highway in cars and slam on the air brakes at the last minute. It startled me a bit at first time I looked around and found myself staring eye-level at a big truck's bumper.

I can always run off and leave the trailer-trucks, of course. But chances are there'll be a speed cop around the bend. And he'll go for the sports car. Not the trailer-truck.

The kids in the junk heaps are a problem, too. They like to race. And they taunt sports cars, trying to egg them on. Especially those who drive the rain. It was a heavy rain and it left deep puddles. My exhaust muffler dragged in some of them, which shows how deep they really were. About three inches.

Anyway, those strange people who drive automobiles seemed to find this amusing. One yelled to ask if I were wearing rubber pants.

It's all great sport, though. And drivers of those big trailer-trucks are usually sportsmen. I'm talking about the big trailer-trucks with air brakes. I'm glad they have air brakes. The drivers like to roar up behind sports

A Pair of Skirmishes

Two Soldiers, by Paxton Davis. (Simon and Schuster, 181 pp., $3.95.)

Soldiering can make or break a man. Paxton Davis dramatizes this theme in the brace of short novels he has written under the title of "Two Soldiers."

In the first story, a Negro soldier named Goff has been eroded by the mud, rain and monotony of the Burma campaign. His purely animal instinct for escape finally leads him "over the hill." Later, near capture, he fires blindly at his commanding officer and commits what can only be viewed in a military court as murder. Realizing this, he plunges into the jungle and wanders in a delirious state. He is found, nursed back to health and befriended by a native tribe. Here Goff has to think out his problem. Finally his sense of responsibility snaps to attention. He returns to accept the noose which awaits him.

The second story is balanced upon a more conventional fulcrum. Sgt. Baker is part of a military hospital unit. A freak war emergency throws him into the front lines. He finds himself holding an unfamiliar instrument, a rifle, and surrounded by sudden death. When brought face to face with the enemy, he becomes as frozen and silent as his weapon. The story concerns the manner in which Baker battles his fear and the sort of man he becomes.

The two stories fit tongue-in-groove. The "Two Soldiers" themselves have much in common though they are racially different. No spit-and-polish warriors these. They are both identified by "the beard that went unshaved," the rifle that went uncleaned. Both must make the nearly impossible adjustments that bloodshed and iron discipline demand. Both are victims of a common enemy, the war itself. Both rise to reclaim their manhood. Davis sees essential final dignity in both men and, by extension, in mankind.

The stories are comparable even in shortcomings. Their respective transformations of both soldiers occur suddenly. Safely away from capture and abuse, a soldier such as Goff would probably hide out indefinitely. Similarly, a man in the grip of a Baker-size fear probably would not conquer it in the course of a single day's skirmish.

Except for the passages devoted to Goff's stay in the jungle, the book deals with the more conventional aspects of Army life. Davis's version makes no attempt to conceal the elemental rawness of war situations. He writes in true "dog face" idiom with an overlay of sweat and blood.

ROBERT FRIEDMAN.

Midget of the Moulin Rouge

The Tragic Life of Toulouse-Lautrec. By Leonard and Elizabeth Hutton. (Random House, 277 pp., $5.)

In their study of Toulouse-Lautrec the Hansons go beyond the popular conception of the tragedy in the painter's life. As they see it, the real tragedy lay not in his physical deformity but in the extraordinary contradiction that forever warred inside the man—in public the besotted sensualist, in private the dedicated artist. These inner contradictions, they contend, gave him no peace and caused him far more mental anguish than his physical deformity. Strangely enough, what they do attribute to his bodily malformation was his inability to endow his work with true depth or emotion. Consequently they rate him a major artist rather than a great painter.

This cool appraisal sums up the Hansons' approach to their subject—factual and not fanciful, sympathetic but not sentimental, admiring but not idolatrous. The book is handsomely printed, jacketed and illustrated.

THOMAS L. STOKES

Hope Brings Harmony to Democrats

VERY IMPRESSIVE AT THE ANNUAL governors' conference, so far as Democrats among them are concerned, is the manifest determination to avoid a North-South split at the party's August convention in Chicago.

HARRIMAN

You find duplicated among leaders of the party here outside of the South, including aspirants for the Presidential and Vice Presidential nominations, the same confidence so often expressed these days by Southern Democratic leaders in Congress in Washington that the party will be able to agree on a civil rights plank in its platform without a "walk-out" from the convention by Southerners. There is evident a new spirit of tolerance in which both sides seem to be seeking middle ground.

This is exhibited most strikingly by a definite relaxation in formerly rigid attitudes by Northern figures hitherto regarded as somewhat extreme, among them Gov. Averell Harriman of New York and Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan.

It is apparent that some quiet missionary work has been going on across the Mason and Dixon Line.

Looking to November.

What all this reflects is a new optimism among Democrats as they look toward the November election, which means that the presidential nomination now has a more alluring aspect.

That naturally conduces to a desire for party harmony among the aspirants so that there will be a united party to lead—or, at least, as near a united party as is possible for Democrats.

The vibrant feeling among Democrats was expressed by one of the party's new and up-and-coming Eastern leaders, Gov. Robert Meyer of New Jersey, who observed that the party is in better shape today in every way than it was four years ago.

This, he said, is plain in the composition of the Governors' Conference. Four years ago, there were 30 Republicans, 18 Democrats; today there are 27 Democratic governors, 21 Republican.

Stevenson Men Active.

A check here indicates that one reason why Democrats believe their chances for victory are better is the health of President Eisenhower which they say—and Republicans which they say—will have a tendency to reduce his vote, though Republicans insist he will win easily, despite that, if he runs, and they all insist he will run.

The competition inspired by the new hope of victory among Democrats is exemplified in the buttonholing going on here among the Governors on behalf of various candidates, most of whom have agents here, so that there is an atmosphere of a miniature national convention. Most open about it are lieutenants of Adlai Stevenson, regarded now as the front runner.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J.

Installed in a hotel two blocks from that where the Governors are quartered are the Stevensons, manager, Jim Finnegan of Philadelphia, and the 1932 candidate's close friend and associate, William Blair, who says very frankly:

"Yes, we are here to make friends for Adlai Stevenson. We have found a very friendly spirit among the Governors."

Already Mr. Stevenson has open and public support from several governors.

Gov. Harriman is here in his own right as New York's chief executive. He assumed, with a smile, that wherever so many Democratic leaders are gathered there will be talk of politics, though he deprecated, with a frown, the thought that anybody should canvass for delegates at a Governors' Conference, which was taken as criticism of the open and unashamed activity on behalf of Adlai Stevenson.

Two Sides of Street.

The civil rights issue was raised here repeatedly in newspaper interviews with the Governors, both Democratic and Republican. And the amusing Governor of California, Goodwin J. Knight, had his contribution.

Saying that the Republicans would write a clear endorsement of the Supreme Court's public school integration decision in their platform, he added:

"I don't believe in selling prayer books on one side of the street and playing cards on the other."

He made no reference to anybody in particular. Both Gov. Harriman and Gov. Williams would certainly disclaim they were in any such category—and they are not, of course. But each was very careful to detach himself from any intention of driving the South out of the party.

Meyner's Tolerance.

In fact, both were sure that the convention could write a plank on civil rights that would be acceptable to a majority of delegates, North and South.

Both disassociated themselves from advocacy of use of force to compel integration other than the legal force of the courts as prescribed by the Supreme Court, and in other ways indicated a leniency toward the South that struck observers as somewhat of a departure from previous attitudes.

A tolerant view toward the South and its segregation problem was taken also by another Northerner, the host, Gov. Meyer. He said that "mere words" in a platform, or anywhere else, are not going to accomplish anything.

Discrimination problems, he said, are not confined to the South, but exist elsewhere, including his own state and many other parts of the North.

Only recently, he said, there was a case of segregation in a New Jersey district which required intervention by the state to rectify.

By MYLES STANDISH
You can't go wrong with "The Student Prince." Its sixth revival by Municipal Opera last night was like meeting an old friend on a balmy evening in a beer garden and indulging in a little gemütlichkeit and a little tender melancholy to melodious and familiar strains of a string orchestra in the background, with an occasional oompah of a brass band in the distance.

Certainly Sigmund Romberg was more lavish with lush melody in this than any of his many operetta works, if you'll count "Blossom Time" as merely an adaptation of Schubert. The prologue and first act is rich with them—the lusty male choruses and drinking songs, the poignant "Golden Days," the sentimental "Deep in My Heart, Dear," the rather haunting and lovely "Serenade," the gracious and evocative "Gaudemus Igitur." Give them any decent and spirited rendition, as they did last night, and you've got yourself a nice evening, as the opening night crowd of 8000 seemed to reflect.

The book and lyrics by Dorothy Donnelly, adapted from the play "Old Heidelberg," has a roccoco ornamentation, an obnoxious sentimentality, and a tendency to the obvious figure of speech that make them seem old-fashioned compared with the modern musical play—or for that matter, to some of the smarter earlier musical plays like "The Chocolate Soldier" and "The Merry Widow." Eyes are as bright as stars. The moon is white as blossoms on the bough or is the sweet May moon. Dreams are fashioned of starlight, perfume and dew. Lips are red and sweet as the fruit on the tree. The path of duty for Prince Karl Franz is stern. The King commands. The prime minister unctuously suggests. The comedy relief is pure corn, although I must say that Fred Harper last night, as Lutz the valet, edited and handled some of the reeking old lines with a wispiness and debonair deftness which made them nothing to be too ashamed of—the fellow was even downright funny on occasion.

But all this, if done with sincerity in its dramatic theme of the search for a lost youth and love denied a royal prince who too soon became a King, has its spirit of the Heidelberg students' drinking bouts, its fervor of youth and its poignancy. Schmalz may be affecting in its very unabashed intensity.

This production, while quite pleasing, does not quite measure up to the fine one on the Forest Park stage four years ago, when the musical was revived after an absence of 19 years.

Surviving are his wife, Katherine; a son, William F. Jackson; two daughters, Mrs. David Moran and Mrs. William Jackson, all of the St. Louis area; two brothers, G. R. Jackson of Nome, Alaska, and F. G. Jackson of Winona, Minn., and a sister, Mrs. Charles Mercier of Minneapolis.

Three Post-Dispatch employees will retire next Sunday, it was announced today. They are Joseph Schmal, 4321 Grace avenue; Alois F. Gastreich Jr., 195 Jefferson Barracks road, Lemay; and Arthur Broker, 6533 Myron avenue, Pine Lawn.

Schmal, 75 years old, has been employed in the rotogravure department for 22 years. He was transferred to the department's office in 1946 to handle cost accounting on Parade magazine, Sunday supplement of the Post-Dispatch. Gastreich, a pressman at the rotogravure plant, was employed by the company June 13, 1921. He is 60 years old. Broker, 79, has been in the rotogravure business for 51 years. He has been with the Post-Dispatch for the last nine years.

CHARLES J. BECKER, RETIRED WAREHOUSE MANAGER, DIES

Charles J. Becker, retired warehouse manager for General Grocer Co., died yesterday of cancer at St. Joseph's Hospital, Kirkwood. He was 74 years old.

Mr. Becker retired last February after having been associated with General Grocer for 19 years. Prior to that he operated his own retail grocery store at 3700 Fairview avenue for 27 years.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. F. Manson Gilbert, with whom he had lived at 2013 West Big Bend road, Kirkwood; two grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren. Funeral services will be Thursday at 9 a.m. at Mary Queen of Peace Church, 680 West Lockwood avenue, Webster Groves, with burial in St. Peter & Paul cemetery.

WILEY M. STRINGER DIES, HEADED ASPHALT FIRM

Wiley M. Stringer, former president of the St. Louis Asphalt Co., died yesterday of infirmities at his home, 500 Dickson avenue, Kirkwood. He was 80 years old.

Mr. Stringer also had been president of the Cotto-Waxo Co. and the Sweep-O Co., 2737 Papin street. He retired from active participation in all three firms about seven years ago. An elder in the Kirkwood Presbyterian Church, Mr. Stringer also was a thirty-second degree Mason.

He is survived by his wife, of the Dickson avenue address; three daughters, Mrs. Reno Hahn, Mrs. William Westbrock and Miss Lorene A. Stringer; and a brother, Clarence Stringer. Private funeral services will be held tomorrow.

Dentist Dead

DR. VIRGIL LOEB DIES

AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Dentist and Physician for 50 Years Was Authority on Oral Diseases.

DR. VIRGIL LOEB

Dr. Virgil Loeb, a practicing dentist and physician in St. Louis for nearly 50 years and widely known authority on diseases of the mouth, died early today at his home, 4406 McPherson avenue, after a long illness.

Dr. Loeb, 73 years old, retired from active practice about a year ago. He had offices in the Beaumont Medical Building, 3720 Washington boulevard, and had been a lecturer in Washington University Medical School since 1925. He was professor of stomatology in the dental school there from 1921 to 1934.

Born in Columbia, Mo., Dr. Loeb took his undergraduate work at the University of Missouri, then studied at St. Louis University, receiving both medical and dental degrees in 1906.

After further study abroad he began practice here in 1907 and also taught oral surgery at St. Louis University until 1917.

In World War I he served as a major with the Medical Corps and was a consultant in facial surgery at Meves Hospital center in France.

He was president of the St. Louis Dental Society in 1916 and of the Missouri Dental Association in 1935-36. He was a member of the staffs of Deaconess, Jewish, St. Louis Maternity and St. Louis Children's hospitals.

Surviving are his wife, the former Therese Meltzer; a son, Dr. Virgil Loeb Jr.; two daughters, Mrs. Norman Bierman and Mrs. Max Deutch, and a sister, Mrs. Max Mayer, all of St. Louis. Funeral services will be private.

FAN'S SONG ABOUT PARK OPERA TO BE GIVEN ON RADIO

The Municipal Opera attendance record to beat is one claimed by Jerry Colonna, a clothing salesman, who says he has never missed a show in the Forest Park theater's 38 seasons.

Colonna, 2468 Helen avenue, Brentwood, whose hobby is writing and dedicating poems to his friends, is such an enthusiastic opera-goer that he has written a verse he calls "The Municipal Opera Waltz." Musical Director Edwin McArthur has set Colonna's words to music.

The song will be presented next Tuesday at 7 p.m. on the radio program, "Summer in St. Louis," over radio station KMOX. A critic of his own efforts, Colonna said, "The words to the song are not my best, but Mr. McArthur's waltz is one of the prettiest."

BECKMANN EXHIBIT

WILL OPEN FRIDAY

33 Oils by German Expressionist Included in Show at Art Museum.

An exhibition of 33 paintings and some water colors and drawings by Max Beckmann, German expressionist who taught at Washington University for two years, will open at City Art Museum Friday and remain on view through July 31.

Nineteen of the oils are being shown for the first time in St. Louis. Many of this group have never before been exhibited in this country. Other works belong to the museum's collection or were lent by private owners.

Beckmann died in New York in 1950. He came to the United States in 1947 and taught painting at Washington University School of Fine Arts until 1949. At the time of his death he was teaching at the Brooklyn Museum.

The exhibit includes two canvases executed on a grand scale. They are "The Sinking of the Titanic," based on the loss of the White Star liner that went down after hitting an iceberg in 1912, and "The Destruction of Messina," depicting an Italian earthquake disaster of 1908.

Among the Beckmann oils never before on public view here will be the following:

"Still Life with Wine Flask and Celery," "Still Life with Onions," "Night Scene with View of Canal," all done in 1949; "Shipwreck" (1903), "Still Life with Mask" (1931), "Morning" (1933) and "Landscape with Road" (1943).

"Stormy Weather" (1944), "Two Girls in a Night Club" (1947), "Seascape at Zandvoort" (1934), "Portrait of Dr. Ludwig Berger" (1945), "Das Bad" (1945), "City Night" (1950), "At the Lido" (1950) and "Still Life with Candle and Profile" (1934).

Previously shown here, but included in the exhibition, are the following: "Fred Conway" (1917), "Still Life with Table" (1949), "Colorado Landscape" (1950), "The King" (1937), "Portrait of B" (1949), "The Female Bar" (1936), "Olympia" (1946).

"The Artist" (1943), "The Acrobats" (1929), "Portrait of Mme. Tessier as Amphitryon" (1929), "Young Man by the Sea" (1943), "Christ and the Woman Taken in Adultery" (1917) and "Four Men Around a Table."

Some of the works were lent by anonymous donors and by Mr. and Mrs. Morton D. May, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Bernoulli and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Hudson. Hudson is dean of the Washington University School of Fine Arts.

MISS KARIN FRORSBERG

SWEDISH TEACHER TO DELVE INTO OLD MYSTERY KILLING

A mystery involving the death of a Swedish religious leader in Illinois more than a hundred years ago will be investigated by a Stockholm school teacher, Miss Karin Frorsberg, who visited City Art Museum yesterday as the guest of Mrs. Edwin Grossman, of the museum's educational department.

MISS KARIN FRORSBERG

Miss Frorsberg, 34 years old, is in this country on a fellowship grant from the University of Stockholm to look into the history of the old Bishop Hill Colony, a group of 1500 Swedish immigrants who settled between Peoria and Rock Island in the period after 1846.

The immigrants were victims of religious persecution in Sweden, Miss Frorsberg said. They were led by Eric Jansson, who was shot and killed by one of the colonists in 1850. The colony went out of existence in 1860 and the site now is a state park.

One of Miss Frorsberg's first projects in connection with her historical investigation will be to check old records at the state capital in Springfield, in an effort to throw light on the circumstances of Jansson's death.

The fifty-fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Dolan, 11944 Riverview drive, will be celebrated at a mass tomorrow at St. Aloysius Church, 5604 North Magnolia avenue.

Dolan, 74 years old, was a cattle buyer in the St. Louis area for Swift & Co. before retiring. He and his wife have one daughter, Mrs. William A. Mueller, and a grandson.

Composer Gilebre Dies. LONDON, June 26 (AP)—The Moscow radio has announced the death of Reinhold Gilebre, famed Russian composer and winner of many Stalin prizes for music. He was 85 years old. The West knew him best for the Sallor's Dance from his ballet "The Red Poppy" and his third symphony, "Ilya Murometz."

3316 IN SUMMER CLASSES

Summer school enrollment at Washington University totals 3316, Oliver W. Wagner, registrar, announced today. This is an increase of 314 above last year's figure.

Of the total enrollment, 2320 students are in the first session of summer school. The other 996 are enrolled in night school courses in University College.

CHARLES J. BECKER, RETIRED WAREHOUSE MANAGER, DIES

Charles J. Becker, retired warehouse manager for General Grocer Co., died yesterday of cancer at St. Joseph's Hospital, Kirkwood. He was 74 years old.

Mr. Becker retired last February after having been associated with General Grocer for 19 years. Prior to that he operated his own retail grocery store at 3700 Fairview avenue for 27 years.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. F. Manson Gilbert, with whom he had lived at 2013 West Big Bend road, Kirkwood; two grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren. Funeral services will be Thursday at 9 a.m. at Mary Queen of Peace Church, 680 West Lockwood avenue, Webster Groves, with burial in St. Peter & Paul cemetery.

WILEY M. STRINGER DIES, HEADED ASPHALT FIRM

Wiley M. Stringer, former president of the St. Louis Asphalt Co., died yesterday of infirmities at his home, 500 Dickson avenue, Kirkwood. He was 80 years old.

Mr. Stringer also had been president of the Cotto-Waxo Co. and the Sweep-O Co., 2737 Papin street. He retired from active participation in all three firms about seven years ago. An elder in the Kirkwood Presbyterian Church, Mr. Stringer also was a thirty-second degree Mason.

He is survived by his wife, of the Dickson avenue address; three daughters, Mrs. Reno Hahn, Mrs. William Westbrock and Miss Lorene A. Stringer; and a brother, Clarence Stringer. Private funeral services will be held tomorrow.

HOW TO LEAVE HOME AND LIKE IT-- TAKE THE MRS.

(She goes one way free on Wabash's "Second Honeymoon" Plan)

You and the Mrs. don't have to be going on your second honeymoon to qualify for this moneysaving Wabash travel plan. You could, for instance, just be planning to mix a little well-deserved pleasure with business.

Whatever your motive, you can both look forward to a happier trip when you leave and return on the Wabash. Once you're aboard, take a stroll together along the wide Wabash aisles. St. Engelbert Has Rebuilding Problem.

SEVERAL members of the St. Engelbert team that won the national junior championship will be lost to the club when it starts its title defense next season. Manager Ed Scott has already listed several youngsters who will be "as good as the boys we lose," to assure a continuing success. But a glance at the list of "graduates" because of the 18-years age barrier makes one appreciate the difficulty before Scott and his coach, Harry Sunder.

Departing from the champions will be both fullbacks, Vince Ventimiglia and Bill Anderson; the star center halfback, Dick Zurmuehlen; both wing forwards, Bill O'Brien and John Groce, and two reserves, Ron Unger and Jim Davis.

Center Forward George Endler has one more season in the junior class but some others have two more years, including Andy Manna, left halfback; and Bill King, goalie.

Most of the St. Engelbert players who defeated Heidelberg in the national final have been playing together for four seasons or more, Manager Scott said.

"I know we are not a polished team now, but we will show great improvement next season," he added. "It's hard to impress on kids the need for better teamwork; they want to do it the quicker way, with the long kick. They learned a lot from these two games, against Chicago Schwaben and Heidelberg, and our teaching task should be a bit easier now."

Despite the very bad weather, St. Engelbert came out of the final match, "in the black" financially, Scott reported. So far as the records show, this is the first time a national junior final paid its own way—another fine tribute to St. Louis soccer.

King Finnegan Saw Soccer's Great Need.

JOHNNY (KING) FINNEGAN, the soccer star of 30 years ago who died Sunday, was not one given to carping about the less than perfect football situation here. Although he had a perfect right to crow about the glories of his own career, he was a man who could appreciate the capabilities of present day players.

But there was one thing that distressed him. He had hoped to see the day when St. Louis soccer would have its own stadium. Writing a brief history of soccer for the official program of the 1948 United States Olympic trials, Finnegan called upon football people here to concentrate their efforts toward building their own park. He attributed many of the game's ills to the fact that the important, title games often went begging for lack of a place to play.

"The supply of playing talent is greater here now than at any time in my memory," said Finnegan recently. "It's unthinkable that the people in charge of the game can't find themselves a park they can call their own. They need a place to play their big games in the spring and early summer without being pushed around to make room for baseball."

Now that the city holds two of the three national soccer titles, the United States Amateur and the United States Junior, there may be a greater incentive to soccer stadium building. Without Oakland Stadium, which is soon to be torn down, the Kuttis intercity games program is threatened. The expense of intercity matches in the national title tournaments makes it necessary to play them in an enclosed park without too great a rental. Neither the Board of Education, which controls Public Schools Stadium, nor the Park Department, which supervises the municipal grounds, encourages the use of its facilities for private promotions. So, there is only one way for soccer to move: a soccer stadium as such.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning for Finnegan, a soccer star here for 15 years dating from the turn of the century. Finnegan, a lawyer for the past 40 years, was picked to represent St. Louis in intercity competition as early as 1901 when he played in the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo.

Through the years he played for many teams, notably the St. Therese, West Ends, Jefferson Club, Rawlins, C. B. C., St. Matthews and Columbus Club, which he managed.

Mr. Finnegan was a Municipal Athletic Association official for 13 years and president of the Muni two years. The funeral will be from Donnelly's to St. Louis Cathedral at 9 a.m.

Hogan's Great Rally Enables U.S. to Keep Canada Cup

Ben Also Captures Singles

VIRGINIA WATER, England, June 26 (AP)—Ben Hogan won the international individual golf championship today and, paired with Sam Snead, retained the Canada Cup team trophy for the United States in a strong finish. Hogan shot a 68 on the final round for a 72-hole total of 277. Snead also had a 68 for 290 and America's winning team total was 567.

Ben Hogan, shaking off his weariness, shot a dazzling three-under-par 32 on the front nine of the final round.

At the same time, Snead went out in 34 and virtually clinched the Canada Cup team competition for the United States as Canada's third-round leaders dropped back.

After 63 holes, Hogan had a score of 241 in the individual event to 244 for Roberto de Vicenzo of Mexico, who was playing ahead of him. De Vicenzo, a stroke ahead of Hogan and one behind Canada's Stan Leonard at the end of the third round this morning, went out in 36.

Leonard, the third-round leader, came apart at the start of the final round, took a 41 on the front nine and dragged down his partner in the team competition, Al Balding. The Canadians started the final round with a three-stroke edge over the Americans in the team competition.

Eagle for Ben. Hogan had an eagle three at the 505-yard fourth, where he blasted into the cup from a sand trap bordering the green. Both Hogan and Snead had birdies on the 398-yard eighth.

De Vicenzo blew his big chance on the back nine, taking a bogey six on the last hole for a 74. That gave him a 72-hole score of 285.

De Vicenzo's partner, Percy Clifford, finished with an 80 for an individual 316 and gave Mexico a team score of 598. Leonard suffered a letdown at the start of the final round, taking three straight holes that carried him four over par. Hogan, meanwhile, matched par for the first three holes to climb two strokes ahead of the Canadian.

The little Texan moved three strokes ahead with an eagle three at the fourth. Then Hogan and Leonard matched par-three on the fifth. Hogan went five strokes ahead of Leonard on the seventh when the Canadian double-bogeyed his second hole on the front nine while Hogan matched par four. The veteran American pro picked up another stroke on the eighth with a birdie three, and made the turn seven strokes ahead of Leonard. The scores for the first nine holes of the final round were Hogan 32, Snead 34, Balding 37 and Leonard 41.

Nine-Stroke Lead. Going into the final nine holes, the Americans led the Canadians by nine strokes for the team trophy.

Hogan went eight strokes ahead of Leonard on the eleventh hole when the Canadian took a bogey five. Each player bogeyed the twelfth. Hogan, who announced this would be his last appearance in a foreign tournament, continued to match par through the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth holes. Leonard bogeyed the fifteenth to fall nine strokes behind the leader.

Court Denies Injunction in Football Suit

SANTA FE, N.M., June 26 (AP)—United States District Judge Waldo H. Rogers held today the Chicago Cardinals football club did not have a contract with Quarterback Sam Etcheverry and denied them an injunction to block him from playing for the Montreal Alouettes.

The court held Etcheverry legally rescinded his signing of a Cardinals contract when he told a club official on the night of Jan. 4, 1955, to disregard the contract he had placed in the mail that day.

The judge said "it is crystal clear to me" from the language of the National Football League's constitution and by-laws that a player contract to be effective must bear the approval of Commissioner Bert Bell.

Chicago Mayor Suggests Soldier Field as World Series Site, If---

CHICAGO, June 26 (UP)—If the vagaries of baseball don't blast Mayor Richard Daley's plans to hold the World Series in sprawling Soldier Field, the traffic problem certainly will, park district officials said today.

Daley, a Chicago White Sox rooster since childhood, was so elated with the Sox's sweep of their four-game weekend series with the New York Yankees that he called a news conference yesterday to suggest Soldier Field as the site for the World Series.

He reminded reporters that he had predicted the Sox would take all four games from the league-leading Yankees, and advised newsmen to "get ready to cover" the Sox in the World Series. Daley opined that the 120,000 fans capable of squeezing into municipally-owned Soldier Field would make a nice crowd. But Robert A. Black, the Chicago Park District chief engineer, quickly dashed the Mayor's hopes.

He said the oblong field, fine for football games, could boast the world's longest centerfield, but something would have to be done about the right and left fields.

In order to give the right and left fielder's space to roam around, Black said, the walls would have to be knocked down at a cost of about $100,000. But even that wouldn't completely solve the problem, Black added, since the left fielder would wind up in the south lane of traffic on high-speed Lake Shore drive, and the right fielder would be stationed in the north lane.

National Junior Soccer Champions Have No Kick Coming

All 10 U.S. Women Win Openers At Wimbledon; Trumans in Crowd

WIMBLEDON, England, June 26 (UP)—All 10 American women entrants in the Wimbledon tennis tournament, headed by Louise Brough, Beverly Baker Fleitz and Althea Gibson, won their opening matches today without the loss of a single set.

Miss Brough, the defending champion seeking her fifth women's singles crown, easily defeated 16-year-old Jean Forbes of South Africa, 6-0, 6-0. Miss Fleitz, who is seeded second in an opening-round doubles match, Don Candy of Australia and Bob Perry of Los Angeles gained the second round of doubles with a 6-3, 6-1, 6-2 victory over L. V. Surville of Australia and Hugh Sweeney of Los Angeles.

Monsanto Wins, 9-8. Monsanto nipped Cupples, 9-8, in a Y.M.C.A. Industrial League baseball game. The victors were paced by Rightfielder's Strubarik's triple with two on in the ninth. He later scored what proved to be the winning run.

Trumans Watched. Former President Harry Truman, his wife and a party arrived during the afternoon and took a front-row seat in the royal box at the center court.

The Trumans watched Gardner Mulloy and Bud Robineau of Denver, Colo., lose to Kurt Nielsen and Torben Ulrich of Denmark, 6-4, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2, in a doubles match. They also saw Australia's Lew Hoad and Ken Rosewall trounce Canada's Lawrence Barclay and Paul Willey, 6-1, 6-1, 6-2.

Other U.S. Winners. Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif., the last United States woman to complete her singles match today, easily defeated Mrs. J. A. Collier of England, 6-2, 6-2, in the first round.

Other United States winners were: Betty Rosenquest Pratt, former New Jersey girl now living in Jamaica, B.W.I., in the second round, and Barbara Scofield Davidson of Milwaukee, Wis., Dorothy Head Knodel of Forest Hills, N.Y., Shirley Fry of St. Petersburg, Fla., Louise Snow of Oakland, Calif., and Jean Clarke of Birmingham, Ala., all in the first round.

Mrs. Pratt eliminated Marion Craig-Smith of England, 6-4, 6-3; Mrs. Davidson trimmed Miss S. E. Waters, England, 8-6, 6-2; Miss Fry won over Christiane Mercelis of Belgium, 6-2, 6-1; Mrs. Snow defeated Sheila Speight of Britain, 6-0, 6-3, and Miss Clarke eliminated Esrelle Van Tonder, South Africa, 6-1, 7-5.

Breeze for Miss Brough. The 33-year-old Miss Brough required only 35 minutes to dispose of her teen-aged South African opponent. She broke Miss Forbes's service in the first set and never was headed. The American Wimbledon Cup star fell behind in points only twice in the first set and three times in the second. Only four games were deuced. Her hitting was sharp and accurate.

Miss Brough's Wimbledon triumphs have been topped only by eight-time winner Helen Wills Moody. Americans sought the women's crown for the thirteenth straight tournament. In men's doubles, Billy Gilbert of New York and J. Allen Morris of Atlanta, Ga., defaulted their opening round match to Geoffrey Ward and I. J.

Keating Calls For Congress Boxing Inquiry

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—Representative Keating (Rep., New York, said today Congress should investigate professional boxing and consider "setting up a boxing czar."

Keating is senior Republican member of the House Judiciary Committee and would be its chairman if the next Congress had a Republican majority. He said in a radio interview he would make a gambling investigation "my first order of business" if "we have a Republican Congress."

"If I thought it would do any good," Keating said, he would propose an "investigation of gambling and racketeering in connection with sports and athletics."

He said a boxing inquiry would be the most urgent part of such an investigation, adding, "I feel there are many parallels between the rotten state of boxing today and the problems which beset professional baseball 37 years ago."

He said the same remedy adopted for baseball might be considered "setting up a boxing czar... an iron-fisted leader."

"Professional boxing... seems to have been shot through with underworld connections and big-time gambling operations," Keating said.

He asserted the government also should go after monopolistic practices in the boxing industry, as it has in one pending action, and should extend this activity into the affairs of "the smaller fry—small clubs and organizations—which restrict fighters, managers and promoters in their own area."

Keating also said the government should study the effect of television "in the killing off of the smaller clubs where talent must be developed."

He said the Democratic leadership seems to have "a strange reluctance" to investigate organized crime. He continued: "You know the Democratic leaders don't care for Senator Kefauver (Democrat of Tennessee) very much since he disclosed the tie-up between organized crime and some of the big city machines, and they are not anxious to have any more evidence along those lines."

Freese Ordered to Take Army Physical

WHEELING, W.Va., June 26 (AP)—Gene Freese, 22-year-old third baseman of the Pittsburgh Pirates, was ordered by his local draft board to report July 2 for a pre-induction physical examination at Wheeling.

Freese, who has been with the Pirates for two years, previously was rejected for military service in 1953 for water on a knee.

Jane Nelson Defeated in British Golf

SUNNINGDALE, England, June 26 (UP)—Pat Lesser, the United States amateur champion from Seattle, Wash., led seven Americans into the third round of the British Women's Open golf championship today.

Miss Lesser defeated Miss Arlette Jacquet of Belgium, 5 and 4, in the second round after winning her first round match from Cecil De Rothchild of France, 4 and 3.

Advancing along with Miss Lesser were Barbara Romack, Sacramento, Calif., the 1954 United States Amateur champion, and runner-up last year; Margaret (Willie) Smith, St. Clair, Mich.; Polly Riley, Fort Worth, Tex.; Mary Ann Downey, Baltimore; Mary Patton Janssen, Charlottesville, Va., and Mrs. John Pennington, Buffalo, N.Y.

Jane Nelson of Indianapolis was the only American second-round casualty, losing to Joan George Valentine of Britain, the defending champion, 1 up. However, three other Americans had been eliminated in the first round.

Miss Romack turned back Mrs. Frank Stranahan, Toledo, O., in the first round, 8 and 7, and then trounced Mrs. Cosmo Falconer, Britain, in the afternoon, 5 and 4.

Miss Smith advanced with a 5-and-4 triumph over Mrs. Tess Hurlock of Britain in the afternoon after squeezing out a 1-up victory over Mrs. Stuart Smith of Britain on the first round.

Miss Riley defeated Zara Bolton of Britain, 3 and 2, and then beat Mrs. David Allow, Britain, 2 and 1, while Miss Downey advanced at the expense of Joan Redgate, Britain, 5 and 4, and Miss Hazel Glennie, Britain, 3 and 2.

Miss Janssen won a hard-fought 1-up victory over Jeanne Blagood, British Curtis Cup star, in the second round after defeating Marianne Gripwall, Sweden, in the morning, 5 and 3.

Mrs. Pennington turned back Beatrice Holbrook, Britain, 3 and 2, after beating Pamela Moore of Britain, 1 up.

Musial and Boyer Appear Sure of Places on N.L. All-Star Team

Attendance of 100,000 Forecast For Two Days of Olympic Trials

LOS ANGELES, June 26 (AP)—The United States Olympic fund will get a boost of $100,000 to $150,000 from the final track and field trials here, Bill Nicholas predicted.

Nicholas is general manager of the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum where the business of selecting the Olympic team will be run off Friday night and Saturday afternoon.

He foresaw a crowd of 55,000 for Friday night and 45,000 for Saturday. He expected few, if any, reserved seats would be left by Friday, 32,000 reserved places already having been sold for each of the programs.

"It's the biggest advance sale we've ever had for a track meet," he said.

Nearly all the reserved seats on the south side of the Coliseum are gone and 6000 on the north side went on sale yesterday. The prices are $5 for the two programs, $3 for each performance.

Nicholas said that as of yesterday ticket buyers had contributed $2200 to the fund in addition to the admission price.

Everything above actual expenses goes to the fund, Nicholas said. The Coliseum commission, he added, is charging no rent and, furthermore, guaranteed the fund $50,000 or the net if that's bigger as it appears certain to be.

The brilliant array of talent is on hand, for the most part, working out. The Coliseum will be open to them again today, then will be closed until meet time. Most competitors will finish their training at the University of Southern California practice field.

Olympic Coach Jim Kelly of Minnesota said the team selected here—the first three finishers and the fourth as an alternate in each of 17 events—would be in excellent condition.

There will be a series of summer meets to keep the men in shape, then after the squad re-assembles here Oct. 15, there will be another series of meets to put them in top condition for the takeoff for Melbourne in November, Kelly told track writers yesterday.

If any team member is not in the best shape, or suffers injuries, the alternate will replace him for the trip to Australia.

NEW YORK, June 26 (UP)—Mail by the bale swamped the major league All-Star vote tabulators today and estimates ranged that as many as 50,000 to 75,000 ballots still were to be counted which could bring drastic revisions in the personnel of both teams.

There were more than 25,000 votes counted over the weekend and the office of Commissioner Ford C. Frick said there probably would be two more announcements Friday with the final official release of the 16 players who will be in the starting lineups of the game at Washington, July 10.

The balloting ended last Friday, but the more than 400 agencies throughout the nation, mainly newspapers, radio and TV stations, were given until Tuesday to get their final totals to the commission's office.

Because of the heavy influx of late ballots, many coming from the more distant points in the Midwest and Far West, it was conceivable that five out of the eight positions in the National League and two of those in the American could come up with new leaders before the final count.

The closest races in the National with the leaders named first involved Red Schoendienst of the Giants and Johnny Temple of the Red Sox at second base, Ernie Banks of the Cubs and Roy McMillan of the Redlegs at shortstop, Rip Repulski of the Cardinals and Frank Robinson of the Redlegs at left field, Gus Bell of the Redlegs and Duke Snider of the Dodgers at center, and Roy Campanella of the Dodgers and Ed Bailey of the Redlegs at catcher.

Significantly, the hot Redlegs were involved either as leaders and runners-up in each of the five close races.

Because of the tremendous leads built up by most of the American Leaguers, it seemed unlikely there would be any changes there except possibly at first base where Mickey Vernon of the Red Sox currently is ahead of Vic Wertz of the Indians, and at third base where George Kell of the Orioles leads Ray Boone of the Tigers.

Center Fielder Mickey Mantle of the Yankees, Catcher Yogi Berra of the Yankees, Shortstop Harvey Kuenn of the Tigers, Second Baseman Nelson Fox of the White Sox, Right Fielder Al Kaline of the Tigers and Left Fielder Ted Williams of the Red Sox seemed to have their jobs sewed up—no matter how the late voting goes.

Similarly, First Baseman Dale Long of the Pirates, Third Baseman Ken Boyer of the Cardinals, and Right Fielder Stan Musial of the Cardinals appeared to be "in" as starters for the National Leaguers.

The latest tabulations (players receiving 5000 or more votes):

AMERICAN LEAGUE
First base: Mickey Vernon, Boston, 45,267; Vic Wertz, Cleveland, 40,175; Bill Skowron, New York, 7244; Roy Sievers, Washington, 6339; Vic Power, Kansas City, 5002.

Cleveland OK'd As Site for Pan-Am Meet

LOS ANGELES, June 26 (AP)—The Cleveland organizing committee for the Pan-American games scheduled in Cleveland in 1958 has until Aug. 15 to submit a financing plan to the games executive committee.

Douglas F. Roby of Detroit, executive committee chairman, said the committee approved a proposed $10,000,000 site in east Cleveland but set the financing plan deadline in yesterday's meeting.

"In the event of failure to give the necessary guarantee by that date, the third Pan-American games will be withdrawn and rewarded to some other city in the Western Hemisphere," Roby said.

The Cleveland City Council is far from agreement on the site and the financing.

One councilman says the proposed site is nine miles from Cleveland's Public Square and that's too far. Another objects to a proposed council appropriation of $1,500,000 for the games. A third wants the state legislature to allocate funds.

Council President Jack P. Russell wants a complete review by a seven-man committee.

John Nagy and Frederick Dickson are representing the Cleveland games committee at the executive sessions continuing here today.

The first Pan-American games were held in Buenos Aires in 1951 and the second in Mexico City in 1955.

Moford Allows Only One Hit in Pitching

OMAHA, June 26 (UP)—Indianapolis humbled the mighty Denver Bears, 10-0, last night to chop the lead of the skidding American Association leaders to 4½ games ahead of the Indians.

Omaha also scored a shutout in the only other game played when the Braves defeated Wichita, 3-0, on a one-hitter pitched by Herb Moford.

Charleson at St. Paul and Louisville at Minneapolis were rained out.

The Denver trouncing marked the first shutout in two years on the Bears' home grounds. Denver players committed three errors while collecting six hits from right-hander John Gray.

Three Indianapolis batters took advantage of the evening to fatten their home run totals. Dave Pope homered in the third, scoring a runner ahead of him. Joe Altobelli and Pope both blasted a home run in the fourth.

The Indians knocked out 13 hits before the Bears put the last Tribesman out.

Moford hurled his best game of the year on the mound of the Omaha Stadium, Improving his season record to five victories out of 10 decisions.

Red Sox Get Dorish. DETROIT, June 26 (AP)—The Baltimore Orioles sold Pitcher Harry Dorish to the Boston Red Sox for the waiver price of $10,000. The sale returns Dorish to the team with which he broke into the American League in 1947.

Trades Have Been Shots in Arm Two Tied for For New Cards, Also Old Ones Medal Honors

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP)—As with in baseball uniforms often helps major league players and it worked wonders this season for Dave Philley and Jim Wilson of the Chicago White Sox, Brooks Lawrence of Cincinnati and Alvin Dark of the Cardinals among others.

Obtained from Baltimore last month, Philley and Wilson are two good reasons the White Sox have climbed rapidly in the American League race. Philley has hit .326 for Chicago after batting only .205 for the Orioles. Wilson, veteran right-hander, has posted a 5-1 record for Marty Marion's improved team. Jim was 4-2 at Baltimore.

Lawrence, possessor of the majors' best won-lost record of 9-0, has been a most pleasant surprise for Manager Birdie Tebbetts. The husky right-hander, who had a 3-8 mark for St. Louis in 1955, was obtained in a winter trade in which Jackie Collum went to the Cards.

Dark has been a ball of fire since his acquisition from the New York Giants earlier this month. He has cracked out 25 hits in 51 trips for a .480 mark. Alvin left the Giants with .252 and has climbed to .285.

Walt Moryn of the Chicago Cubs, Bill Virdon of Pittsburgh, Bob Nieman of Baltimore, Mickey Vernon of the Boston Red Sox and St. Louis' Murry Dickson also have done well with their new affiliations.

Moryn, former Dodger outfielder, is hitting .294. He was picked up in a winter deal along with Don Hoak in exchange for Ransom Jackson.

Hoe is at .211 and Jackson at .28.

Vernon, who was sent to the Buc last month for Bobby Del Greo and Dick Littlefield, has posted a .291 mark for Pittsburgh after leaving St. Louis with .211. Del Greo is traveling a .224 pace against his .200 with the Pirates.

Vernon, twice an American League batting champion is going at a .339 rate for Boston. He has .301 for Washington last season.

Nieman, who was part of the Wilson-Philley deal, has compiled .314 mark for the Orioles after leaving Chicago with .300. Dickson is 4-4 for St. Louis. He was 0-3 for the Philadelphia Phillies.

Clark Gable Listed In Indicate Bidding For Detroit Tigers

HOLLYWOOD, June 26 (UP)—Actress Clark Gable is listed as a member of a group of Detroit-based Hollywood persons seeking to buy the controlling interest in the Detroit Tigers.

Movie Producer Bob Goldstein disclosed yesterday the formation of a syndicate made up of six Detroit business men, himself, Gail and Movie Director Raoul Walsh. He said the group had put up $250,000 as "a sort of token to look at the books and enter a bid."

Gable confirmed he had agreed to join the syndicate. "I used to be great baseball fan," Gable said. "And there is no reason why I can't be again, especially if I own a piece of a club like the Tigers."

COLUMBUS, O., June 26 (AP)—A wide-open race for medal honors was on today in the second round of the fifty-ninth national intercollegiate golf championship qualifier, with 28 sharpshooting students bracketed within three strokes at the top of the heap.

Ohio State University's old man par—he's 72—had a lot of fun with the field of 246 in yesterday's opening 18-hole jaunt, allowing only two of the aspirants to break even with him.

Out front as they swung into today's play were Rudy Boyd, Northwestern senior from LaPorte, Ind., and Bill Redding, Purdue Junior from Logansport, Ind. Each had a pair of double bogies, but Boyd had five birdies and Redding six as they matched par 72. Redding just made it in the gathering darkness which left several players stranded on the course and forced an early return today to complete the round.

Joe Campbell of Purdue, the defending champion, had a 77 and faced the chore of doing as well today if he hoped to get into the match play bracket of 64 players. The consensus was the 153 or 154 would be necessary to assure a berth among the elite.

North Texas State's well-balanced squad had a seven-stroke lead at the halfway mark in the team championship race with a 297 four-man total. The big challengers were Oklahoma A. & M. and Southern California with 304, Houston and Notre Dame with 305.

On the heels of the two Hoosiers in the individual race were six entrants tied at 73, seven others at 74 and 13 with 75, including John Garrett of Rice, who chased Campbell to the wire last year at Knoxville.

Of course.. it costs a little more than other straight bourbons

...but this is
Old Taylor 86

How can Old Taylor 86 cost edderably less than our 100 proof bonded bourbon and only slightly more than most other 86 proof strai?g

The reasons are simple.
Old Taylor 86 is exactly the same quality as our 100 proof bonded bourbon. It costs less, only because of lower taxes.

Yet even in this milder, gentler of, Old Taylor quality is unchanged—rich, mellow, deeply satisfying.

That is why Old Taylor 86 must cost slightly more than some straight bourbons, but they can't measure the difference in taste.

WHITE HOUSE AID WON'T TESTIFY IN SENATE INQUIRY

Declines to Be Questioned About Alleged 'Leaking' of Cabinet Secrets.

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—White House aid Maxwell Rabb declined today to testify before the Senate Investigations subcommittee. Senator McCarthy (Rep., Wisconsin), called his refusal "inexcusably arrogant" conduct that the Senate should punish as contempt.

Rabb, secretary to the Cabinet, sent word "there is nothing I can add" to his denial of yesterday that he or any of his staff "leaked" official documents to author Robert J. Donovan.

He said, "I must respectfully decline" to comply with an invitation that he come in and make that statement under oath, and also tell whether he knows who did give the information to Donovan.

The subcommittee is trying to learn how Donovan obtained "secret documents and materials" about Cabinet meetings for a book he has written about the Eisenhower Administration.

Demand by McClellan, Arkansas, the subcommittee's chairman, demanded that the White House disclose how Donovan got the records. He said he feels that "the White House owes it to this committee, to Congress and the people of the United States to immediately clear up this matter... so that we know whether Congress is being discriminated against."

He said he wants to know whether it is the Administration's policy to make material available to an author and withhold it from Congress—and "if not, how it occurred." But McClellan did not immediately rule on McCarthy's demand that the subcommittee subpoena Rabb.

McCarthy said the subcommittee should do this and itself "determine the punishment" without referring the case to the Justice Department if Rabb again declines to testify.

McClellan said it is obvious that Donovan must have had access to minutes of Cabinet meetings and other official documents in writing his book, "The Inside Story."

McCarthy said the book quotes Attorney General Herbert Brownell as having made some "scurrilous" references to McCarthy. McCarthy said that if Brownell was quoted correctly, "he is guilty of a deliberate misstatement."

McCarthy said Brownell should be invited before the subcommittee to say whether he was correctly quoted.

McClellan directed that the subcommittee staff write to Brownell at once asking about the statements, which the chairman said "amount to a charge" against McCarthy.

Letter of Denial.

Rabb, in his letter to the committee yesterday, said: "While I know Mr. Donovan, neither I nor any member of my staff supplied him with information or papers on Cabinet meetings."

"In fact, I have no knowledge or information relating to the matter outlined in your telegram, and feel that I could be of no help to the committee."

Donovan is White House reporter for the New York Herald Tribune. He took a leave of absence from that post while writing the book.

U.S. JET REPORTED MISSING NEAR RUSSIAN-HELD ISLANDS

CHITOSE, Japan, June 26 (AP)—A United States Air Force jet fighter is missing off northern Japan. In the same area where Russian MIGs shot down an American B-29 19 months ago.

There was no suggestion so far that the fighter had run into trouble with Soviet aircraft. The pilot of the F-86 Sabre jet radioed last shortly after noon (11 p.m. St. Louis time Monday) that he was off the eastern tip of the northern Japanese island of Hokkaido, some 20 miles from the Russian-held Kurile islands. He then had about two hours' fuel left.

Planes are searching for the pilot who is from the Fourth Fighter Wing, stationed at Chitose air base.

6 ST. LOUIS JUDGES FILE DECLARATION TO RETAIN OFFICE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 26 —Six St. Louis judges who hold office under the non-partisan court plan provisions of the State Constitution today filed declarations of candidacy for retention in office in the Nov. 6 election, without opposition.

The declarations, sent by mail to Secretary of State Walter H. Toberman, were submitted by Circuit Judges David A. McClellan, Robert L. Aronson, O. P. Owen, Ivan Lee Holt Jr., and Franklin E. Reagan, and Probate Judge Thomas J. Boland.

Circuit judges are elected for six-year terms and probate judges for four-year terms.

Judges under the constitutional plan must file declarations of candidacy for retention at least 60 days before the general election.

BRAZIL ARRESTS ALBANIAN IN PLOT TO KILL PRESIDENT

RIO DE JANEIRO, June 26 (AP)—The Brazilian government announced today it had broken up a plot to assassinate President Juscelino Kubitschek and arrested an Albanian citizen.

Col. Luna Pedrosa, head of the political police, identified the man as Antonio Consueh Valentim, alias Guido Antonio Lipertenn. Authorities would not say what motivated the reported plot. They seemed to attach little importance to the event. The man under arrest was held incommunicado.

Kubitschek himself said the only action that would be taken against the man would be to expel him. He deplored publicity given the incident.

BOY KILLED, BICYCLE RUNS AGAINST TRUCK

Youth Knocked Clear When His Head Hits Side of Trailer.

Joseph Fallinger, 14, years old, of 3940 Dover place, was killed today when his bicycle ran against the side of a tractor-trailer on Grand avenue near Bates street.

Police said Fallinger, who was riding the bicycle north on Grand, apparently swerved across the street and into the tractor-trailer, which was headed south. He was knocked clear after his head struck the side of the trailer near the left rear wheel.

The truck driver, Louis Maginn, 4435 Gravois avenue, told police he observed the accident in his rear vision mirror. He had not noticed the boy swerve toward him, he said.

Fallinger lived with his stepfather and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Barlog. Barlog is a lathe operator.

ADM. ERNEST KING FUNERAL TO BE FRIDAY IN WASHINGTON

PORTSMOUTH, N.H., June 26 (AP)—Funeral services for Fleet Adm. Ernest J. King, who died here yesterday at the age of 77, will be held Friday at Washington National Cathedral, with burial at the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

The body was to be borne by air to Washington today and will be taken to the cathedral tomorrow morning to lie in state with an honor guard until the service.

LUTHERANS APPROVE COMMON CONFESSION

Missouri Synod Move Is Meaningless After Merger Pact by Other Bodies.

By JOHN T. STEWART Church Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 26—The "common confession," which has been a bone of contention in Lutheran circles for eight years, yesterday was approved by the Missouri Synod, then consigned to the archives of the church.

Synod leaders agreed that the confession had failed to produce any Lutheran unity, and can no longer be used as a basis for negotiations aimed at such unity.

The convention of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod unanimously adopted a resolution stating that "hereafter the common confession be not regarded or employed as a functioning document toward the establishment of fellowship with other church bodies," but that it "be recognized as a statement in harmony with the scriptures and the Lutheran confessions." The effect of the resolution was to bury the long document. Any future discussions of unity between the Synod and other Lutheran bodies must start from scratch.

The common confession has been one of many acts on the part of Missouri Synod to which its sister Synod, Wisconsin, has objected.

The confession had been agreed upon by the Missouri Synod and the American Lutheran Church; and it was the latter church that upset the agreement. The American Lutheran Church has voted to merge with two other Lutheran bodies into a new Lutheran Church as of Jan. 1, 1960, the other bodies being the Evangelical Lutheran Church, and United Evangelical Lutheran Church.

Since Missouri Synod has no synodical relations with either Evangelical Lutheran Church or United Evangelical Lutheran Church, the Synod was left with the common confession on its hands and nothing to do with it but file it.

Just before the Synod admitted, in its resolution, that its own efforts to achieve unity had failed, the convention listened to addresses in praise of Lutheran unity by two fraternal visitors.

The Rev. Dr. Frederick A. Schlotz of Minneapolis, president of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, expressed the hope that the proposed new Lutheran Church which his body will join, may hold discussions with the Missouri Synod looking toward doctrinal unity.

The other speaker on Lutheran unity was the Rev. John E. Nopola of Esko, Minn., president of the 500-member National Evangelical Lutheran Church. He said, "I feel that the time is not too far off when we shall be an organic part of the Missouri Synod."

The Missouri Synod yesterday reaffirmed its stand on "scripture alone" as the authority for its doctrines. By scripture, it was pointed out, is meant the original text in Hebrew and Greek.

The Synod, however, encouraged the use of new translations and versions, "to be used with proper caution and safeguards."

The Synod's Advisory Committee on Bible versions, headed by Prof. Walter R. Roehrs of Concordia Theological Seminary, St. Louis, has been making a critical examination of the revised standard version sponsored by the National Council of Churches. The committee was asked to continue its work.

The majority of Missouri Synod churches use the authorized King James version.

Three St. Louisans were among seven new members named to the board for missions in foreign countries. They are the Rev. R. Eugene R. Bertermann, supervisor of overseas operations for the Lutheran Hour; The Rev. Victor Bartling of Concordia Seminary faculty, and Fred L. Kuhlmann, attorney, Louis Prange of St. Louis was re-elected to the board; also the Rev. Walter Raedcke of Collinsville, Ill.

The Rev. C. Thomas Spitz Jr., of St. Louis, a member of the Lutheran Laymen's League staff, was elected to the board for missions in North and South America.

KARST SAYS SUMMERFIELD PUT POLITICS IN POST OFFICE

Postmaster General Arthur H. Summerfield injected politics into the postal service when he sent out a "canned" speech to Missouri postmasters, Raymond W. Karst said last night in a speech before the Twelfth Ward Democratic Organization at Hempelmann Hall, 6918 Gravois avenue.

"This eight-page speech extolling the Republican Administration is contrary to the spirit, if not the letter, of civil service and the Hatch act," Karst said. He is seeking the Democratic nomination for Congress from the Second District. Karst said the Republicans pledged in 1952 that federal employees would be selected under a strengthened and extended merit system but announced in October of 1954 that federal job vacancies would be filled by applicants sponsored by Republican party leaders.

Egypt Wants U.S. Friendship And Independence, Nasser Says

'For My Part, I Will Do All I Can,' He Asserts on First Day as President Under New Constitution.

CAIRO, June 26 (AP)—Gamal Abdel Nasser, on his first day as President of Egypt, declared his country wants friendly relations with the United States and "for my part, I will do all I can."

He made his statement in an interview with Alicia Patterson, editor and publisher of the Long Island (N.Y.) newspaper Newsday.

"We want the American people to understand us," Nasser said. "This will help for good relations and friendship between the peoples of the United States and the peoples of Egypt. We want friendly relations."

"At the same time, we want to be completely independent. We Egyptians are good people if you understand us. I have tried since the revolution to create a good basis for co-operation and amity by all means in my power."

Only Candidate.
Nasser's office was thronged with visitors congratulating him after he officially was proclaimed president yesterday under a new constitution. He was the only candidate in the election Saturday and won 99.9 per cent of the vote.

The voters also approved the new constitution replacing the military dictatorship by a civilian government. Nasser and the other military leaders of the Revolution Council which overthrew King Farouk are resigning their commissions and will continue to run the government.

Until the national assembly is elected in October, Nasser will promulgate all necessary laws. He will head Egypt's only political party, the National Union, and the Revolution Council will be the party's executive committee. Nasser and the council thus will control the assembly's membership.

Moreover, at its last meeting the council gave Nasser arbitrary power for 10 years to detain any persons against whom it has taken decisions. Most of the estimated 3000-4000 persons in this category were political leaders under the monarchy. But it also includes Gen. Mohammed Niguib, ousted from the presidency in 1954 after serving as front man for the revolution. He is under house arrest.

Egyptian Strength.
The 38-year-old President told the nation last night in a radio speech that "Egypt is feeling its strength and knows its position in the world."

"I feel as I did on the day of our revolution four years ago. The only way we achieved this was through self denial. During this turning point in Egyptian history, I feel great responsibilities."

Nasser polled personally a slightly higher vote than that cast for the constitution. The Government said 5267 votes were cast against him in more than 5,500,000 ballots.

James Roosevelt Calls for Recall of Byroade.
MONTICELLO, N.Y., June 26 (AP)—Representative James Roosevelt (Dem.), California, last night called for the removal of United States Ambassador to Egypt Henry A. Byroade for providing what he called "misinformation" about the situation in Egypt.

Egyptian President Nasser, Roosevelt said, is "a man in the mold of Hitler, a man shaping a Middle-Eastern empire friendly to Soviet Russia and hostile not only to Israel but to American ideals and interests."

"Our present answer is to fool ourselves that we need Arab oil so badly that we must swallow each new indignity that this dictator places upon us," Roosevelt said in a speech before the Knights of Pythias state convention.

Hospitality on the Highway!

A thirsty pup and his young master are nothing extraordinary to your Phillips 66 Dealer. (You'd be surprised how many folks take their pets with them on cross-country trips.) Getting a drink for that pup is the friendly, hospitable thing to do, and it's typical of the reception a traveler gets at Phillips 66 Stations.

"Hospitality on the Highway" means more than just filling your car's gas tank or checking the oil. To Phillips 66 Dealers it includes maintaining clean rest rooms. It means having your car brushed out... your battery and tires checked... your radiator filled. It includes road maps if you need them. It means friendliness, courtesy, the desire to please you.

Your Phillips 66 Dealer believes that in the service he gives, as in the products he sells, "It's Performance that Counts." Stop at his station soon.

LEE ASKS BATES TO ACT NOW ON IDLE STATE FUNDS

Treasurer Rejects Request of Democratic Candidate for Nomination for Governor.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 26—Immediate action by State Treasurer G. Hubert Bates to collect interest on state deposits in banks, instead of waiting for voter action in November on a constitutional amendment to that end, was urged today by Charles A. Lee of Webster Groves, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

Lee, in a letter sent to Bates, outlined steps he said Bates could take to hasten a decision on the question whether the state now is legally barred from collecting interest on its deposits in banks.

The state currently has about $140,000,000 on deposit in 271 Missouri banks. No interest is paid on these funds.

Bates Replies.
Bates said today he had no authority to act, as suggested by Lee, until the Constitution is amended. "Action by me as State Treasurer can and will be taken when the Constitution and the laws of the state permit," he said.

Lee said the situation of the state collecting no interest on its funds in banks, exists now "largely by default with only the opinion of the attorney general rendered more than 10 years ago, to support it."

This reference was to an opinion by former Attorney General J. E. Taylor, holding that provisions of the 1945 Constitution, concerning state deposits, would not authorize collection of interest. The funds are in demand deposits.

Federal and state banking laws do not authorize bank interest on demand deposits, which may be withdrawn at any time.

Lee said Bates could ask the present Attorney General, John M. Dalton, for a new opinion, since conditions had changed in 10 years; or he could ask the Missouri Supreme court for a declaratory judgment.

As another move, he suggested Bates ask banks to bid on state deposits of funds that will not be needed in the next three or six months.

Objectors Could Sue.
"If anyone objected to such procedure he could bring the matter into court," Lee said.

The whole legal question, he said, turned on the meaning of the word "demand" as used in the state deposit provisions in the Constitution. Lee asserted the word, as used, referred to the official with authority to withdraw the state funds, and not the class of deposit.

"The practice of using the resources of the state for the benefit of a few should not be abandoned," Lee said, in reference to the depositories, selected by the state treasurer. "It should be corrected as soon as possible."

Federal Banking Act.

Bates, in a prepared statement, said the present situation resulted from passage of the Federal Banking Act of 1933, effective in 1937. "No interest could be legally paid by any bank thereafter on its demand deposits," Bates said.

"It has been the opinion of attorneys general a constitutional amendment is necessary to permit the state treasurer to invest any portion of the state's funds," Bates said. "The Legislature authorized amendment be voted on by the people in the November election."

If Lee's recommendations were followed, Bates said, no final conclusion could be reached by the courts before the people vote on the amendment on Nov. 7.

He suggested Lee, as a candidate, with no responsibility for handling state money, could place his own interpretation on an Attorney General's ruling and speculate what might happen if it were ignored.

"But I, as state treasurer, cannot speculate," Bates said. "If Mr. Lee is not in agreement, and is a taxpayer, the courts are open to him for whatever action he and his lawyers deem advisable."

MAN GETS 8-1/2-TO-20-YEAR TERM IN ABORTION DEATH

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP)—Thomas G. Daniel was sentenced today to eight and one-half to 20 years in state prison for the abortion death of Jacqueline Smith, a fabrics designer of Lebanon, Pa.

The state contended Miss Smith died Christmas eve while undergoing an abortion in Daniel's apartment. Leo Pijuan, a nurse, a co-defendant in the case, was accused of performing the abortion. He pleaded guilty, testified for the state and will be sentenced tomorrow.

Daniel, accused of first-degree manslaughter, elected to stand trial despite his co-defendant's guilty plea in the midst of testimony. A jury found him guilty.

SHEPILOV MEETS LEBANESE, HITS AT BAGHDAD PACT

BEIRUT, June 26 (AP)—Continuing his campaign to promote Russian-Arab relations, Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov met today with Lebanese government officials.

Shepilov arrived yesterday from Syria, where an official spokesman said his visit had paved the way for early agreement on "strong political measures" relating to Algeria and Palestine.

He also was reported to have discussed a new Soviet-Syrian economic and trade agreement, but the spokesman said no concrete decisions were made. A communiqué also announced that Syrian President Shukri Kuwaty had accepted an invitation to visit Moscow.

On arrival in Beirut, Shepilov distributed a statement praising Arab nations for struggling against "the aggressive Baghdad pact which aims at establishing a new imperialistic slavery." The pact links Britain, Iraq, Turkey and Pakistan to defend the Middle East against possible Communist aggression.

Cloudy and warm weather will continue through Thursday, with showers ending sometime tomorrow. Weatherman Harry F. Wahlgren predicted today. Temperatures may remain below 90 today and tomorrow, the forecaster said. Low tomorrow will be near 70, with Thursday's range between 65 and 85.

Only 40 of an inch of rain fell in St. Louis in the past 24-hour reporting period, bringing the total for the month to 2.35 inches and for 10 inches. No rain to this date. Rain was over the state heaviest part of an inch. Most rain was at Charleston. The drought there was heavy. Nebraska, South Dakota, Wisconsin and Iowa were early out-

Assorted Ideas

Making Life Easier For the Tourist

By Art Buchwald

ART BUCHWALD

PARIS. RAYMOND LOEWY, the American industrial designer, is expanding his business in France. Industrial designing is a comparatively new thing to the French and sometimes Loewy has to adapt scientific terms that they will understand. For example, when trying to explain nuclear energy to a French business man, Loewy will say: "A medium-sized truffle has enough locked energy in it to blow up the Gare Montparnasse." When discussing heat in relation to metals, Loewy always uses the heat of a French dish as his standard. If talking about tungsten, he might say: "The fusion temperature of tungsten is three and one-half times the heat given off by the flame of crepes Suzette."

"The most difficult thing to describe to someone," the designer told us, "is absolute zero. Everyone knows it exists but nobody knows how to explain it. Strangely enough, it is very easy to explain to a Frenchman. Absolute zero is the time lapse between the moment a traffic light changes and the man in a Renault Quatre CV behind you shouts 'Alors! What are you waiting for?'"

SINCE THE JOB of an industrial designer is to make life easier for everyone, Loewy in his spare time has been working on methods to improve a tourist's lot. One of the things he thinks might be helpful is to put a thin film of vaseline on people's sleeves, so they won't cause friction at the American Express.

"Most male tourists," he said, "when traveling with a woman, find themselves weighed down with what we designers call the indispensable non-essentials."

"While carrying them in both hands they are usually asked to produce their airplane ticket and passport. I would like to invent a sanitary plastic bag that tastes like Scotch, so that men could carry their tickets and passports in their mouths when passing through customs."

Loewy is also interested in producing a lollipop that he could give to children who bother him on a plane. When sucked for a few minutes the lollipop would gently put the child to sleep.

HE IS WORKING on a portable lie-detector about the size of a camera. The tourist could use this on a hotel manager or an airline employee who denies he has confirmed the tourist's reservation. Also Loewy said he would like to invent a clothespin with a "Do Not Disturb" sign on it, that a tourist could wear in his lapel on an airplane so that the stewardess won't wake him to ask him if he wants a cup of coffee.

The fact that most airlines plan to make narrower and narrower seats for their passengers will soon become a serious tourist problem. One of the solutions Loewy thinks is to install Turkish baths in place of waiting rooms, so passengers can lose weight before plane departure. This might oblige passengers to arrive a few hours earlier, but it would be a great help to the airlines.

A FRIEND OF OURS, Harold Keats, of Washington, D.C., has just written us a letter from Geneva that could affect the balance of trade throughout the world. He said he spent an entire week in Switzerland without buying a watch. Keats, when contacted by authorities, said he had no intention of buying a watch, since he had an uncle who lived in Waltham, Mass.

It was pointed out to Keats if he left Switzerland without a watch he would be the first tourist to do so, and the Government would have to revise its entire per capita export figures. In bookkeeping expenses alone this could run into millions of dollars. The Swiss finally offered to give him a watch and charge it against promotion, but Keats refused the gift. His status with the Swiss Government is somewhat in doubt as of this writing.

Keats offered to buy five pounds of Swiss cheese as a compromise, but he was told humbly, "It isn't the same thing."

Harmony at Dinner

By Angelo Patri

IN many houses today, the evening meal is the only time the family is together. This togetherness is essential to healthy family life, so this evening mealtime should be held in high regard. Every member of the family old enough to sit at the table should be there, washed, brushed and in his right mind. This last is of top importance.

This is the occasion for putting on the best manners, of creating the smoothest mood, of enjoying each other. Only pleasant subjects should be discussed. If the radio will be kind enough to supply some fine dinner music, that will be a great aid in creating the right atmosphere. Failing that, maybe there is a record-player.

I DO NOT AGREE with those who frown upon music as an aid to home discipline, to a family feeling at the dinner table. Nor do I agree with those who try to make it an educational session when children are asked to tell what they learned in school that day, or quizzed on one subject or another. They, if they are of school age, have worked five or six hours on subject matter. How would the father like to be asked to review his day's work? Or the mother required to recite on the recipes she used, their nutritional values and the like? That's out for table talk!

Nor is this the time for teaching table manners. If the children make a mistake and use the wrong spoon, try to talk with a mouth full, use fingers where forks are preferable, a silent look will do. It is presumed that they have been taught correct manners in their infancy and childhood years so that now, being old enough to be at the family table, they know what to do and require only practice.

THE EVENING MEAL is the time for happy association. Nothing that might cast a shadow over the group should be mentioned. Nobody would think of bringing up a discussion about somebody's error at the table where he and the other person were guests. Then why at the home table where each member is more important than any guest could be?

Good feeling is the best aid to digestion. Everything possible should be done to foster that feeling. If anyone has had a funny experience, it can be told. If anyone has heard a good story, that is just the happiest idea to bring out. A good laugh is tonic to body and mind, and mealtime is just the time for it.

Make the evening meal the high point of the family's day. Insist that every member of the family old enough to sit there be at the table on time. This custom is essential to family unity, family affection and understanding.

Dutch Royal Rift Over a Faith Healer

Observers Say Queen May Have to Abdicate Unless She Gives Up Mystic

PRINCE BERNHARD... HIS BIRTHDAY MAY PROVIDE A TIP-OFF.

By Robert Horiguchi

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands, June 26 (INS)

QUEEN JULIANA'S throne, the love of her husband and children and the devotion of her people may be at stake in a stormy controversy involving the palace influence of a mystical "faith healer."

Only a decision by the Queen to give up the faith healer, Greet Hofmans, and reconcile with Prince Bernhard and her daughters, many experienced observers believe, can keep The Netherlands from splitting into two camps.

The Dutch people, for years in the dark about Juliana's association with Miss Hofmans, love their royal family with an ardor comparable only to Britain's feeling for the House of Windsor. But informed Dutch sources said that Juliana, if she resolves the dilemma in favor of Miss Hofmans and the mystics, may have to abdicate in favor of her daughter Beatrix, 18.

Another daughter, partially blind, Maria Christina (nicknamed Marijke), 9, was the unwitting cause of what appears to be the most sensational crisis in European royalty since Edward VIII abdicated the throne of Britain in 1936 to marry Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson.

A German magazine which first reported the rift in the Dutch royal family—and the supposed influence of Miss Hofmans on the 47-year-old Queen—claims that June 29 may be the day of decision for Juliana. On that day, Bernhard celebrates his forty-fifth birthday. The Dutch court gives a garden party every year on the Queen's birthday. It's possible that this year's celebration will provide a tip-off on whether Bernhard has persuaded his royal wife to bar Miss Hofmans and her mystic group from her life.

Last Sunday the Dutch royal couple appeared in fine spirits as they attended a sports festival at the Olympic stadium here.

(The Associated Press, however, said the German magazine, Der Spiegel, has reported the woman at the center of the controversy, 61-year-old Miss Hofmans, has been described in some reports as a "female Rasputin." In reply, she has claimed that she wields no undue influence on any of those who seek her aid; that she merely helps them to seek Christ in order to cure their ills.)

She holds no prayer meetings, preaches no sermons, sings no spirituals. She usually sees each "patient" for one minute. They tell her of their afflictions and "a voice tells her what she should say."

THERE is no public knowledge of what Miss Hofmans has told the Queen in the seven years she has known her. The royal couple was desperate with sorrow in 1947 when Marijke was born with cataracts in her eyes. Doctors could save had to take over running the household and caring for her invalid mother. Later when her father lost his job, she worked in a textile factory, rose to a forewoman's position and during the war took an active part in procuring food for fellow workers. According to an associate, it was not until 1946, that she heard "the voice of God."

He describes her as deeply religious but belonging to no established church.

Most of the healer's patients are women past middle age although there are some men in the same age group. Some of the "patients" come on doctors' recommendations. An Amsterdam physician pointed out that there are many illnesses with a psychological basis which may be relieved, if not cured, through suggestion.

"I see no harm in Miss Hofmans' practices," he said, "but I doubt if she is doing any real lasting good."

What harm there is, political observers say, is not in treatment but in possible influence—particularly on Queen Juliana. Most informants point out that the present controversy, while it involves the whole nation in its ramifications, stems from the personalities of Juliana and Bernhard.

THEY have disagreed at times before, for example on the education which the Princesses should receive. And if Bernhard is wrought up about Juliana's association with the spinster-mystic, the Queen is known to be displeased with the sports car-horse-fun-loving set which surrounds the Prince.

These, however, are believed to be the kind of differences which any well-to-do husband and wife might have. Juliana and Bernhard compromised them so admirably in the past that the palace of Soestdijk was the average Dutchman's idea of a happy home.

That home, many worried Hollanders believe, is now threatened by the supposed influence of a faith healer, the stubborn devotion of a middle-aged queen and the inflexibility of a loving husband.

Among them were Baroness E. W. Van Heeckeren Van Molecaten, keeper of the Queen's robes; her son, the Queen's private secretary; and her daughter-in-law Rita, Baroness Van Molecaten, former governess to the royal children. These three are the core of the group which meets for three-day weekends three times a year with Miss Hofmans at the home of F. C. Minjssen, a wealthy insurance executive. He and wealthy business man E. C. Pierson Van Tielhoven are said to have financed all the group's activities.

So serious is the undeclared war in Soestdijk Palace, it is reported, that persons in Juliana's camp have little contact with those sympathetic to her husband.

Privacy has been the hallmark of all modern monarchies. Neither Juliana nor Bernhard, for example, has made any public statement referring to the royal crisis, even indirectly. But the seriousness of the situation was underlined the other day when outgoing President Willem Drees authorized a statement which claimed that no constitutional crisis was involved. Evidence of the Government's concern, could be gleaned elsewhere.

W. A. Van Geffen, a correspondent for International News Service, went to the municipal records office in Amsterdam to check on Miss Hofmans' family background. Such vital statistics are usually available on request to any Dutch citizen. But the authorities refused to give Van Geffen any information whatever.

The facts about Miss Hofmans are these. She was born in Amsterdam, the daughter of a municipal swimming pool lifeguard. At the age of 11, she

Dressed to Kill

By Stan Delaplaine

THE FM STATION that plays a nice instrumental background for me these mornings has a sponsor at last. The sponsor offers tuxedos for rent.

STAN DELAPLAINE

I think this proves I am a high-class listener. High class enough that the sponsor thinks I may rent a tuxedo. I guess I should go down and rent one some day. To encourage the arts.

On the other hand, I may go into the tuxedo-renting business myself. I have dinner clothes that have scarcely been worn. And not because I do not eat dinner, either. This is not a dinner-jacket community. Most of the parties here are geared to community affairs. Like the Aquacade. We have an Aquacade once a year. Afterward we have various parties. Nearly everybody goes to the parties in the same costume they wear to the Aquacade. All except the people in the front rows. They are usually splashed and have to go home and change.

THE AQUACADE is for charity and quite an affair. My own daughter swam in it this year. Unfortunately I was out changing film when she went on, but I have not admitted this yet.

The big girls swim. The little girls are Brownies. Or Autumn Leaves. Or the Glant's Evil Thoughts. They must quite a bit. And quite often one of them has to be led off to the dressing room for a quiet weeping. They always come back, though, for the finale. Troupers all of them. The show must go on.

THE MUSIC COMES OUT of loud-speakers, out of a phonograph. The audience sits on camp chairs, which are gathered up at the end of the program by volunteer Boy Scouts. For this the Boy Scouts get a plug from the woman who reads a list of thanks and gives a check to the head of the hospital. Then we go to the parties.

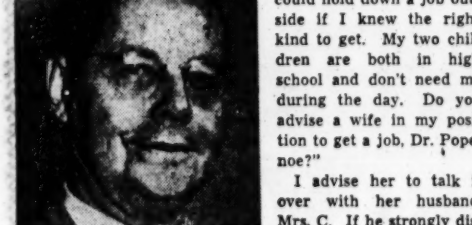

The parties are generally open-air. Or else I always get seated next to an open window. Nobody wears a tuxedo. They wear aloha shirts. Except smart people like me, who don't care to catch their death of pneumonia. We carry an old tweed jacket in the car. During the evening we sneak out and put it on.

IF I EVER HAVE TO WEAR a tuxedo again I guess I will have to rent one. I have been looking at the ads and find mine is all out of style. The black one is OK, but the white one is double-breasted. I could send it to one of those people who advertise they will make your clothes single-breasted. But if I did, the double-breasted model would come back. I am simply waiting for the new styles to catch up with me.

Looking back, I can about count on my fingers when I have been able to get into these expensive garments. Once on the Lurline, Captain's Night. Six times at the Royal Hawaiian. Once in New York at a dinner I wished I had never gone to. This is a pretty poor average for threads that went over a C-note.

I used to borrow the managing editor's tuxedo, pinning the pants with a safety pin at the waistline in back. Then one plush day I went out and bought my very own. I spray them regularly.

I may not be doing much for the arts or the tuxedo people. But the moth-spray people would go out of business without me.

DR. PAUL POPENOE

MORE than one-fourth of all the wives in the country now work regularly for pay outside their homes, and many of the rest are considering jobs.

"Is it any threat to a marriage?" Mrs. C. asks. "I haven't a great deal to do at home, and I think I could hold down a job outside if I knew the right kind to get. My two children are both in high school and don't need me during the day. Do you advise a wife in my position to get a job, Dr. Popenoe?"

I advise her to talk it over with her husband, Mrs. C. If he strongly disapproves, you could make a lot of trouble for yourself. If he is willing and you can provide adequately for the home and children, then the next thing would be to ask what kind of a job you can get. From what you say, I take it you are not prepared for anything in particular.

IF THAT is the fact, then ask yourself first what your temperament fits you to do. If you are an introvert, you will work well alone and will be painstaking and not easily discouraged. Selling will be quite out of your line. If you are an extrovert, you'll want to work with people.

Are you flexible enough to work irregular hours or on a split shift if necessary? Could you take orders from a woman much younger than yourself? Could you adapt your speed to that of others in teamwork? Can you find a job where the difficulties of travel and the expenses involved won't overbalance your salary?

It would pay you to consult the counselor at the local Y.W.C.A. or some official employment agency on these points. There are also a few private employment agencies which will take time to counsel a person like yourself. Get all the help you can in these ways.

Watch out for fakes and gyp games. Don't accept any deal that calls on you to make an investment of any kind unless you consult the Better Business Bureau in your city first.

I HAVE a reading list on spare time and part time jobs for women. The books in it (which you should be able to get from your public library) give unlimited information about how to apply for a job and how to keep it after you get it. I'll send a free copy of this to any reader on receipt of request accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Try and Stop Me
By Bennett Cerf

THE parson, detained from his dearly loved weekly fishing expedition by a young couple who insisted upon being hitched immediately, regarded the bridegroom sourly and inquired, "Do you promise to love, honor, and cherish this woman?" "I do," said the bridegroom fervently. "Good!" boomed the parson, heading for the nearest exit. "Reel her in."

"OUR NEW POWER BRAKES are out of this world," a car salesman told a prospective lady customer. "Now, with that equipment, instead of running over a man, you can stop squarely on top of him."

Two-Fisted Lesson for Irvin, the Bully

One-Sided Victory in Fight Gives New Look to Will Stockdale's Standing in the Barracks

By Mac Hyman

This is the third installment of a condensation of "No Time for Sergeants," best-seller published by Random House. The book, which describes the humorous escapades of a hillbilly in the United States Air Force, has been adapted for the stage and is a current hit on Broadway.

MY name is Will Stockdale. But most of the fellows in the barracks have funny names for me, probably because I come from a Georgia farm and never seen a city before the time the men come out and drafted me.

I think it was because of Irvin that everybody gave me a hard time. Irvin was put in charge of the bus that took us to Fort Thompson near Atlanta. He seemed to enjoy ordering me around, stepping on my feet and saying funny things so the other fellows would laugh at me.

The only one that didn't laugh was little Ben Whittedge. When they started picking on him, too, I decided that it didn't do no good to be peaceful toward them any more. Right after that I heard a loud scuffling and laughing in the shower and I knew they had Ben. I got there as quick as I could.

They had Ben down under one of the sinks and had the water running ready to stick his head under it with two or three of them holding him and Ben ransling around trying to get away, and everybody yelling and everything. So it looked like a pretty good thing to bang them around a little bit.

I went about closing the door real easy and then I closed up the windows, and none of them seen me until I let the last window down with a bang. Then Irvin turned around and said, "Well, if it ain't ole plowboy," and laughed and took on so that the others began to do the same. After that Irvin said, "What are you doing in here, plowboy?" and some stuff like that, but then I give him a pretty good scowl and didn't laugh or take on like a fool the way I had been doing, so I guess then they seen something was different.

Irvin kept saying, "Look at ole plowboy," and trying to joke about it, but the smile had gone off his face and he had begun shifting his eyes this way and that. Anyhow, they let Ben go about that time, and I kept looking at Irvin until all of a sudden he drew back real quick and said, "You better watch it, boy, there's six of us here and -" but he didn't get to finish because I tapped him one with my left so he quit right in the middle of it as his head popped sideways and backward and he kind of wobbled across the room and dropped over a sink and didn't get up no more for a while.

So then it looked like they was all going to make a break for it, but I managed to stop them all right. I grabbed the first one that got to the door by the shoulder and swung him around and busted him a pretty good one, harder than I meant to, so that he kind of sailed across the room and banged up against the wall and slid down and set there for a while.

And about that time one of them climbed on my back so that I jumped up in the air and come down on top of him and hemmed all the air gush out of him, and then I seen old Irvin getting back up again. So I stepped past the others real quick and swung one at his jaw, but not as hard as I had the other one because I didn't want him to be just laying there the whole time; he went backward and flipped over one of the bowls and ended up in pretty much the same position he had the first time.

SO after that everybody joined in just as spunky as you could ask and it turned out to be a pretty good fight after all. I went round with the others a little bit and finally hemmed a couple of them up in the corner and acted like I was going to hit one that had his face covered up with his hands, but dodged aside and hit the other one instead, and then had to chase the other one for the door again.

I grabbed him by the foot and gave it a snatch and he went up and banged down on his stomach and I picked him up and tried to see how far I could chunk him and managed to hit the wall on the other side of the room. But that busted one of the mirrors and made a good bit of noise, and things kind of twindled off a bit after that. Irvin got up one more time before it was over and then there wasn't much else to it, except for Lucky over in the corner and little Ben had him all by himself. He was setting right astraddle of him and was doing pretty good, so I didn't bother with it no more.

I TRIED TO SEE HOW FAR I COULD CHUNK HIM AND MANAGED TO HIT THE WALL ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE ROOM. BUT THAT BUSTED ONE OF THE MIRRORS AND MADE A LOT OF NOISE, AND THINGS KIND OF TWINDLED OFF A BIT AFTER THAT.

I set down and rolled a cigarette and smoked it until Ben had finished up with Lucky, and then both of us set around waiting for them to get up again. Little ole Ben was kind of prancing around all that time doing his fist in and out and taking deep breaths and things, and he had this big grin on his face, so it did make me feel a lot better. I said, "How you doing, Ben?"

And he kind of flexed his muscles, or what he had of them, and said, "Fine, Fine," and it really made me feel good to watch it. It had been a lot of trouble and some of them might be mad with me for a few days, and the place was a mess with cards and glass and cigarettes and matches all over the floor, but it seemed like it was worth it. Ben was prancing around like he was a new man; he was just as proud as he could be and strutted around like a little bantam rooster.

Anyhow, we set around for them to get up and then opened the door and let them all go to bed, all except Irvin who still hadn't come to real good. I told a couple of them to go back and help him along, but they wasn't quite up to it, so me and Ben finally had to do it ourselves. Ben wasn't able to handle much more than one foot, but he done a good job with that, and we got him to bed all right. We tucked him in and then got in bed ourselves, and I felt real comfortable and a lot better, and knowed I would sleep pretty good. I hadn't had no exercise to speak of for the last day or two and it was right good to feel wore out for a change. I turned over and guess I was asleep in four or five seconds.

Anyhow, everybody was pretty nice the next morning, and not really mad at all. I got up early, before Ben did, and went down to the latrine, and there was several of them in there and they acted real polite to me. They was kind of shy at first, though. When I first come in, this fellow stopped shaving and stared at me, and I nodded "Good morning," but he just stood there with the razor in his hand and his mouth open. So I reached up to give him a pat on the back to be friendly, but time I got my arm up, he gave a jump and ducked his head and dived past me, rolling up in the corner and setting there with the soap still on his face, holding onto the razor. So I seen he was right shy and eased back away from him and stepped over to one of the bowls to wash up, but then I seen this rag already there and this fat fellow by the name of Pete standing there watching me, and I said, "Oh, was this one yours? I didn't mean to take it." And he jumped and said, "You go ahead. I ain't in no hurry."

BUT I stepped back and let him go ahead, and he acted nice about it. He didn't take long at all, only leaned over and splashed some water on his face and grabbed up his stuff real quick and said, "There you go. I'm all done. Thanks a lot."

So they all acted real shy and polite like that, and as friendly as you could ask. One time I mentioned something about the cards all over the floor, and before I got it half out of my mouth, there was four of them scurrying around and picking them up and straightening up the place.

Anyhow, I went ahead washing and begun whistling a little bit, and after a while went over to get Irvin up; and when I got over there, I seen he didn't look so good. The side of his face was about the color of coal dust and his lip was swollen up a pretty good bit, but I knowed he would feel better if he got something to eat, so I shook him until his eyes opened. I said, "You best get up, Irvin, or you might miss breakfast," and for a minute there, I thought he was just mad with me because he just kept staring at me, and then give a little moan and closed his eyes up real tight and wouldn't even look at me except to peep out of the corner every once in a while. He didn't move until I had gone back over to get Ben up, and then he got up right quick and headed for the latrine, going right fast.

"It took Mr. North a little while to pass after his partner jumped to three no trump," Mr. Champion related, "but as it turned out they couldn't have won even nine tricks if the king of spades hadn't been right."

"My partner opened the king of clubs," Mr. Champion continued, "and South let it hold, trying to get a count on the hand. On the queen of clubs lead, I discarded a heart and South won with the ace. He cashed the king and queen of diamonds, then led a small heart to dummy's queen. He looked a little surprised when Mrs. Keen discarded a small spade."

"South now cashed the ace of diamonds and I showed out, dropping another heart. Obviously it was no good to lead the ten of diamonds to set up the nine, because Mrs. Keen would win with the jack and rattle off three more clubs to beat the contract."

"So South cashed dummy's king of hearts. Then, although he hated to take the risk, there was no other play than the queen of spades finesse. When this worked, he had his nine tricks. I hope you and Muzzy didn't get higher than three no trump."

"But we did and we won the match," said Mr. Dale.

"Didn't West open the king of clubs?" asked Mr. Champion.

"He opened the king of clubs, nobody made any errors, and we still won the match," Mr. Dale insisted.

Designing Woman Fashion for the Floor

By Elizabeth Hillyer

THE famous rugs of Morocco find their way today to the floors of contemporary rooms. As modern becomes more richly varied with ideas from many periods and cultures, more combinations of the old and new, interesting rug design from this far corner of the world helps to create interesting settings with simple modern backgrounds.

Here architect-designer Harold M. Schwartz chooses a rug of Moroccan design for a white brick-walled room, to go with furniture of his own design and both modern and antique accessories.

The rug, however, is a new one that's made in this country of new materials and by new methods. The fibers are easy-care viscose rayon and nylon and the rug is tufted on a power machine to make it deep and soft and far less costly than the handmade originals.

Wonderful colors include orange, gold, black and white,

FROM NINE TO FIVE

By Jo Fischer

"OH, IT'S YOU, MR. WUMP. I THOUGHT IT WAS SOMEONE."

'Brave Man'

A BRAVE man is one who attends a party or goes on an excursion where all the other persons present are women. The women, seeing him alone, exclaim, "You certainly are a brave man."

But they do not stop there. They admire his courage and think it should be rewarded. They are flattered at his presence. They wish to make a good impression on him.

They, therefore, urge him not to be getting up every time a woman appears or moves around. They explain that they have many official functions to perform that will be keeping them bobbing up and down.

They ask his opinion and advice. They compete with each other in the hope of getting a greater share of his attention.

They take pains to get him into a seat that is comfortable and from which he can see anything that is to be seen. If refreshments are served he cannot, of course, get plates of food for all the women.

On the contrary, the women vie with each other to see which one can first reach him with refreshments. They pile his plate high. Should he remark that he is trying to hold back on his food since he is getting overweight, they scoff at the very idea. They protest that, on the contrary, he looks as though he might blow away. They assure him that what they are offering him isn't fattening.

It is a new and pleasant experience to be alone in the company of so many women. It is a relief not to have to compete with other men who are handsome, are better dressed and possess similar charms.

When the affair breaks up the women promise him that on reaching home they are going to tell their husbands how brave he was in the hope that they will be ashamed and will come next time.

He, fearful that his monopoly may be destroyed, hopes they won't.

CHRISTOPHER BILLOPP.

Stew Suggestion

New idea for stew: sprinkle beef cubes with chopped onion, crushed garlic and oregano the night before you plan to cook it; cover tightly and refrigerate. Next day brown the meat and onions in fat and proceed as usual.

MISS OLIN... TO BE HONORED AT SUPPER.

The party is planned to take place in the large garden of the Bassett home where roses are blooming in profusion. Small tables, to be centered with white lanterns set in flower clusters, have been arranged around a dance floor. The buffet table nearby is also to be decorated with summer flowers and lighted with more of the lanterns.

The following debutantes will attend: Miss Audrey Faust Wallace, Miss Barbara Nixon, Miss Sonya Wotka, Miss Mimi Belz, Miss Louise Conant, Miss Glenn Johnson, Miss Barbara Burton, Miss Mary Vollmer, Miss Carolyn Cone, Miss Elizabeth Holmes, Miss Myrtle Boehmer, Miss Terry McIlvane, Miss Carolyn Haffner, Miss Carol Jones, Miss Talbot Leland, Miss Sarah Lund, Miss Barbara Schlueter, Miss Jean Alexander, Miss Esther Veron, Miss Molly Goodson, Miss Almina Baldwin, Miss Ann MacCarthy, Miss Elizabeth Busch, Miss Caroline Clarkson, Miss Alice Hager, Miss Mary Kerth and Miss Susan Spoehrer.

In addition to the debutante set, Mr. and Mrs. Bassett will entertain Mr. and Mrs. Olin and the Olin's other daughters, Mrs. John C. Pritzlaff Jr. (Mary Dell Olin), of Milwaukee, and Mrs. F. Morgan Taylor Jr. (Barbara Olin) of Cleveland. Mrs. Pritzlaff and her son John C. III, arrived yesterday to visit her parents; Mrs. Taylor and her son, F. Morgan III, called Rick, have been with the Olins since last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Olin plan to spend August at their cottage on Fishers Island, N.Y. Miss Olin will depart the first week in August for Haiti to visit Miss Jennifer Rawson, her roommate at Smith College, for two weeks after which she will join her parents.

Miss Rawson was here for Miss Olin's debut ball at St. Louis Country Club at Christmas time last year.

Miss Elizabeth Swarts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick B. Swarts, 25 Foreway drive, St. Louis Country Club Grounds, will return home today after spending a week in Pittsburgh, Pa., the guest of one of her Vassar roommates, Miss Lucy Williams. Miss Swarts, who will be presented to society in the 1956-57 season, has been attending June parties in Pittsburgh where Miss Williams is a debutante.

Miss Soest Is Honored at Country Club Party.
MISS JAN SOEST, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Soest, was honored today at a luncheon given by Mrs. Henry Lee Martin at Algonquin Golf Club.

A group of Miss Soest's friends was seated at a large table with each place marked by a silk Japanese fan to which was attached a tiny nosegay. Centering the table was a large white glass fan flanked by bouquets of carnations. A smaller centerpiece adorned the table where Mrs. Martin entertained the debutante's mother, her aunt, Mrs. Lester Kuhs, and her grandmother, Mrs. Edward Kuhs.

Miss Peterson Engaged to Peter A. Haskell.

ANNOUNCEMENT was made recently of the engagement of Miss Joy Veronica Peterson to Peter Abraham Haskell. Mr. Haskell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Abraham Haskell of Cambridge, Mass., and grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Abraham Haskell of St. Louis, gave his fiancée an engagement ring which is an heirloom in his family originally belonging to his grandmother.

MISS PETERSON... FUTURE BRIDE.

Miss Peterson is the daughter of Mrs. Vernon Alfred Peterson of Los Angeles and the late Mr. Peterson. An alumna of Marlborough School for Girls, she received her Associate of Arts degree this spring from the University of California at Berkeley where she became a member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority. She is a member of the Junior Mannequins Alumnae of the Assistance League and the College Ticket-holders of the National Charity League.

Mr. Haskell was graduated from Browne and Nichols School, Boston, and served with the Army before entering Harvard University where he is now a student. He is the nephew of Mrs. Berthoud Clifford.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Griesedieck, 6315 Waterman avenue, with their three daughters, Melissa, Virginia Stith and Gaye, will depart Saturday for Douglas, Mich., where they will be the guests of Mr. Griesedieck's mother, Mrs. Edward J. Griesedieck, 39 Lake Forest, at her summer cottage for about two weeks. The elder Mrs. Griesedieck will depart for the resort this week accompanied by her son, Jack. Mr. and Mrs. Griesedieck's elder daughters, Mary Phelps and Pamela, will fly to California Friday accompanied by Mrs. Otto Schwarz to visit their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Warren A. Peters Jr. (Betty Stith), in Pasadena, Calif. Mrs. Schwarz will be the guest of her son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Henry Schwarz, who live near Los Angeles. The two girls will probably be in California for most of the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bates Blair, 4680 Pershing avenue, have departed by air for Key West, Fla., where they will embark on a Caribbean cruise. Traveling by plane and boat they will visit Cuba, Jamaica and the Virgin Islands and probably some of the Bahamas. They will return to St. Louis in three weeks.

Gottschalk-Behrens Wedding Set for July 25.
THE ENGAGEMENT and forthcoming marriage of Mrs. Gladys Merker Behrens to Max W. Gottschalk was announced Saturday evening at a cocktail party at her home, 6728 State street, East St. Louis. Mr. Gottschalk, well known St. Louis artist and musician, lives at 6000 Waterman avenue.

The wedding will take place Wednesday, July 25, at the home of Mr. Gottschalk's son, Charles R. Gottschalk, 4410 Westminster place, with United States District Judge George H. Moore officiating.

Mrs. Behrens conducts a music school at Edgemont, East St. Louis suburb. A contralto and pianist, she is active in the Belleville Community Concert Association, Schubert Club of East St. Louis and the St. Louis Grand Opera Guild. In addition to Charles R. Gottschalk, Mr. Gottschalk is the father of Dr. Louis Gottschalk of Cincinnati; Edmond Gottschalk of New York; and Max W. Gottschalk Jr., Saguarito, Ariz. His first wife, who was Miss Kelmie Nuttux, died in 1953.

G. N. Harris Family Makes Eastern Trip

MR. AND MRS. GERALD N. HARRIS, 21 Washington terrace, have returned from a trip to the East where they saw their two elder daughters. In Pittsburgh, Pa., they visited their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice A. Harris (Geraldine Harris) who became parents May 27 of a daughter, Jean Marie.

From there the elder Harrises went to Ithaca, N.Y., to attend graduation ceremonies of Miss Jean Dorothy from Cornell University and to see her off on the Queen Mary last Wednesday when she sailed with a group of former classmates for Europe. Miss Jean will spend about six weeks visiting England, Holland, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, Italy and France and will return on the Queen Mary August 7. Mr. and Mrs. Harris's youngest daughter, Miss Marianne Harris, who went East with her parents, is in Great Neck, L.I., visiting her fiancé, Albert J. Yesk, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Yesk.

Mrs. A. Hite Bowman, 519 Rosedale avenue, will leave St. Louis today to visit her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Smith Jr., Riverside, Conn., and their daughter, Katherine Smith. Before returning home at the end of the summer, Mrs. Bowman will be the guest of Mr. Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Smith of Fair Winds Farm, near Leonardtown, Md., former St. Louisans, and Mrs. Charles B. Hebbard, Arlington, Va.

Summer Trips And Visitors In Kirkwood

MISS PATRICIA AND MISS SUSAN DALL, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Dall, 423 Miriam avenue, will return home Saturday from a 10-day holiday in Bermuda as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sturges of New Haven, Conn. The young women arrived at the island after a week in New York. With Mrs. Sturges, they attended parties given in connection with the twentieth biennial Bermuda yacht races, which started from Newport, R. I. June 16. Mr. Sturges joined the three, who were staying at the Princess Hotel, after making the race in his yawl, Shady Lady III.

Mrs. Courtney Shands of Alexandria, Va.; her daughter, Mrs. Richard Lane, and the latter's daughter, Jeannette, of St. Augustine, Fla., are visiting Mrs. Shands' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lorraine F. Jones, 507 North Taylor avenue, until early next month. Mr. and Mrs. Courtney Shands, Jr., who live at 1339 McCutcheon road, Manhasset Village, recently became parents of a son, Courtney III.

Departing for her home in New Orleans last week was Mrs. W. H. Dallam, who formerly lived in Kirkwood. She was the guest for two weeks of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur R. Tonkins, 520 East Jefferson avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Tonkins plan to leave the middle of next month for a holiday at Grand Haven, Mich., and nearby resorts.

Arriving Thursday for a several weeks visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Gamble, 620 North Taylor avenue, was Mrs. Lea Booth (Mary Morris Gamble) and her baby daughter, Mary Lyon Booth, of Lynchburg, Va.

Mrs. John Thiedeman and her sons, Douglas and Michael, departed recently to join Mr. Thiedeman in their new home in Buffalo. The Thiedemans, whose oldest son, Seaman William Thiedeman, is stationed with the Navy at Traverse City, Mich., lived here at 642 Simmons avenue. Many parties marked their departure.

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Hynes of Kansas City of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marjorie Hynes, to Richard Allen Holt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Holt, 501 Andrews avenue. Miss Hynes will be a guest of the Holts next month. The wedding is planned for Aug. 25 at Trinity Methodist Church in Kansas City, after which the principals will return to Drury College, Springfield, Mo., where both will be seniors. Miss Hynes is a member of Zeta Tau Sorority, while her fiancé belongs to Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity.

Martha Carr's

OPINION

Dear Martha:

WHAT would you do in a case like this? I love to give my daughters-in-law small gifts as I cannot afford expensive ones. They are all usable and nothing to be ashamed of. They all enjoy what I give them except for one who has just come into the family and who doesn't seem to care for what I give her. I know we all have different tastes but I know from what the others have said that while I do not spend too much I make good choices. My son said he'd rather I didn't spend money on things knowing how his wife is. But I don't like to show partiality and am up a tree.

What now?

MOTHER-IN-LAW.

I think you should just take your son's word for it and not spend any more on his wife. Apparently, she has been so critical or ungrateful that both you and he have sensed it and he naturally doesn't want her to hurt your feelings. So, this seems to be the solution in his mind: Go ahead and give her presents, of course, on special occasions such as Christmas and birthdays, and let the other gifts go. This doesn't mean to turn your back on her or obviously favor the other girls, but there doesn't seem to be any sense in spending money on presents which are unappreciated.

Dear Martha:

MY HUSBAND never wants to go anywhere, just stay at home all the time. When we married, I knew he was a quiet person, not at all gregarious as I am, but I hoped he would grow to enjoy my friends. Instead, he seems to be even worse. He wants to work in the garden every evening and never is interested in having people come to see us or to go out. One thing I am grateful for is that he isn't jealous. He tells me to go on and be with my friends and if one of the women in the neighborhood happens to drop in during the evening he is courteous but completely disinterested. Please tell me what to do.

TROUBLED.

I imagine many readers will agree with me when I say that you should be thankful he is happy at home and doesn't want to run around. Granted, it would be a lot more fun to see congenial friends occasionally or to feel free to accept invitations. But if he shows such distaste for social life, why make an issue over it? Meet your own friends during the day or invite them over for an evening bridge game if he doesn't mind. But don't tie up all your evenings. Get out there and work in the garden with him. Sharing that hobby will enrich your lives far more than an occasional evening with casual friends.

IN ANSWER TO Mrs. J.W.: I would suggest that the Family and Children's Service might be able to help with this problem. The central office is at 4643 Lindell boulevard, telephone FOrest 7-2840.

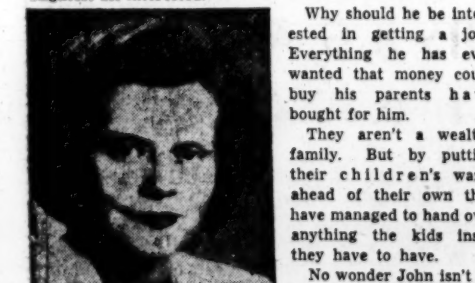

Write today for Martha Carr's free list of baby names, including several hundred for both boys and girls. Please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Summer Jobs

By Ruth Millett

"I WISH John would get a job this summer," a mother said about her 15-year-old son.

"But," she added sadly, "he doesn't seem the slightest bit interested."

RUTH MILLETT

doesn't have anything to work for. He gets a good allowance. If he runs short dad obligingly foots the bill for a dance and a corsage for John's girl.

If he wants a piece of sporting equipment, dad buys it. And then his parents both wonder why he hasn't enough get-up-and-go to land a summer job.

His dad tries to spur him on by talking about the lawns he mowed, the paper route he carried, the job he had serving sodas when he was a youngster.

"When I was your age I was earning all my own spending money," his dad says.

And he blames his boy for not being as ambitious and hard-working as he was.

But he can't see that kids don't usually work unless they have to in order to get the things they want.

If everything is handed to them why should they bother to work?

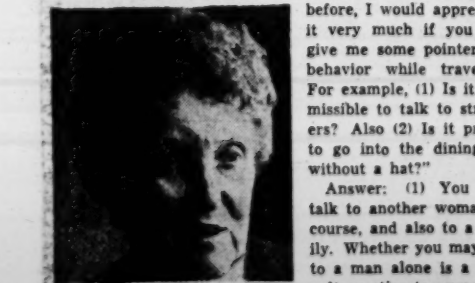

There's only one way to encourage junior to get a summer job and that is to tell him his allowance ends with the end of school.

If he has to scratch for his money he'll scratch, just like his dad did.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A READER writes: "I am a young woman and am planning to go West very soon to visit some relatives. I am going alone and traveling by train. I will be on the train one day and one night. Never having made a long trip before, I would appreciate it very much if you will give me some pointers on behavior while traveling. For example, (1) Is it permissible to talk to strangers? Also (2) Is it proper to go into the dining car without a hat?"

cause it depends entirely upon your astuteness in judging the type of person he is. (2) You wear one or not, as you choose. There is no rule.

DEAR MRS. POST: While I was away on a vacation recently, I sent a card to my brother and his wife. I wrote "Dear John and Mary." When I returned home I found out that my sister-in-law was highly insulted because I did not put her name first, and said I was very discourteous to her. I think she is very picaune to make a fuss over this, but for my own satisfaction, I would like to know if I was wrong.

Answer: Had you written Mary and John it would have been slightly more polite, but fussing about a trifling detail such as this is childish.

The New Man in Marilyn's Life

NEW YORK (UP).

THE new man in Marilyn Monroe's life is an intense, tall, intellectual type who long ago became resigned to people telling him he looks like a clean-shaven Abraham Lincoln.

He is Arthur Miller, 41, a playwright best known for his "Death of a Salesman," which won him a Pulitzer Prize in 1949 and earned some $250,000 for him which has been helpful in view of subsequent plays which were not box office hits.

Miller, who announced that he and Marilyn will be married next month, met the movie star in New York when she was first entering her own intellectual or "Brothers Karamazov" phase after walking out on her Hollywood studio and divorcing baseball great Joe DiMaggio.

Miller could hardly be more the opposite of the athletic but phlegmatic DiMaggio. Miller once summed up a bit of his philosophy by writing:

"We must be a terribly lonely people, cut off from each other by such massive pretense or self-sufficiency, machined down so fine we hardly touch any more. We are trying to save ourselves separately and that is immoral, that is the corrosive among us."

Marilyn apparently agreed. She and Miller became "good friends" and she mixed with others of the New York theater set, including Director Elia Kazan, Director Less Strassberg and Producer Cheryl Crawford.

This month, Miller divorced his wife of 17 years whom he had met when they were students at the University of Michigan. They had two children. Friends said Marilyn had nothing to do with the breakup,

ARTHUR MILLER . . .

"WE MUST BE A TERRIBLY LONELY PEOPLE . . ."

that Miller and his wife had been drifting apart well before Miller met Miss Monroe. Miller has told reporters he considers Marilyn "a great actress." Asked whether his playwriting and her acting would bring the couple together professionally, he said:

"I've never written a play for an actor or actress but if there's a part in one of them for her, I'd love to have her."

Marilyn explained to reporters there would be "no change in plans" concerning her trip to England July 13 to shoot "The Sleeping Prince" movie with Sir Laurence Olivier.

Miller, who is working on wedding arrangements, said last week, "It'll be in July, before the thirteenth."

Marilyn added that she would let everybody know about the wedding "right afterward, if not before."

Miller is six foot two, weighs 160 pounds. He is an enthusiastic and accomplished amateur carpenter. He has a good baritone voice, once crooned on a radio station.

Miller was born in New York, the son of a prosperous maker of women's coats. His father was caught in the 1929 crash and the family moved to the Coney Island section where Arthur spent his childhood. His mother was an avid reader and particular admirer of Dostoevsky (who wrote "The Brothers Karamazov.")

HIS FIRST BROADWAY success was the play, "All My Sons." After that came "Death of a Salesman," which won critical acclaim in the United States and abroad. Since then he has had two plays on Broadway, "The Crucible" and "A View From the Bridge." They were critical successes but mediocre at the box office.

Such groups as the American Legion and the Catholic War Veterans have charged Miller with left-wing tendencies, particularly after he participated in a "peace rally" at the Waldorf Astoria in 1949 which was addressed by Russian writers and artists.

Miller himself has stated emphatically that he is not a Communist, but a "somewhat confused radical."

In Washington last week, Miller told the House Committee on Un-American Activities that in the late 1940s he gave money to organizations which were later cited as Communist fronts. "In those times," he explained to the committee, "I supported some things I wouldn't support now. I would not now support a cause or movement that was dominated by Communists."

Miller, now, may find it difficult to get a passport.

But before the hearings began Representative Francis E. Walter said that he thought Miller could enjoy a honeymoon "many places in this country" with Marilyn.

"That would be rather difficult," the lanky playwright commented, "since she's going to be in England."

The Little Woman

This Is for the Birds

By Clarissa Start

IF IT looks like rain in cherry blossom lane, I, for one, do not care. It could look like monsoon, typhoon, mild tornado, or anything else that would sweep the remaining cherries from the trees, and it would not be regretted at our house. Not by grandpa who's done high ladder duty among the upper branches, grandma and father who've seeded, stoned, pitted, and by any name it wrinkles your fingers. Not by the little woman who's had to dispose of the seeded, stoned, etc., product. Not even by the children who refuse to be persuaded that these are not edible cherries. All of us "have had" cherries for this year.

Our new old house continues to yield surprises in its first year and the cherry trees were one of the nicest of them. We were vaguely aware that there were some cherry trees around but it has been our experience that fruit trees, unless carefully cultivated, sprayed and pampered, give nothing but an undersize, worm riddled product. We didn't expect much from the cherry trees even after their extravagant blossoming in spring. Their blooms did call to mind again my favorite Dorothy Parker cynicism. The one about:

"I never see that loveliest thing, A cherry bough gone white with spring. But what I think how gay 'twould be To hang me from a flowering tree."

I WAS ONLY KIDDING when I quoted it in spring. Came the lush warm days, we looked out the window one morning and the cherry trees were polka dotted with red. We couldn't wait until they ripened. Every day we examined, poked, tested. A few fell to the ground. Did this mean we were losing our entire crop prematurely? We scanned the skies for birds. Would they eat all the cherries before we had enough picked for a pie?

Well, it's been a good year for cherries evidently and if the birds have eaten any, we haven't noticed it. Maybe because it was a good year for rain, too, they had plenty of worms. Or maybe they've been concentrating on the mulberry trees which we have in profusion, purple ones and white mulberries. The first evening after spending four hours picking cherries from the low branches within reach, I realized there would be enough cherries for us and the birds, too. I whistled tentatively. No birds replied.

THAT WAS A WEDNESDAY NIGHT. I baked a cherry pie. That left approximately five quarts of berries in the refrigerator. By Friday night, it became apparent that they had to be canned before we could put the week's food supply away. Friday night I canned cherries, several quarts of them. Approximate seeding and cleaning time, one hour per quart. The man of the house hazarded a guess that if you counted time, sugar and stove maintenance, you were not saving money.

"But we get the cherries free," I pointed out, "and you can't let them go to waste."

Nevertheless, I have tremendous respect for the housewife of yore who used to do this on a large scale. Saturday morning I baked three cherry pies, canned cherries, preserved cherries. Sunday we picked cherries, pitted cherries, sneered and snarled at cherries. Two more cherry pies that week. There still are cherries in the top of the tree and after the last picking, grandma announced that the raspberries are getting ripe.

Yoo hoo, birds, come and get it.

Need for Air Power

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK.

THE photograph in the New York Times and the Herald Tribune Saturday of a group of very jolly gentlemen. — Defense Secretary Charles F. Wilson and Secretaries Donald A. Quarles of the Air Force, Wilber M. Brucker of the Army and Charles S. Thomas of the Navy—would not lead one to believe that any of these gentlemen were upset over the attacks which lately have been leveled against their policies.

Of course, Defense Secretary Wilson might be justified in wanting to reduce military manpower and to economize on the rising costs of defense if our foreign policy had been so successful that we had increased our friends in the world to a notable extent in the last few years.

Unfortunately, this is not the case. And one hopes that when the Joint Chiefs of Staff take a "complete, unprejudiced" look at the whole defense establishment, they will have in mind the real world situation and not Secretary of State John Foster Dulles's optimistic promises.

We need defense at home, certainly in the area of a stronger Air Force. Whether we actually need more soldiers and more Navy, I do not know, but more modern equipment of every kind and more trained personnel in the Air Force unquestionably is a need which should never be overlooked.

IT IS INTERESTING to have the officials of such a state as

New York asking the National Government to take greater responsibility in leadership toward organizing Civil Defense and planning the programs to be followed. Gov. Averell Harriman said that since the Federal Government had not developed a realistic plan, there was no way that states could induce individual people to take more interest in civil defense work.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner's assistant, Stanley H. Lowell, said that no state or municipality has the financial ability to set up bomb shelters, evacuation centers or radiation shelters, if a study determined that any of these were necessary. Gov. Harriman urged that the national Civil Defense Administrator be given Cabinet rank and that this become as much a part of defense as the military organizations.

ITALY HAS SENT its permanent representative to the United Nations and Leonardo Vitelli presented his credentials to the Secretary General last Saturday. This is a milestone and many will welcome the entrance of the Italians as members of the U.N.

the lucky ones go to MID-AMERICA

New babies and new factories both get a wonderful start in Mid-America.

For Mid-America nourishes people and industries alike on a diet of rich resources and abundant opportunities.

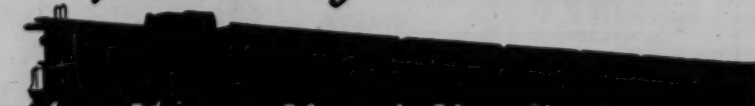

That's one reason why so many new industries locate along the Illinois Central each year. Another is the railroad, itself. For more than a century it has supplied the kind of economical transportation that enables both companies and individuals to make a good living.

Today, we are doing the best transport job in history. Soon we may do even better if certain federal transport regulations are changed to allow us to serve you more economically and efficiently. Such changes will benefit you and everyone in Mid-America.

Coconut Dreams

Ingredients: One cup (not sifted) flour, two tablespoons plus one-half cup light brown sugar, one-half cup (one-fourth pound) butter or margarine, two eggs, one-half cup light corn syrup, one teaspoon vanilla, two-thirds cup flaked coconut, one-half cup chopped (medium) walnuts.

Method: Stir the flour and two tablespoons brown sugar together. Cut two squares (two tablespoons) from the butter; melt then and reserve. With a pastry blender, cut the remaining six tablespoons of the butter into the flour mixture until the fat particles are tiny. Pat mixture into the bottom of a baking pan (7 by 11 by 1 1/2 inches). Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven 20 minutes; remove from oven and allow to stand while mixing topping. Beat eggs enough to combine yolks and whites; add corn syrup, the remaining one-half cup brown sugar, the reserved two tablespoons melted butter and the vanilla; after each of these is added, beat enough to blend. Stir in coconut and walnuts. Pour mixture over top of baked pastry. Return to moderate (350 degrees) oven and bake 25 minutes, or until topping is lightly browned around edge and looks set; a cake tester inserted in the center will come out clean. Place pan on rack to cool. While cookies are still warm, cut into 24 squares with a sharp knife; clean knife blade with hot water if cookie topping sticks to it during cutting. Remove squares carefully with a spatula; place on rack until entirely cold. Store in tightly covered container.

Brain Game
AMERICAN history is the subject of today's quiz. Four correct answers are excellent.
1. Who drew the first draft of the Articles of Confederation?
2. Henry Laurens was on his way to which country when he was seized by the British in 1779?
3. What individual is called "the financier of the War of the Revolution"?
4. Who was the nation's first Attorney General?
5. Was Aaron Burr ever a candidate for President of the United States?
6. Who succeeded John Q. Adams as president?
ANSWERS:
1. John Dickinson; 2. The Netherlands; 3. Robert Morris; 4. Edmund Randolph; 5. Yes; 6. Andrew Jackson.

Ginger Tea
Ingredients: One cup water, one cup sugar, one 2-inch stick cinnamon, 10 whole cloves, one-half inch square fresh ginger (peeled and sliced thin), pure instant powdered tea, lemon wedges.
Method: Bring one cup water to a boil in a small saucepan. Add sugar, cinnamon, cloves and ginger. Stir over low heat until sugar dissolves. Bring to a boil; boil without stirring for seven minutes. Cool. Remove cinnamon stick and cloves but leave ginger. Makes a little over one cup. To prepare each beverage serving: Put one teaspoon instant tea in a 10-ounce tumbler. Put a silver teaspoon in the glass and add just enough boiling water to dissolve tea. Fill glass with ice cubes. Add two teaspoons of the sirup; stir and serve with a lemon wedge. (Cut six to eight wedges from each lemon.) For a tart beverage, use one tablespoon of the sirup.

From a World Famous Hospital Comes Startling Medical News! A new, gentle—Far More Effective Form of Iodine Proved by hospital clinical work on over 3,971 patients, proved safe Even in Babies' Throats! Yet so effective it killed cases that even defied antibiotics!
NEW PAINLESS IODINE STOPS INFECTION FAST!
Won't burn or sting the wound! No poison label!
Safe...even if swallowed accidentally!

Revolutionary IODINE the full-potency antiseptic...containing the new "complexed" iodine...soothes wounds, promotes healing like no other antiseptic does!
LABORATORY-TESTED AND PROVED UP TO 40 TIMES FASTER THAN TWO LEADING ANTISEPTICS IN KILLING GERMS
IODINE Antiseptic, the painless, high-potency iodine, is now available to your family! This safe, new "complexed" iodine gives the full antiseptic power of iodine—for the first time in a gentle form. Gone is the burn of iodine—with IODINE.
Doctors hail IODINE Antiseptic because:
1. IODINE does not irritate or blister skin.
2. You can safely bandage over IODINE.
3. IODINE retains full potency.
The secret of Iodine is the remarkable achievement of "complexing" elemental iodine with a great discovery, polyvinylpyrrolidone.
WORKS CONTINUOUSLY AGAINST INFECTION!
IODINE forms a brown film over the injury that protects continuously as long as the color remains. When the color fades, that is IODINE'S built-in signal to apply it again.
WHY YOU SHOULD GET IODINE TODAY!
Scientific fact! Ordinary iodine loses germ-killing potency—weak antiseptics may fail to protect, so infection develops. IODINE is full-potency when you buy it—gives full protection every time! Get the new, safe, sure, painless, non-poisonous antiseptic. Get IODINE Antiseptic.
SO GENTLE THAT BANDAGING IS RECOMMENDED
AN OPEN LETTER TO PHYSICIANS
Since Iodine's first report on Iodine in 1935, it has proved a useful, antiseptic, antistatic, bactericidal, virucidal, fungicidal, parasiticidal, and non-irritating, iodine Antiseptic in an aqueous solution containing polyvinylpyrrolidone iodine-complex (PVP) as the active ingredient.
As a topical antiseptic, it has been under clinical observation for over three years and used on more than 1,971 patients in the Outpatient Department and Inpatient Service of a leading New York Hospital, as well as in Private Practice. No clinical signs of irritation of healing or iodine burn have been reported—even when bandaged.
It is felt that the non-irritative, broad spectrum activity of Iodine makes it a valuable adjunct in both hospital and private practice.

THE other day a woman reader asked this question: "Do we have a new set of Seven Wonders of the World?"

The modern world has scores of wonders which equal, or surpass, the Seven Wonders of ancient times. It is hard to match the Great Pyramid, but the Empire State Building is greater in some ways. The Statue of Liberty offsets the ancient Colossus of Rhodes. There are remarkable lighthouses today than the one near Alexandria; that lighthouse owed its fame largely to the fact that it was a pioneer structure.

SEVERAL DIFFERENT "ancient wonders" were as outstanding as those on the usual list, or more so. The beautiful Parthenon of Athens should have been named. In Rome the Pantheon, with its huge dome, was surely a wonder. The Romans also built aqueducts which rank among the great engineering works of history.

Aside from such wonders, Egypt had an accidental wonder! It was a statue which moaned!

The moaning statue was one of a pair set up during the reign of King Amenhotep about 3500 years ago. They were 52 feet high and were the largest statues ever carved in Egypt. An Egyptian of that time wrote words meaning:

"These statues are marvelous in size and height, and they will last as long as heaven."

WE ARE without knowledge of the exact time that the moaning started. Ancient Greek visitors to Egypt left records of what they saw and heard. A fanciful story sprang up that the statue held the spirit of Memnon, a hero who was slain at Troy.

The moaning usually took place at daybreak, and the sorrowful sounds were said to come from Aurora, goddess of the dawn. More likely they arose from the fact that the statue was damaged. The changes in temperature during early morning happened to produce sounds.

A Roman emperor ordered the statue to be repaired. When his orders were carried out, the moaning stopped.
